THE BRITISH MUSEUM

Bloomsbury, W.C.1

[Museum: 15551]

Exhibitions.—Manuscripts, Printed Books, Egyptian, Assyrian, Greek and Roman Sculptures, Romano-British, Prehistoric and Oriental Antiquities and Ethnography (Main Entrance, Great Russell Street, W.C.1). Select Exhibition of works of art and antiquities in the King Edward VII Gallery. Prints and Drawings, Oriental Paintings, Egyptian and Babylonian antiquities (North Entrance, Montague Place, W.C.1). Open weekdays (including Bank Holidays) 10 to 5 and Sundays 2.30 to 6. Closed on Good Friday and Christmas Day. Admission free.

Reading-room open daily to readers, from 9 to 5, (Tues. and Thurs., 9 p.m.), and Newspaper Room, (at Colindale), from 10 to 5 throughout the year, except Good Friday, Christmas and Boxing Day and Sundays. Closed for cleaning the week beginning with first Monday in May. Long-period tickets of admission for purposes of research and reference which cannot be carried on elsewhere, are granted on written application beforehand to the Director. The applicant should state abode, business or profession and full particulars of purpose, and should send a recommendation from a person of recognized position.

The British Museum may be said to date from 1753, when Parliament granted funds to purchase the collections of Sir Hans Sloane and the Harleyan manuscripts, and for their proper housing and maintenance. The building (Montague House) was opened in 1759. The present buildings were erected between 1823 and the present day, and the original collection has increased to its present dimensions by gifts and purchases, and by the operation of the Copyright Acts. The administrative expenses were estimated at £908,000 in 1962-63, and were met by a vote under "Museums, Galleries and the Arts," Class VIII of the Civil Estimates.

THE BRITISH MUSEUM (NATURAL HISTORY)

Cromwell Road S.W.7
 [Kensington: 6323]

Open free on week-days (except Good Friday and Christmas Day) 10 to 6, and on Sundays from 2.30 to 6.

The Natural History Collections were removed from the British Museum (Bloomsbury) to South Kensington in 1881-85, the new Museum being opened to the public in 1881. The collections comprise all branches of natural history. The Zoological Museum, Tring [Tring: 2255], bequeathed by the second Lord Rothschild, has formed part of the British Museum (Natural History) since 1938.

Official Guide-lectures conduct visitors round some of the exhibition galleries at 3 p.m. daily on weekdays free of charge, and their services are available at other times for special parties (also free of charge) by arrangement with the Director. Students are admitted daily for the special study of the collections, and to make drawings and take photographs of specimens, under special regulations to be obtained from the Director. The Museum issues a large variety of publications, comprising scientific monographs and catalogues, popular guide-books and manuals, instructions for collectors, economic pamphlets, and picture post-cards, both monochrome and in colour.

The administrative expenses were estimated at £603,000 in 1962-63.

Kensington Palace, W.8
 [Western: 9816]

The Museum illustrates the history of London from the earliest times to the present. It has good collections of archaeological remains, topographical pictures and models, costumes and royal relics. Originally at Kensington Palace, the collections were transferred to Lancaster House in 1914. After the second world war, when most of Lancaster House was converted for use solely as a centre for government hospitality, the Museum was granted temporary accommodation for its offices, and for such of its exhibition as space permitted, at Kensington Palace by King George VI. In 1956 the State Apartments at Kensington Palace were reopened to the public under the administrative control of the London Museum. The Apartments contain pictures from the royal collections, royal costumes and furniture formerly belonging to Queen Mary.

Director and Accounting Officer, D. B. Harden, O.B.E., F.S.A..... £3,050 Asst. Keepers, M. R. Holmes, F.S.A.; B. W. Spencer, F.S.A.; J. T. Hayes.

THE SCIENCE MUSEUM

South Kensington, S. W.7
 [Kensington: 6371]

Open free on weekdays 10 to 6; Sundays 2.30 to 6. Closed on Good Friday and Christmas Day.

For Science Museum Library, see below.

The Science Museum, which is the National Museum of Science and Industry, was instituted in 1853 under the Science and Art Department as a part of the South Kensington Museum, and opened in 1857; to it was added in 1883 the Collections of the Patent Museum. In 1909 the administration of the Science Collections was separated from that of the Art Collections, which were transferred to the Victoria and Albert Museum. The Collections in the Science Museum illustrate the development of science and engineering and related industries.

The seven departments into which the exhibits are grouped are shown below.

The administrative expenses of the Museum and Library were estimated at £339,000 in 1962-63 to be met by a vote under Education.

South Kensington, S.W.7
 [Kensington: 6371]

Hours 10 to 6 (weekdays and Bank Holidays); Sundays, 2.30 to 6. Admission free. Art Library (10 to 6) and Print Room (10 to 5) open free (closed Sunday). Is a museum of all branches of fine and applied art, under the Ministry of Education.

The Museum descends direct from the Museum of Manufactures (later called Museum of Ornamental Art) opened in Marlborough House in 1852. The nucleus was a selection of objects bought for £5,000 from the Great Exhibition of 1851 which, with objects illustrating historic styles, was to be devoted to the "application of fine art to the objects of utility" and "the improvement of the public taste in design." The Museum was moved in 1857 to become part of the collective South Kensington Museum. Most of the older buildings date from 1860-82; the new parts from 1899-1909. The South Kensington Museum was re-named the Victoria and Albert Museum in 1899, and only became an exclusively art museum in 1909. Besides comprising the departments named below, the Museum contains the national collections of post-classical sculpture (excluding modern), of British miniatures and of water-colours, the National Art Library, and of art lantern slides. The branch museum at Bethnal Green (composed of a building formerly at South Kensington) was opened in 1872. The Victoria and Albert Museum also administers the Wellington Museum (Apsley House); Ham House, Richmond and Osterley Park, Middlesex.

IMPERIAL WAR MUSEUM

[Reliance: 2636]

Open free daily (except Good Friday and Christmas Day), 10 a.m.; Sundays, 2 p.m. Closes at 6 p.m.

The Museum was founded by the War Cabinet in March, 1917, and established by Act of Parliament in 1920 as a memorial of the effort and sacrifice made by the men and women of the Empire during the Great War of 1914-1918 and to provide a record and a place for the study of that period. On the outbreak of the Second World War in 1939, the Trustees were authorized to collect exhibits and records of the War of 1939-1945 on similar lines. In 1953 it was decided that the Museum should concern itself with all operations in which British Forces have been, or shall be, engaged since August 1914. The exhibition galleries contain relics, models, weapons, uniforms, badges, and medals and record the achievements of the three fighting services and the war effort and experiences of the home front. There are also picture galleries containing works by prominent British artists who recorded the wars in paintings, drawings, or sculpture. The reference library contains more than 90,000 printed and manuscript works in many languages, dealing with all aspects of the military, social, political and economic history of the wars, and files of the many service journals and other periodicals published during those periods. The Photographic Department contains all the official and many unofficial war photographs, to a total of over 4,000,000 prints. Prints may be purchased and reproductions authorized. The official cinematograph war films are also in the Trustees' custody.

NATIONAL PARKS COMMISSION

1 Cambridge Gate, Regent's Park, N.W.1

[Welbeck: 0366]

The National Parks Commission, a body corporate, was established under the National Parks and Access to the Countryside Act, 1949. Members are appointed by the Minister of Housing and Local Government, to whom the Commission reports annually. This report is laid before each House of Parliament.

The Commission is entrusted with the task of designating National Parks and areas of outstanding natural beauty in England and Wales. The former are extensive tracts of country affording facilities for open-air recreation. The Parks, when approved by the Minister of Housing and Local Government, are administered by Local Planning Authorities, subject to a general supervision by the Parks Commission. Ten National Parks, covering in all some 5,246 square miles, and twelve areas of outstanding natural beauty have been established. For main article, see Index.

The Commission is also required to report to the Minister of Housing and Local Government on long-distance routes, along which there will be continuous right of way for walkers and riders, e.g. the Pennine Way; to make representations to Ministers or Local Planning Authorities on any proposed development likely to be prejudicial to the natural beauty of any area; and to provide information services for the public.

THE NATURE CONSERVANCY

19, Belgrave Square, S.W.1

[Belgravia: 3241]

The Nature Conservancy was set up by Royal Charter in March, 1949, and is directly responsible to the Lord President of the Council and Minister for Science as Chairman of the Privy Council Committee for Nature Conservation. The National Parks and Access to the Countryside Act, 1949, provided the necessary powers for the proper discharge of the responsibilities laid on the Conservancy.

In Great Britain ninety-eight Nature Reserves, covering 186,992 acres, had been declared up to June 30, 1962. The Conservancy has powers under Part III of the National Parks and Access to the Countryside Act, 1949, to make byelaws for the protection of National Nature Reserves.

Research stations have been set up at Grange-over-Sands, Lancashire; Wareham, Dorset; Bangor, Caernarvonshire and Aviemore, Inverness-shire. An experimental station is being set up at Monks' Wood, Huntingdon. Field stations have been set up at Moor House, Westmorland and Kinlochewe, Ross-shire.

ROYAL OBSERVATORIES

Royal Greenwich Observatory

[Herstmonceux: 3171]

The Royal Observatory was established at Greenwich in 1675 by Charles II for improving methods of navigation. The first Astronomer Royal, John Flamsteed (1675-1719), was succeeded by Edmund Halley (1720-1742), James Bradley (1742-1762), Nathaniel Bliss (1762-1764), Nevil Maskelyne (1765-1811), John Pond (1811-1835), Sir George Biddell Airy (1835-1881), Sir William Henry Mahoney Christie (1881-1910), Sir Frank Watson Dyson (1910-1933), Sir Harold Spencer Jones (1933-1955).

Latterly the growth of London, with its smoke and bright lights, seriously hampered astronomical observations there, and it was decided in 1946 to move the telescopes to Herstmonceux Castle in Sussex. The removal was completed by 1958. The meridian of zero longitude still passes through the old site, which now houses the astronomical section of the National Maritime Museum.

At the Observatory astronomical measurements are made of the positions, motions and distances of the heavenly bodies, and of such physical characteristics as their luminosities, masses and temperatures. Two meridian instruments and six equatorially-mounted telescopes are devoted to this work. The Observatory is responsible for the time service of the United Kingdom, for the maintenance of chronometers and watches used by H.M. armed forces, and for the periodical issue of world magnetic charts. At an outstation at Hartland, Devon, continuous observations are made of the strength and direction of the earth's magnetic field.

H.M. Astronomer Royal, Richard van der Riet Woolley, O.B.E., Sc.D., F.R.S. £4,050

Deputy Chief Scientific Officer, R. d'E. Atkinson, Ph.D. £3,125 to £3,450

H.M. Nautical Almanac Office

c/o The Royal Greenwich Observatory

The "Nautical Almanac" was first published for 1767 by the Board of Longitude. The Office is now a branch of the Royal Greenwich Observatory. Annual publications—Astronomical Ephemeris, Nautical Almanac, Air Almanac, Star Almanac.

Superintendent, D. H. Sadler, O.B.E. £3,125 to £3,450

Principal Scientific Officers, Mrs. F. McBain Sadler (part-time); G. A. Wilkins, Ph.D. £1,716 to £2,478

SCOTLAND

Royal Observatory

Blackford Hill, Edinburgh 9

[Newington: 3321]

The Observatory was founded by the Astronomical Institution in 1818. Originally situated on Calton Hill, near the centre of the city, it was moved southwards to its present site in 1896. It is primarily a research institution concerned with work in astrophysics and stellar astronomy, and undertakes spectroscopic and photometric observations. The Observatory also houses a major centre of seismology. The Observatory operates an outstation at Earlyburn in Peeblesshire. The Library contains the valuable collection of Lord Crawford.

Astronomer Royal for Scotland and Regius Professor of Astronomy in the University of Edinburgh, H. A. Brück, Ph.D., D.Phil. £3,250

Principal Scientific Officers, H. E. Butler, Ph.D.; P. B. Felgett, Ph.D.; V. C. Reddish, Ph.D. £1,650 to £2,325

NATIONAL INSURANCE ADVISORY COMMITTEE

[Whitehall: 9066]

The National Insurance Advisory Committee was appointed on Oct. 28, 1947, under the National Insurance Act, 1946, to give advice and assistance to the Minister of Pensions and National Insurance in connection with the discharge of his functions under the Act, and to perform any other duties allotted to it under the Act. These other duties include the consideration of preliminary drafts of regulations to be made under the National Insurance Acts, and of representations received thereon. When the regulations are laid before Parliament, the Committee's Report on the preliminary draft is laid with them, together with a statement by the Minister showing what amendments to the preliminary draft have been made, what effect has been given to the Committee's recommendations, and, if effect has not been given to any recommendation, the reasons for not adopting it. The Minister may also refer to the Committee for consideration and advice any questions relating to the operation of the Acts (including questions as to the advisability of amending the Acts).

Chairman, Sir Ifor Evans.

Members, H. Collison, C.B.E.; J. A. Faris; Mrs. I. M. Howell, C.B.E.; J. C. Lennox, O.B.E.; H. M. D. Parker, C.B., C.B.E.; Sir Richard Sneddon, C.B.E.; Prof. R. M. Titmuss; N. C. Turner.

PORT OF LONDON AUTHORITY

Head Office, Trinity Square, E.C. 3

[Royal: 2000]

The Port of London Authority, established under the Port of London Act, 1908 (8 Edw. VII c. 68), on the 31st March, 1909, for the purpose of administering, preserving, and improving the Port of London, consists of 28 members—10 appointed and 18 elected, with a Chairman and Vice-Chairman appointed by the Authority; these offices may (but need not) be filled by an elected or appointed member.

The following undertakings were transferred to the Port Authority as from the 31st March, 1909:—Thames Conservancy (all rights, powers and duties of the Conservators of the Thames in respect of the river below Teddington); London and India Docks Company; Surrey Commercial Dock Company; Millwall Dock Company; and Watermen's Company, except certain property and funds. The working of the Port for the year ended March 31, 1962, showed a deficit of £218,527, leaving a surplus balance of £476,189 carried forward.

MINISTRY OF PUBLIC BUILDING AND WORKS

 [Reliance: 7611]

The Ministry of Works was constituted in 1940. It took over the functions of the Commissioners of H.M. Works and Public Buildings who had been incorporated by the Commissioners of Works Act, 1852. The principal functions of the Commissioners were to provide, furnish and maintain buildings required for the public service, including buildings overseas, manage the Royal Parks, maintain the Royal Palaces and certain historic buildings and to administer the Ancient Monuments Acts.

The Ministry is now also responsible for co-ordinating the work of the building and civil engineering industries and of the building materials industries. It encourages efficiency and increased production by supplying technical information and making known the results of research.

In July 1962 the Ministry was renamed the Ministry of Public Building and Works.

PUBLIC HEALTH LABORATORY SERVICE

[Museum: 2223]

The Service was originally set up in 1939 as an emergency service to augment the existing public health resources of England and Wales in combating outbreaks of infectious diseases such as might arise from enemy action or abnormal conditions in time of war. In 1945 the Government decided to retain the Service on a permanent footing, and statutory authority for doing so was included in the National Health Service Act, 1946, the Minister of Health being empowered to provide a Bacteriological Service in England and Wales for the control of the spread of infectious diseases. The Service was administered by the Medical Research Council, as agents of the Ministry of Health until August 1, 1961, when, under the provision of the Public Health Laboratory Service Act, 1960, a new Public Health Laboratory Service Board was established as a statutory body capable of acting in its own right as agent for the Ministry.

Sardinia Street, Kingsway, W.C.2

[Holborn: 4300]

This is a Government Office (opened in 1908) by means of which the State acts as executor and trustee under a will, or as trustee under a settlement, and in other capacities of a like nature. The value of the trusts accepted up to March 31, 1962, was £651,500,000.

The facts of any trust, new or old, in which it is desired that the Public Trustee should act may be brought to his notice by letter or by personal interview. The appointment is effected in the same way as a private trustee, or by an Order of the Court. He can act solely or jointly with others.

In the case of a will, all that the testator need say is, "I appoint the Public Trustee executor and trustee of this my Will"; or the appointment may be a joint one with others. Executors who have obtained probate can transfer their duties to him under an Order of the Court. He can also act as administrator with, or without, the will annexed.

Strict secrecy is observed in all matters dealt with in the Department. Accounts in simple form are furnished to the beneficiaries as required. An interview with the Public Trustee or with any of his senior officers can be arranged at any time. A pamphlet giving particulars and details of the fees can be obtained free of cost from the Office of the Public Trustee, Kingsway, W.C.2.

by the Crown to hold office for 4 years; 3 Commissioners retire each year and may be re-appointed.

The functions of the Commissioners, derived chiefly from the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, and the Local Authorities Loans Act, 1945, are to consider applications for loans by Local Authorities and other prescribed bodies, and, when loans are approved, to collect the repayments.

Funds for loans are provided from time to time by Acts of Parliament and are drawn from the Local Loans Fund through the National Debt Commissioners. Rates of interest on the Board's loans and fees to cover management expenses are fixed by the Treasury.

During the year ended March 31, 1962, 3,820 applications for loans totalling £55,396,522 were approved and advances totalling £53,650,804 were made.

Until 1497 the records of Parliament were normally transmitted at the end of a session to Chancery, and are now therefore preserved in the

PUBLIC WORKS LOAN BOARD

[Monarch: 6234]

The Board is an independent statutory body, consisting of 12 unpaid Commissioners appointed

Public Record Office. Since 1497 the records of Parliament as a whole, and also of the House of Lords, have been kept within the Palace of Westminster. They are in the custody of the Clerk of the Parliaments, who in 1946 established a record department to supervise their preservation and production to students. The Search Room of this office is open to the public throughout the year, Mondays to Fridays inclusive, from 10 to 5. The records preserved number some 1,500,000 documents, and include Acts of Parliament from 1497, Journals of the House from 1510, Minutes and Committee proceedings from 1621, and Papers laid before Parliament, from 1531. Amongst the records are the Petition of Right, the Death Warrant of Charles I, the Declaration of Breda and the Bill of Rights. The House of Lords Record Office can also arrange access for students to the Journals of the House of Commons (from 1547), and to the other surviving records of the Commons (from 1572). The records of both Houses are preserved in the Victoria Tower at the Houses of Parliament.

ROYAL COMMISSION ON HISTORICAL MANUSCRIPTS

Quality House, Quality Court, Chancery Lane

[Chancery: 2981]

National Register of Archives, [Chancery: 3205]

The Historical Manuscripts Commission was first appointed by Royal Warrant in 1869, and was empowered to make enquiry into the place of deposit of collections of manuscripts and papers of historical interest and with the consent of the owners to publish their contents. The Commission was reconstituted by Royal Warrant in 1959, with wider terms of reference, including the preservation of records and assistance to other bodies working in the same field. The Master of the Rolls, who is the Chairman of the Commission, now exercises through the Commission his responsibility under the Law of Property Act, 1922, and the Tithe Act, 1936, for manorial and tithe documents. The Commission has published over 200 volumes of printed reports upon manuscripts of historical import, and under its authority is compiled the National Register of Archives, which now contains over 7,000 typed reports upon privately-owned records, with extensive indexes, and may be consulted by historical scholars. At present a grant-in-aid is made through the Commission to the Records Preservation Section of the British Records Association. The Commission undertakes to advise owners upon the preservation and use of their manuscripts and records.

Chairman, The Master of the Rolls.

H.M. Stationery Office was established in 1786 and is the British Government's central organization for the supply of printing, binding, office supplies and office machinery of all kinds, and published books and periodicals, for the Public Service at home and abroad; it also undertakes duplicating and distributing services for government departments. The Stationery Office is the publisher for the government, and has bookshops for the sale of government publications in London, Edinburgh, Cardiff, Manchester, Bristol, Birmingham and Belfast; leading booksellers in the larger towns act as agents; and there are wholesale departments in London, Edinburgh and Belfast from which booksellers may obtain supplies. It is also the agent for the sale of publications of the United Nations and its specialized agencies and for certain other international organizations. The Controller of the Stationery Office is under Letters Patent the Queen's Printer of Acts of Parliament and in him is vested the Copyright in all British Government documents.

Government publications are of a wide and varied range and over 5,000 publications are produced each year. They include the London Gazette, which has been issued twice weekly since 1665, and Hansard, the verbatim report of the proceedings in both Houses of Parliament, available on the morning following the debate. The Stationery Office has in stock some 50,000 current titles and its subscriptions and standing order lists contain 145,000 names. The annual sales total about 17,000,000 copies.

The aggregate net estimate for the department in 1962-63 was £18,699,100 (an increase of £382,800 on the same estimate for 1961-62).

Generally the department obtains its supplies from commercial sources by competitive tender. For printing and binding, however, the Stationery Office has its own printing works and binderies which produce about one-third of the total requirement, including telephone directories, pension allowance books, national savings certificates and stamps, postal orders, premium bonds, National Insurance stamps, road fund licences, television and wireless licences. The annual face value of these certificates, orders, bonds, stamps and pension allowance books is over £3,452,000,000.

The staff employed on April 4, 1962, was 6,734, including 1,799 in warehouses and 2,400 at printing works; the total space occupied was two million square feet, including 1,250,000 sq. ft. for warehouse space and 460,000 sq. ft. for the printing works. St. Stephen's Parliamentary Printing Press, specially built to undertake parliamentary printing, was opened in Oct. 1961.

SUGAR BOARD

52, Mark Lane, E.C.3
[Royal : 6221]

The Sugar Board was constituted under the Sugar Act, 1956, on October 15, 1956. The Board buys the sugar which the United Kingdom has contracted to buy under the Commonwealth Sugar Agreement at prices negotiated annually by the Government and resells the sugar commercially at world prices. The Board also provides temporary finance for the British Sugar Corporation and receives from or pays to the Corporation any surplus or deficit arising on the production and refining of home grown beet sugar.

The Board, in turn, balances its accounts, taking one year with another, by receiving a surcharge or making a distribution payment, on all imported and home produced sugar and molasses.

THE TREASURY

[Whitehall: 1234]

The office of the Lord High Treasurer has been continuously in commission for well over 200 years. The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury consist of the First Lord of the Treasury (who is also the Prime Minister), the Chancellor of the Exchequer and five Junior Lords. This Board of Commissioners is assisted at present by a Parliamentary Secretary, a Financial Secretary and an Economic Secretary who are also Ministers, and joint Permanent Secretaries. The Prime Minister and First Lord is not primarily concerned in the day-to-day aspects of Treasury business, and the Junior Lords and the Parliamentary Secretary are Government Whips in the House of Commons. The management of the Treasury therefore devolves on the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Chief Secretary to the Treasury, who are both members of the Cabinet. The Chancellor is responsible for the general direction of economic and financial policy, at home and overseas. The Chief Secretary is responsible, under the general direction of the Chancellor, for the control of public expenditure and the management of the Civil Service. The Chancellor and the Chief Secretary are assisted at ministerial level by the Financial and Economic Secretaries, the Financial Secretary discharging in particular the traditional responsibility of the Treasury for the procedures for securing the voting of funds by Parliament.

NATIONAL ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT COUNCIL

1, Bridge Street, S.W. 1.

[Trafalgar: 2291]

The creation of a National Economic Development Council was proposed by the Chancellor of the Exchequer on September 23, 1961. The tasks of the Council, as defined at the inaugural meeting on March 7, 1962, are "to examine the economic performance of the nation with particular concern for plans for the future in both the private and the public sectors of industry; to consider together what are the obstacles to quicker growth, what can be done to improve efficiency, and whether the best use is being made of our resources; and to seek agreement upon ways of improving economic performance, competitive power, and efficiency, and . . . to increase the rate of sound growth."

The Council has a full-time staff, drawn partly from the Civil Service and partly from industry, the commercial world and elsewhere.

Chairman, The Chancellor of the Exchequer.

COUNCIL ON TRIBUNALS

6 Spring Gardens, Cockspur Street, S.W.1

[Whitehall: 8691]

The Council on Tribunals, with its Scottish Committee, was constituted in 1958 under the provisions of the Tribunals and Inquiries Act of that year to act as an advisory body in the field of administrative tribunals and statutory inquiries.

Its principal functions under the Tribunals and Inquiries Act are (a) to keep under review the constitution and working of the various tribunals which have been placed under its general supervision by the Act; (b) to report on particular matters relating to any tribunal which may be referred to it by the Lord Chancellor and the Secretary of State for Scotland; and (c) to report on matters relating to statutory inquiries which may be similarly referred to it or which the Council may determine to be of special importance. In addition, the Council must be consulted both about rules of procedure for statutory inquiries and before rules are made for any of the tribunals under its general supervision, and it may make general recommendations about appointments to membership of such tribunals. The numerous tribunals which have been placed under the Council's supervision are concerned with a wide variety of matters varying from agriculture and road traffic to independent schools and pensions. They include the National Assistance appeal tribunals, and the main National Health Service and National Insurance Tribunals, together with such tribunals as the Air Transport Licensing Board, the Lands Tribunal, the Mental Health Review Tribunals, the Performing Right Tribunal and the Transport Tribunal.

The Scottish Committee of the Council considers Scottish tribunals and matters relating only to Scotland.

The Members of the Council are appointed by the Lord Chancellor and the Secretary of State for Scotland. The Scottish Committee is composed partly of members of the Council designated by the Secretary of State for Scotland and partly of other persons appointed by him.

The Council submits an annual report on its proceedings and those of the Scottish Committee to the Lord Chancellor and the Secretary of State for Scotland, which must be laid before Parliament.

TRINITY HOUSE

[Royal: 6601]

Trinity House, the first General Lighthouse and Pilotage Authority in the Kingdom, was a body of importance when Henry VIII. granted the Institution its first charter in 1514, inter alia "for the relief, increase and augmentation of the Shipping of this Realm of England." Since that period the duty of erecting and maintaining lighthouses and other marks and signs of the sea has by Royal Charter and Acts of Parliament been entrusted to the Corporation of Trinity House, and until 1874 Masters of the Navy were examined by the Elder Brethren of the Corporation. In the present day, the principal duty of the Corporation of Trinity House, as a Public Department, is the administration of the Lighthouse, &c., Service of England and Wales with certain statutory jurisdiction in regard to lighthouses and other seamarks in Scotland, Ireland, the Channel Islands and Gibraltar, while the Corporation is also the chief Pilotage Authority in the United Kingdom, and in its capacity as a private corporation or guild it administers certain Charitable Trusts specifically dedicated to the relief of aged and distressed master mariners, their widows and spinster daughters. The Corporation controls some 60 lighthouses and 40 lightships, and maintains a fleet of 9 steam and motor vessels. The Active Elder Brethren of the Corporation also sit with the Judges of the Admiralty Division of the High Court of Justice to act as Nautical Assessors in Marine Causes tried in that Court. The Lighthouse Service of Trinity House is maintained out of the General Lighthouse Fund, this fund being provided by means of special dues called Light Dues levied on shipping using the ports of the United Kingdom. The accounts are submitted annually to Parliament.

COMMONWEALTH WAR GRAVES COMMISSION

32 Grosvenor Gardens, S.W.1

Wooburn House, Wooburn Green,
 High Wycombe, Bucks.
 [Bourne End: 594]

The Commonwealth War Graves Commission was incorporated by Royal Charter in 1917 under its then title "Imperial War Graves Commission"; its title was changed on April 1, 1960, by a Supplemental Royal Charter. The Commission's duties are to commemorate individually and in perpetuity each one of those, from whatever part of the Commonwealth they came, who fell in the two world wars of 1914-18 and 1939-45. More than one million graves are maintained in War Cemeteries, large and small, which have been constructed in nearly one hundred and fifty different countries throughout the world, and about 750,000 names are commemorated on memorials to those with no known grave. The funds of the Commission are derived from the seven Governments participating in their work—The United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India and Pakistan.

COMMISSIONS, ETC.

Foreign Compensation Commission

1 Princes Gate, S.W.7

The Commission was set up by the Foreign Compensation Act, 1950, to distribute funds paid by foreign governments as compensation for expropriated British property and other losses sustained by British nationals. The Commission has completed the final distribution of the funds contributed by Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria. Agreements with Hungary, Bulgaria, Poland and Roumania to create similar funds have been made, and the Commission is registering certain British claims in Czechoslovakia and the Baltic States and other States acquired by the Soviet Union. Distributions are being made on Polish State-guaranteed debts and nationalization claims as sufficient funds become available from Poland. Distribution of two sums of £75,000 allocated under the agreement with Poland in respect of pre-war commercial debts and pre-war banking debts, respectively, has been completed. A limited distribution is being made on Hungarian claims. The £27,500,000 compensation paid by the Government of the United Arab Republic under the financial agreement of Feb. 28, 1959, is being distributed by the Commission under Orders in Council which came into force, 1959 to 1961.

40-42 Queen Anne's Gate, Westminster, S.W.1

The National Trust was founded in 1895 by Miss Octavia Hill, Sir Robert Hunter and Canon Rawnsley, their object being to preserve as much as possible of the history and beauty of their country for its people. It has since become an organization incorporated by Act of Parliament to ensure the preservation of lands and buildings of historic interest or natural beauty for public access and benefit. It is independent of the State and relies mainly on the voluntary support of private individuals for working funds. The State, however, allows it certain tax exemptions. A further, and only recently instituted, branch of the Trust's work is the acquisition and preservation, with the co-operation of the Royal Horticultural Society, of gardens of national importance. It also has under its care bird sanctuaries and nature reserves, together with several hundred farms.

The National Trust now administers more than 300,000 acres of land in England, Wales and Northern Ireland; and in this area are over 1,000 properties. These properties have come into its hands mainly by gift or bequest; but since 1946 certain land and buildings accepted by the Treasury in lieu of death duties have been handed over to the Trust, the Treasury recompensing itself from the National Land Fund. The properties acquired by the National Trust before last year include the Ashridge Estate (Bucks. and Herts.); Cliveden (Bucks.); West Wycombe Park and village (Bucks.); Wicken Fen (Cambs.); Lyme Park (Cheshire); Cotehele House (Cornwall); Pentire Head (Cornwall); St. Michael's Mount (Cornwall); Trefice (Cornwall); Dove Dale (Derbys. & Staffs.); Arlington Court Estate (Devon); Hatfield Forest (Essex); Cbedworth Roman Villa (Glos.); Hidcote Manor Gdn. (Glos.); Knole (Kent); over 30,000 acres in the Lake District including the Buttermer Valley, Monk Coniston Estate, Scafell Pike and Troutbeck Park Farm; Tattershall Castle (Lincs.); Ousterley Park (Midxx.); Blickling Hall Estate (Norfolk); Farne Islands (Northumberland); Clumber Park (Notts.); Holnicote Estate (Somerset); Montacute House (Somerset); Flatford Mill (Suffolk); Box Hill (Surrey); Ham House (Surrey); Bodiam Castle (Sussex); Petworth House (Sussex); Charlecote Park (Warwicks.); Lacock Abbey and village (Wilts.); Stourhead Estate (Wilts.); Derwent Estate (Yorks. and Derbys.); Hardwick Hall (Derbys.); Bodnant Gardens (N. Wales); Powis Castle (Mont.); Castlecoole (N. Ireland); Hanbury Hall (Warwicks.); Lanhydrock (Cornwall); Tintinhull House (Somerset); Nymans Gardens (Sussex); Sbeffield Park Gardens (Sussex); Uppark (Sussex); Nostell Priory (Yorks.); Staunton Harold Church (Leics.); Penard Cliff (Glam.); Blundell's Old School (Devon); Castleward (N. Ireland).

Acquisitions last year include: the house and gardens of Trengwainton (Cornwall); Westhay Farm (Dorset); Dunstanburgh Castle and Links (Northumberland); the Giant's Causeway (Northern Ireland); and land at Pendower Beach (Cornwall); Duddon Valley, Eskdale and Windermere (Lake District) and Ynysgarn (Caernarvonshire).

THE CIVIC TRUST

79 Buckingham Palace Road, S.W.1

Founded in 1957, to promote high standards of architecture and civic planning in Great Britain and to encourage a wider interest in the appearance of our towns and villages. The Trust's income is provided by leading industrial and commercial companies and its funds and general policy are controlled by a board of trustees. Among its activities, the Trust, in co-operation with local authorities and traders, initiates schemes to brighten and tidy up streets all over Britain. With the help of volunteers it removes "eyesores" which mar the countryside. It obtains gifts of grown trees and replants them on urban sites. By conferences and exhibitions, it focuses attention on current problems of planning and architecture. It provides a centre from which some 400 local amenity societies can obtain advice and support. Whenever possible, it seeks to co-operate with existing organizations which are already working effectively in these fields.

Director, Col. K. Post, C.B.E.

THE CIVIC TRUST FOR THE NORTH WEST

Century House, St. Peter's Square,
Manchester 2.

Inaugurated on October 11, 1961, the Civic Trust for the North West is an independent non-profitmaking body. Its declared object is to make the great industrial, commercial and residential area centred on Manchester and Salford into an attractive, healthy and stimulating place in which to live and work. While the area has purposely not been closely defined, the Trust envisages working mainly in the industrial belt lying roughly between Preston and Macclesfield (but excluding Merseyside) and occupied by about three million people. Industry is heavily concentrated here in two cities, more than 40 towns and many villages.

The Civic Trust hopes to bring home to the people the realization that the area is one of ugliness and dirt and that much can be done even by individuals to put this right. The Trust proposes to support clean air and anti-litter drives; to illustrate by films, lectures and pamphlets attractive ways of painting and decorating houses and streets on a "help yourself" basis; to enlist the support of press, radio, and television; and to promote architectural competitions and awards. The Trust will support municipal projects in the area, where they fall in with the objects of the Trust and assist if required with the co-ordination of private development in official schemes. It also hopes to investigate and encourage improvement schemes for streets, squares or groups of houses, including redecoration of all the properties at the same time to fit an attractive overall plan; to encourage improvement of street signs, design of street furniture, and the planting of trees and gardens.

The Trust hopes to support and strengthen existing amenity societies and to promote the growth of new ones and finally to sponsor research into planning problems in the North West industrial area with the hope of it becoming the world's most efficient industrial concentration while at the same time paying regard to amenities, the Arts and social aspects. The income of the Civic Trust is drawn from subscriptions by important industrial and commercial firms in the area.

The Pilgrim Trust was founded in 1930 by the late Edward S. Harkness of New York, who placed in the hands of British trustees £2,000,000 for the benefit of Great Britain. Since then the Trust has been able to make substantial grants for the repair of ancient buildings, the preservation of historical records, the support of learned societies, the purchase of works of art and the assistance of social welfare schemes.

Since its foundation the Trust has made grants amounting to £3,776,438 and in 1961 the Trustees voted sums totalling £225,998. These grants were made under the following three heads:—

Preservation. £142,876

Art and Learning. . . £59,122

Social Welfare. £24,000

£10,000 each was voted to the National Trust, towards the restoration of the Stratford-on-Avon Canal, and to the National Trust for Scotland, for the preservation of ancient Fife burghs; £9,000 to the Oxford Preservation Trust to assist in the preservation of the rural character of the village of Wood Eaton; and £7,500 to the Curators of the Bodleian Library, Oxford, towards the reinstatement of the 17th-cent. woodwork in Selden End of Duke Humphrey's Library.

Other grants included the sum of £7,500 to provide the voluntary element in the cost of establishing one boys' club under the London Federation's scheme to provide clubs in 20 areas on the outskirts of London; and £5,000 each towards fabric repairs to St. George's Chapel, Windsor, and the surrounding precincts, re-casting and re-hanging the historic "Bow Bells" in St. Mary-le-Bow Church, and repairs to the fabric of Prior Park, Bath.

THE ARTS COUNCIL OF GREAT BRITAIN

4 St James's Square, S.W.1

The Arts Council of Great Britain was incorporated under Royal Charter on August 9, 1946,

"for the purpose of developing greater knowledge, understanding and practice of the fine arts exclusively, and in particular to increase the accessibility of the fine arts to the public . . . to improve the standard of execution of the fine arts and to advise and co-operate with . . . Government Departments, Local Authorities and other bodies on any matters concerned directly or indirectly with those objects. . . ."

The Members of the Council, who may not exceed 16 in number, are appointed by the Chancellor of the Exchequer after consultation with the Minister of Education and the Secretary of State for Scotland. They normally serve for a period of five years.

The Council receives an annual grant from the Treasury. For the year 1962-63 the amount was £2,190,000.

Chairman, The Lord Cottesloe, G.B.E., T.D.

Secretary-General, Sir William Emrys Williams, C.B.E.

COUNCIL OF INDUSTRIAL DESIGN

28 Haymarket, S.W.1

The Council of Industrial Design, with its Scottish Committee, was set up in December, 1944, by the President of the Board of Trade, "to promote . . . the improvement of design in the products of British Industry." For manufacturers, the Council provides advice on the application of design policy, and recommends designers from its Record of Designers. For retailers, it provides courses for buyers and salesmen on design appreciation, and organizes exhibitions in retail stores. For the public it provides selective exhibitions of well designed goods.

In April, 1956, the Council launched the Design Centre for British Industries, which occupies an 8,000 sq. ft. showroom at 28 Haymarket, S.W.1. In 1957 the Scottish Design Centre was established at 46 West George Street, Glasgow, C.2.

The Council maintains a selective, pictorial and sample record of well designed goods in current production known as Design Index, which is available for consultation at the Design Centre. The Council also maintains a photograph and slide library, press and information services and a lecture panel, and publishes a monthly journal Design.

Chairman, Sir Duncan Oppenheim.

Chairman of Scottish Committee, I. W. S. Wilson.

Director, Paul Reilly.

Chief Executive Scottish Committee, R. A. Clark, 46 West George Street, Glasgow, C.2.

LONDON COURT OF ARBITRATION

69-73 Cannon Street, E.C.4.

The London Court of Arbitration, formed in 1892, is an impartial body prepared to appoint arbitrators at the request of disputants to settle disputes which may, under the law of England, be submitted to arbitration. The Court is administered by members appointed by the Corporation of London and the London Chamber of Commerce.

The Court's Services are available to any person, firm, company or organization of any nationality. Parties in the British Commonwealth and in foreign countries often request the Court to appoint an arbitrator to settle their disputes.

Deputy Chairman, A. L. Stock.

THE BANK OF ENGLAND

Threadneedle Street, E.C.2

The Bank of England was incorporated in 1694 under Royal Charter. It is the banker of the Government on whose behalf it manages the Note Issue, the profits on which are paid to H.M. Treasury. It also manages the National Debt and administers the Exchange Control regulations. As central reserve bank of the country, the Bank keeps the accounts of British banks, who maintain with it a proportion of their cash resources, and of most overseas central banks; but it has gradually withdrawn from new commercial business.

As from March 1, 1946, the capital stock, amounting to £14,553,000, was transferred to a nominee of the Treasury (the Treasury Solicitor), under the provisions of the Bank of England Act, 1946, holders receiving in exchange 3 per cent. Treasury Stock, to such an amount as provided them with annual interest equal to the annual gross dividend of the previous 20 years, namely, 12 per cent.

1949, although token quantities were struck in 1950, 1951 and 1953. Minting was resumed in the autumn of 1961 and 39,702,000 were struck.

Numbers and face value of coins struck in 1961 were: Halfcrown, 25,887,897 (£3,235,987); Florin, 37,735,315 (£3,773,531); Shilling, 42,579,465 (£2,128,973); Sixpence, 111,284,384 (£2,782,110); Maundy Money, 4,624 (£48); Nickel-brass 3d., 41,102,400 (£513,780); Penny, 39,702,000 (£165,425). The total number of United Kingdom coins struck was 298,296,085 of a total value of £12,599,855.

The value of the coin issued from the Mint in any one year usually differs slightly from that of the coins struck. In 1961 the issue of cupro-nickel was £12,750,000, of which £1,500,000 went to replace withdrawn silver coins and the balance increased the volume in circulation to about £186,000,000. Although the farthing ceased to be legal tender on December 31, 1961, the number returned to the Mint during 1961 was only about 16,000,000: some 166,000,000 have not yet been received.

Coins in Circulation.—On January 1, 1962 a total of 6,873,300,000 coins of all denominations was estimated to be in circulation in the United Kingdom: Crown, 9,580,000; Halfcrown, 421,810,000; Florin, 451,510,000; Shilling, 938,930,000; Sixpence, 1,508,170,000; Silver 3d., 71,400,000; Nickel-brass 3d., 791,350,000; Penny, 1,512,740,000; Halfpenny, 1,005,840,000; Farthing, 166,970,000.

NOTES

Bank of England Notes.—Bank of England notes are issued for sums of 10s., £1 and £5. Notes of 10s. and £1 are legal tender in Great Britain and Northern Ireland for the payment of any amount; those of £5 are legal tender in England and Wales only. (See notes below on discontinued issues.) Change cannot be demanded for notes except from the Bank of England. Notes for £10, £20, £50, £100, £500 and £1,000 were issued until April 22, 1943. These ceased to be legal tender on May 1, 1945. But on February 28, 1962, notes of these values were outstanding to a total of £1,821,000—including 82 notes of £1,000.

The old series of £1 notes—those without the portrait of the Queen—ceased to be legal tender on May 28, 1962. The last of the old white £5 notes, dated up to September 20, 1956 were legal tender until March 13, 1961, when they were called in. Bank notes which are no longer legal tender are payable when presented at the head office of the Bank of England in London.

The note circulation is highest at the two peak spending periods of the year—around Christmas and August Bank Holiday. The record figure of £2,458,000,000 was reached on December 27, 1961: this was £41,000,000 higher than the previous peak figure of £2,417,000,000 reached on August 1, 1961. The circulation on August 1, 1962 was £2,389,000,000.

The new blue £5 note, introduced on February 21, 1957, is proving increasingly popular. On February 29, 1956 the value of £5 notes in circulation was 13.5 per cent. of the total. On February 28, 1962, the proportion was 43.4 per cent., compared with 47.4 per cent. for £1 notes and 4.5 per cent. for 10s. notes. On that date the values of these notes in circulation were: 10s., £103,000,000; £1, £1,091,000,000; £5, £998,000,000.

Currency Notes.—Under the provisions of the Currency and Bank Notes Act, 1928, Currency Notes (popularly known as Treasury Notes) of the value of 10s. and £1 were replaced by the issue of Bank of England notes of the same denominations as from November 22, 1928.

Gold Coin.—Gold ceased to circulate during the First World War. Under Exchange Control laws it is now illegal for a resident in the U.K. to hold gold coin other than collectors' pieces. The English sovereign, however, is still used as currency in certain Middle East countries and to meet foreign demand the Royal Mint during the years 1957–59 struck 12,000,000 sovereigns.

Silver.—Prior to 1920 our silver coins were struck from standard silver—an alloy of silver 925 parts and alloy 75 parts. In 1920 the proportion of silver was reduced to 500 parts and that of alloy increased to 500 parts. From January 1, 1947 all 'silver' coins, except Maundy money, have been struck from cupro-nickel—an alloy of copper 75 parts and nickel 25 parts. Maundy coins since 1947 have been struck from standard silver, i.e. 92½ per cent. pure silver.

Nickel-brass is an alloy of copper 79 parts, zinc 20 parts and nickel 1 part.

Bronze, introduced in 1860 to replace copper, is an alloy of copper 97 parts, zinc 2½ parts and tin ½ part. These proportions are subject to slight variation.

The 'Remedy' is the amount of variation from standard permitted in weight and fineness of coins when first issued from the Mint.

The legal weight of a penny is one-third and of a halfpenny one-fifth of an ounce avoirdupois. The halfpenny is one inch in diameter.

Legal tender of coin.—Gold, dated 1838 onwards, if of or above least current weight, is legal tender to any amount. Silver, dated 1816 onwards, and cupro-nickel are legal tender for sums up to £2, nickel-brass 3d. up to two shillings and bronze up to one shilling.

Work of the Royal Mint in 1961.—In 1961 the Royal Mint struck 836,337,756 coins, the highest figure on record, exceeding by 127,000,000 coins, or 18 per cent., the previous record figure of 709,650,207 in 1959. Mintings for overseas governments during 1961 were particularly heavy, amounting to 538,041,671. Coins were struck in 77 different denominations for 25 Commonwealth and foreign governments, which included for the first time those of Lebanon and the Dominican Republic. Work was continued during the year on the orders from Uruguay for 200,000,000 coins and from Nigeria for 1,000,000,000. Gold coins were struck for Iceland and silver 20 drachmae pieces for Greece. Other countries for which coinages were executed included Burma, Ceylon, East Africa, Eire, Fiji, Hong Kong, Iceland, Jordan, Kuwait, Libya, Muscat, New Zealand and Viet Nam.

For the United Kingdom 217,487,061 cupro-nickel coins were struck and about half of these—111,284,384—were sixpences. For the first year since the bronze coinage was introduced in 1860 not a single halfpenny left the presses in 1961. Owing to a surplus of pence in circulation, their minting for general circulation was suspended in

In the middle of 1939 United Kingdom net external liabilities amounted to rather more than £500 million. During the war years overseas sterling holdings rose extremely fast, reaching nearly £3,600 million at the end of 1945. Of this total a large proportion represented obligations to other countries arising from the exigencies of war rather than their working balances or normal reserves voluntarily held in London. The trends in the sterling holdings of different regions since the war are shown in the following table.

The existence of currency and many other funds in sterling is due to the fact that the colonies do not possess developed local capital markets and therefore hold in London the very large funds which governments require for many and diverse purposes. Colonial currencies are very largely backed by sterling securities. The steadily increasing circulations which have accompanied rising populations, the increased use of money and increasing external incomes have thus produced an almost automatic increase in the Currency Boards' investments in United Kingdom and other government securities. Special funds, particularly those of savings banks, have also risen steadily, as have general government funds for planned development expenditures and for current working balances. The other funds, which are held with United Kingdom banks, represent the general banking assets of commercial banks operating in the colonies and the known liquid funds of companies and individuals resident there, held in London.

The underlying reason for the growth of the total holdings was the expansion of colonial economies at a time of rising prices and, in particular, the unprecedentedly high level of export earnings in the years following the outbreak of the Korean War. More recently, the colonial territories have been in deficit on current account but as there has also been a large capital inflow there has been little change in the general level of sterling holdings.

Independent sterling area holdings.—It is the normal practice of central banks in independent sterling area countries to hold the bulk of their foreign exchange reserves in sterling. Moreover, they are often required by statute to hold certain minimum reserves in foreign exchange (which may include sterling) against local currency issues. A large proportion of these statutory reserves is in practice held in sterling.

Much of the fall in the holdings of independent sterling area countries took place in the first few years after the war and represented the reduction of surplus balances built up during the war years. During the last few years trends in individual countries have been diverse. India's holding has recently been run down further to finance their five-year development plans and the holdings of Australia and New Zealand have fluctuated widely, largely under the influence of changes in the prices of their exports of primary products and their import policies. On the other hand, the balances of the middle east sterling area countries have increased considerably.

Non-sterling countries.—After allowance is made for special holdings by the German authorities, the holdings of the O.E.C.D. countries now represent sterling held by residents of these countries for commercial and financial reasons. Their size varies with the scale of the holders' business in sterling and the attractions of London as a financial centre in which to hold funds. The same generalization applies to the small net balances of sterling held by the dollar area countries. The very large fall in the holdings of other non-sterling countries since the war was due to the fact that several of these countries had accumulated large surpluses of sterling well beyond their normal commercial requirements during the war period. Egypt was an outstanding example, and in this and some other cases the funds were transferred to special or "hocked" accounts and provisions made for regular annual releases. Apart from these special accumulations, which have now been mainly used up, most of the countries in this group (including countries in the far east, middle east, western hemispheres and Soviet bloc) only hold sterling funds for financing foreign trade, particularly with sterling area countries.

EXAMPLE 1.—What is the present value of a Lease having 37 years to run of the net annual value of £100, interest being reckoned at 4 per cent.? ANSWER:—19.14 years' purchase, or £1,914.

EXAMPLE 2.—A man, aged 55, in receipt of a pension or annuity of £100 a year net, wishes to commute that for a present payment, interest being reckoned at 5 per cent. How much will he receive? ANSWER:—Looking at the Table of Expectation of Life (See Index), it will be seen that the expectation for age 50 is about 23 years; and from the above table an annuity certain for 23 years interest at 5 per cent., is worth 13.49 years purchase. The present payment required would therefore be £1,349 approximately.

Note to Example 2.—This method is only approximate. The values of annuities which depend on lives of a given present age, when properly calculated according to a given mortality table and a given rate of interest, are always somewhat less than those given by the method used in this Example.

NOTE ON CIVIL COURTS.—Smaller civil actions are heard locally in County Courts which, with some exceptions, deal with all common law cases where the sum involved is less than £400. Jurisdiction given by special statutes is of the widest range and cases under such statutes are dealt with irrespective of the amount involved. County Courts are presided over by a paid Judge sitting alone. The county court for the City of London is the Mayor's and City of London Court, which deals with small cases and has also jurisdiction unlimited in amount. Bankruptcy cases arising in London are dealt with in the London Bankruptcy Court, Carey Street, W.C.2; those arising out of London are dealt with in the county courts.

Actions in the High Court are distributed among the several Divisions of the High Court according to their nature. Certain classes of actions, e.g., those dealing with the administration of estates of deceased persons, partnerships, trusts and mortgages, specific performance of contracts between vendors and purchasers of real estates, including contracts for leases, partition or sale of real estates, wardship of infants and the care of infants, estates, and company and bankruptcy cases, are usually commenced in the Chancery Division. The Queen's Bench Division deals with most ordinary civil cases. Actions may be tried in London or the Assizes. The Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Division has jurisdiction in matters concerning wills, divorces, and Admiralty, prize and shipping cases.

COUNTY COURTS

In 1961 the total number of proceedings in County Courts of England and Wales (including the Mayor's and City of London Court) was 1,699,430 (as against 1,508,048 for the year 1960). The number of debtors imprisoned under the Debtors Act, 1869, was 5,675 (1960) and 6,323 (1961) and of the last number 4,413 served the full terms of imprisonment for "Contempt of Court" in failing to comply with the order for payment.

CROWN COURTS

The Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1956, authorized the setting up of two new courts, known as the Crown Court of Liverpool and the Crown Court of Manchester. These Courts took over the jurisdiction of the former Courts of Quarter Session for Liverpool and Manchester and the criminal jurisdiction of the Assize Courts for the West Derby and Salford Divisions of Lancashire. The Courts are normally presided over by the Recorders of Liverpool and Manchester who have power to refer assize cases for trial by a judge of the High Court.

ROYAL MARINES

The Corps of Royal Marines (instituted 1664) is trained for service on sea and land. Duties at sea include the provision of gun crews, emergency landing parties and guards. The Corps also provides minor landing craft crews, special boat sections (frogmen) and other detachments required for amphibious operations. There are five commandos, three of which are at present stationed abroad. The Corps provides bands for H.M. ships and R.N. and R.M. shore establishments. Estimated strength of the Royal Marines in 1962-1963, 9,200 all ranks.

SERVICE PAY AND PENSIONS

Pay and Pensions of the Armed Forces are reviewed regularly at intervals of not more than two years, taking into account movements in civilian earnings in a range of occupations. Increases of pay effective in two stages from April 1, 1962, and April 1, 1963, were announced in March, 1962. The following tables show the rates of pay with effect from April 1, 1963, and of retirement benefits effective from April 1, 1962. In general the rates shown below are for United Kingdom-based regulars of the three Services; where Army ranks only are shown, rates apply equally to equivalent ranks in the other Services. Full details appear in Service Pay and Pensions (Cmd. 1666, 1962).

Increases 1962-63

On each of the dates above, annual increases for male officers on normal rates apply to the following Army ranks (and equivalent ranks in the other Services): Second-Lieutenant/Lieut., £27 7s. 6d.; Captain, £36 10s.; Major, £45 12s. 6d.; Lieutenant-Colonel, £54 15s.; Colonel, £91 5s.; Brigadier and Major-General, £127 15s., and increases for the majority of regular ratings, soldiers and airmen in the following ranges of weekly amounts: Private, 5s. 3d. to 12s. 3d.; Lance-Corporal, 7s. to 14s.; Corporal, 10s. 6d. to 17s. 6d.; Sergeant, 12s. 3d. to 21s.; Staff Sergeant/Warrant Officer Class II, 14s. to 22s. 6d.; and Warrant Officer Class I, 15s. 9d. to 24s. 6d.

Women's rates of pay were also increased to maintain the ratio of approximately 85 per cent. of the equivalent men's rates.

THE TERRITORIAL ARMY

The Territorial Army has now reverted to its traditional all volunteer status and consists of both men and women. National Service men on completion of their two years with the Regular Army continue to have their 3½ years' reserve liability with the Territorial Army, but compulsory part-time training for them has been suspended.

The rôle of the Territorial Army is to form a reserve of trained and disciplined manpower in the country, trained to fight in any emergency.

The Territorial Army is organised on a divisional/district basis. It has centres in towns and villages all over the country. Each unit carries out 15 days training in camp annually. During the remainder of the year units train in the evenings and at weekends.

The Territorial Army Emergency Reserve (the "Ever Readies") is a special force of volunteers, raised from within the Territorial Army, who will accept a pre-proclamation liability and may in times of tension be called upon, for a period not exceeding 6 months in any one year, to serve anywhere in the world and bring Regular Army units temporarily up to war strength.

THE ARMY EMERGENCY RESERVE

Like the Territorial Army the Army Emergency Reserve consists of volunteers (men and women) and National Service men who are allotted to units but do no part-time training. Its rôle is to provide units and individuals required overseas in peace-time emergencies, and to provide units and individuals to complete the mobilization order of battle of the Army on the outbreak of war. The majority of units are of a specialist nature. A.E.R. training is 15 days annually. One category of the A.E.R., which has a pre-proclamation liability for service overseas when warlike operations are in preparation or in progress, carries out some training in the evenings or at weekends.

NAVY, ARMY AND AIR FORCE RESERVES ACT, 1959

From June 30, 1959, men who served between September 1939 and December 31, 1948, and were generally known as "Z" Reservists (from 1954, R.N. and R.M. Emergency Reservists or Army General Reservists Group "P") and R.A.F. "G" Reservists, ceased to have any further liability for service. The number of men affected by the Act is nearly 3,000,000 and the Minister of Defence hoped that many of them would volunteer for the Civil Defence Service or for the Royal Naval Reserve, the Royal Marine Forces Volunteer Reserve, R.N. Minewatching Service, The Territorial Army, Army Emergency Reserve, Royal Auxiliary Air Force or the Royal Observer Corps, where they would be welcomed.

National Servicemen and volunteers joining the Forces after 1948, on completion of the normal period of whole or part-time service become Royal Naval Special Reservists, Army General Reservists Group "N" or R.A.F. Reservists Class "G", with liability to recall in a grave national emergency until June 30, 1964. The Act does not affect the position of men in the other reserves.

Officers whose service is similar in date to the groups above are similarly affected.

RELATIVE RANK—SEA, LAND AND AIR

Officers of the Royal Navy, The Army, and The Royal Air Force rank with one another according to Seniority or Date of Appointment, as shown in the following table. Recognized abbreviations are shown in brackets. Comparable ranks in the Women's Royal Naval Service and Women's Royal Air Force appear in italics. Commissioned ranks of the Women's Royal Army Corps are named as for the Army, the Director holding the rank of Brigadier.

NAVY, ARMY AND AIR FORCE INSTITUTES

Imperial Court, Kennington Lane, S.E.11.
[Reliance: 1200]

Navy, Army and Air Force Institutes, known to the Services as NAAFI, is H.M. Forces' official trading organisation. In addition to the provision of clubs and canteens at home and overseas and in H.M. Ships, NAAFI is responsible for the provision of a large part of the items required for the messing of H.M. Forces. Registered under the Companies Act as an Association not for profit, NAAFI exists for the exclusive benefit of the serving element of H.M. Forces.

For the year ended Oct. 28, 1961, rebate and discount amounting to £2,300,793 were paid to the Services. Extra rebate totalling £160,000 was also placed at the disposal of the Service Ministries for the welfare of the Forces.

THE UNION JACK CLUB

Waterloo Road, S.E.1. Tel.: Waterloo 6401.

This is one of our great National Institutions where Sailors, Soldiers and Airmen can go when on leave or passing through London; a place where they may obtain at moderate charges good meals and comfortable bedrooms and where they find the usual amenities of a club, including Library and Writing Room, Billiards Room, Television, Baths, Barber's Shop, and also a Club Shop in which articles of everyday use and almost everything that Service men require may be purchased. It is open throughout the day and night and has a total accommodation of 962 beds.

The Union Jack Club was erected by public subscription as a National Memorial to those who had fallen in the South African War, and other campaigns, and was opened in 1907. Membership is open to those below the rank of Officer who are serving on the Active List of the Regular Forces, honorary membership being extended to the Colonial Permanent Forces and to the Navies, Armies and Air Forces of Foreign Powers visiting England. A limited number of ex-Service personnel below commissioned rank may also be elected members.

THE UNION JACK FAMILIES CLUB

Exton Street, Waterloo Road, S.E.1.

Warden: Miss L. V. Byers.

This Club was established in 1913, largely as a result of grants made by the South African Garrison Institutes, and provides board and temporary accommodation at moderate rates for the wives and children (with or without their husbands and fathers) of members and ex-members of the Royal Navy, Army and Royal Air Force, below commissioned rank.

THE UNION JACK WOMEN'S SERVICES CLUB

Exton Street, Waterloo Rd., S.E.1. (Opened October, 1952. Adjoins the Families Club.)

All serving W.R.N.S., Q.A.R.A.N.C., W.R.A.C., and W.R.A.F. below commissioned rank are members of this Club which has 44 beds and all facilities of a residential club.

THE METEOROLOGICAL OFFICE

London Road, Bracknell, Berks.

[Bracknell: 2420]

The Meteorological Office is the State Meteorological Service. It forms part of the Air Ministry, the Director-General being responsible to the Secretary of State for Air through the Permanent Under-Secretary of State.

Except for the common services provided by other Government Departments as part of their normal function, the cost of the Meteorological Office is born by Air Votes.

The gross annual expenditure by the Exchequer, including that on the common services, is of the order of £5,500,000. Of the expenditure chargeable to Air Votes, about £3,500,000 represents expenditure associated with staff and £1,500,000 expenditure on stores, communications and miscellaneous services. Of the total expenditure, over £1,000,000 is recovered from other Government Departments and outside bodies in respect of special services rendered, sales of meteorological equipment, etc.

THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND

THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND is Presbyterian in constitution, and is governed by Kirk Sessions, Presbyteries, Synods, and the General Assembly, which consists of both clerical and lay representatives from each of the Presbyteries. It is presided over by a Moderator (chosen annually by the Assembly), to whom Her Majesty the Queen has granted precedence in Scotland, during his term of office, next after the Lord Chancellor of Great Britain. The Sovereign is represented by a Lord High Commissioner (appointed each year by the Crown), who receives the sum of £4,000 towards his expenses. The country, for Church purposes, was, before the union of the Church of Scotland with the United Free Church of Scotland, which was effected at a joint meeting of the General Assemblies of both Churches on October 2, 1929, divided into 16 Synods and 65 Presbyteries, and there were about 2,600 ministers and licentiates engaged in ministerial and other work. There have since been added: (1) The Presbytery of England and (2) The Presbyteries of (a) Northern Europe, (b) Southern Europe, (c) Spain and Portugal, (d) a number of Indian and Colonial Presbyteries, making 67 in all. The figures at Dec. 31, 1961, are:—

Congregations, 2,093; total membership 1,292,617; Sunday Schools, 2,771, with 297,192 scholars and 40,735 teachers. In 19 Foreign Mission fields, there are 265 European missionaries (and in addition many missionaries' wives, most of whom are doing mission work in the various fields) and over 15,000 evangelists and teachers, including in both cases those of the Women's Foreign Mission.

In 1560 the Scots Parliament abolished the jurisdiction of the Pope, proscribed the Mass, and ratified a Confession of Faith drawn up by John Knox and others. In all essentials the articles of the ancient creeds of the Church were adhered to. Ceremonies were declared to be temporary in their nature, and should be altered when they began to foster superstition. Presbytery was settled in 1590. The restoration of the rights of the Bishops, civil and ecclesiastical, was, however, sanctioned by the General Assembly of 1610, and three Scottish Bishops were in that year consecrated in London. Further innovations by King James VI. alarmed the people, and the attempt of Charles I. to impose on the Church a Book of Canons and a Liturgy was met by the National Covenant and the restoration of Presbyterian forms, which culminated in the Westminster Confession of Faith in 1646. At the Restoration the Church again became Episcopal, but in 1690 the Scottish Parliament re-established Presbyterianism. By the Treaty of Union between England and Scotland (ratified by the English Parliament 6 Anne c. 11.) the Church of Scotland was secured in its Presbyterian form of government, and the very first official act of a sovereign of the British Empire on his or her accession is to take an oath to maintain inviolably this settlement. In 1921 Parliament passed the Church of Scotland Act, 1921, to declare the lawfulness of certain Articles declaratory of the constitution of the Church of Scotland. These Articles were framed with a view to facilitating the union of other Churches with the Church of Scotland. A committee, appointed by the Secretary for Scotland, enquired into the question of endowments, following upon which the Church of Scotland (Property and Endowments) Bill was introduced and was passed into law (15 and 16 Geo. V. c. 33) in 1925. The primary purpose of this legislative measure was to transfer to and vest in the Church of Scotland General Trustees, incorporated under the Church of Scotland (General Trustees) Order Confirmation Act, 1921, the whole properties and endowments belonging to the Church as it then existed, for behoof the latter. Further legislation with reference to these was embodied in the Church of Scotland Trust Order Confirmation Act, 1932, and The Church of Scotland (Property and Endowments) Amendment Act, 1933.

The total amount of Christian Liberty received by Parishes and Charges in 1961 was £5,032,169.

Principal Clerk, Rev. J. B. Longmuir, T.D., M.A., B.L.

Solicitor of the Church, G. Mercer Robertson, S.S.C.

Parliamentary Solicitor, H. L. P. Myles (London).

General Treasurer, Hay Downie, C.A.

Church Office, 121 George Street, Edinburgh 2.

Other Presbyterian Churches

(1) The Presbyterian Church in Ireland.—The largest of the Presbyterian churches in Ireland consists of 21 presbyteries, 569 ministers, 560 congregations, with 138,596 communicants, 127,013 families and 7,759 Sabbath-school teachers. During the 12 months ended Dec. 31, 1961, this branch contributed by congregational effort £223,879 for religious, charitable, and missionary purposes. The total income for the period for all purposes was £1,483,251—Moderator (1962-63), Rt. Rev. J. H. Davey, B.A., D.D. General Sec., Rev. A. J. Gailey,

B.A., D.D., Church House, Belfast.

(2) The Presbyterian Church of England has 15 presbyteries, 318 congregations, 16 preaching stations, 71,100 members, and 8,441 office-bearers. It has a Theological College (Westminster College, Cambridge), and supports 27 missionaries abroad, including 12 women. In 1961 the amount raised for all purposes was £786,882. Moderator (1962-63), Rt. Rev. I. R. N. Miller, M.A. Gen. Sec., Rev. A. L. Macarthur, M.A., M.Litt., Church House, 86 Tavistock Place, W.C.1.

GENERAL SYNOD

Consisting of House of Bishops (14) and House of Representatives (viz., 216 clerical and 432 lay).

Honorary Secretaries, Ven. R. G. F. Jenkins, B.D., Very Rev. C. I. Peacocke, M.A.;

M. F. E. Dobbin; W. A. W. Sheldon, T.D.

Chief Officer and Secretary to the REPRESENTATIVE CHURCH BODY (INCORPORATED 1870), D. W. Pratt.

52 St. Stephen's Green E., Dublin; Deputy Chief Officer and Accountant, D. M. Hudson.

Asst. Sec., E. Taylor.

By the Act of Union, 1800, the Church of Ireland was united with the Church of England, the Sovereign, as one of its members, being supreme governor on earth. By the Act of 1869 this union was severed, and on Jan. 1, 1871, the Church of Ireland resumed her independent position. The Act of 1869 not only disestablished the Irish Church, but also took away her endowments, nothing being left but the right to the life services of the annuitant Bishops and Clergy (the annuities provided were commuted for a capital sum), the right to claim churches in use for divine service, the right to buy the See and Glebe Houses (with garden and curtilage), and £500,000 in lieu of private endowments.

The supreme governing body of the Church of Ireland is the GENERAL SYNOD, which meets annually.

Subject to the GENERAL SYNOD are 19 Diocesan Synods, which are assisted by smaller elected bodies called Diocesan Councils.

The Bishop of the Diocese was formerly chosen by the clerical and lay members of the Diocesan Synod, but since Dec. 1, 1959, has been chosen by an Electoral College. The Primate is chosen by the House of Bishops from amongst their own number.

The incumbent of the Parish is appointed by a Board of Nomination, consisting of 7 persons, viz. :— The Bishop, 3 diocesan nominators (2 clerical and 1 lay) appointed by the Diocesan Synod, and 3 parochial nominators (lay) appointed by the registered vestrymen of the parish.

The financial trustees of the Church are the REPRESENTATIVE BODY, composed of the Archbishops and Bishops, 14 clergymen and 28 laymen, chosen by the Diocesan Synods, with 14 co-opted members (clerical or lay). This body holds the property of the Church, and administers its funds, subject to the General Synod.

The first property it held was the capital sum £7,581,075, representing the life annuities of the Bishops and Clergy paid over as commutation money by the Church Commissioners, and also £500,000 compensation for private endowments. The funds, however, in the custody of the Representative Body amount in all to £15,309,935. Made up of Parochial Sustentation £10,393,355. General Synod Funds £938,753. Miscellaneous purposes £3,977,727.

Since 1869 members of the Church have paid in to the Representative Body a total sum of £17,117,384. The interest of the Diocesan and Parochial Sustentation and other Funds is approximately £511,120.

THE METHODIST CHURCH

UNDER the general designation of METHODISTS are included all those religious bodies which owe their existence, directly or indirectly, to the efforts of the Revd. John Wesley (born June 17, 1703; died March 2, 1791) and his brother, Revd. Charles Wesley (born Dec. 18, 1707; died March 29, 1788).

THE METHODIST CHURCH

On September 20, 1932, the Wesleyan Methodist Church, the Primitive Methodist Church and the United Methodist Church, were united and became "The Methodist Church."

The Methodist Church is governed primarily by the Conference, secondarily by the District Synods (held in September and May), consisting of all the ministers and of selected laymen in each district, over which a chairman is appointed by the Conference; and thirdly by circuit quarterly meeting of the ministers and lay officers of each circuit. The authority of both Synods and Quarterly Meetings is subordinate to the Conference, which has the supreme legislative and judicial power in Methodism.

Secretary of the Conference, Rev. E. W. Baker, M.A., D.D., Ph.D., 1 Central Buildings, Westminster, S.W.1.

President Designate (1963-4), Rev. F. Greeves, M.A.
Vice-President Designate (1963-4), D. F. Nash.

Statistics.—In 1961 in association with the Conference in Great Britain (at home and abroad) there were 5,195 Ministers, 36,000 Local Preachers, 1,105,734 Members and Probationers, 17,269 Churches, 13,041 Sunday Schools, 117,445 Sunday School Officers and Teachers, and 668,119 Sunday Scholars.

The World Methodist Council, founded 1881, reorganized 1951, associates Methodism throughout the world in 82 countries. The statistics of world Methodism are: churches and preaching places, 99,500; ministers, 66,500; local preachers, 83,000; Sunday schools, 76,400; officers and teachers, 825,000; scholars, 8,200,000; recorded membership, 19,100,000.

The Methodist Church was founded in 1739 by the two brothers Wesley and rapidly spread throughout the British Isles and to America before 1770. The Methodist Church in Great Britain was united in 1932 by the fusion of the Wesleyan Methodist Church which was the original section, the Primitive Methodist Church, which arose through the evangelists Hugh Bourne and William Clowes in 1810, and the United Methodist Church, itself a fusion in 1907 of the Methodist New Connexion which dated from 1797, the Bible Christian Methodist Church, which dates from 1815 and the United Methodist Free Churches which originated in controversies in 1828 and 1849. The Methodist Church of America was formed by a union of three great Methodist denominations in 1939. Australasia, New Zealand and South Africa are separate autonomous Methodist Churches, and other branches throughout the world have originated from the Methodist Church either in Great Britain or in America.

METHODIST CHURCH IN IRELAND

The Methodist Church in Ireland has 249 Ministers, 350 Lay Preachers, 31,763 Adult and 17,929 Junior Members, 1,939 Sunday School Teachers and 13,938 Scholars.

President (1962-3), Rev. J. Wisheart.

Secretary, Rev. R. D. E. Gallagher, M.A., B.D., The Grosvenor Hall, Belfast, 12.

THE UNITED CHURCH OF CANADA

The United Church of Canada is the result of the union (1925) of Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational Churches in Canada. Sec. of General Council, Rev. Ernest E. Long, B.A., D.D., The United Church House, 85 St. Clair E., Toronto.

INDEPENDENT METHODISTS

Independent Methodists.—This body is Congregational in its organization, with an unpaid Ministry. Its first Conference was held in 1805. In 1962 there were in Great Britain 290 Ministers, 8,242 Members, 152 Chapels and 9,642 Sunday School Scholars. Secretary, W. Drummond Brown, 21 Ashley Drive, Swintou, Lancs.

WESLEYAN REFORM UNION

This Union is Methodist in doctrine, Congregational in government, with, if any church desires it, a paid ministry. It is the remnant of the original Reformers expelled from Wesleyan Methodism in 1849. The adherents are mainly in the Midland and Northern counties. In 1962 there were in Great Britain 24 Ministers, 280 Lay Preachers, 5,850 Members, 160 Chapels and 8,000 Sunday Scholars. —President (1962-3), Rev. F. C. Wilson, High Wycombe. General Secretary and Connexional Editor, Rev. A. Halladay, Wesleyan Reform Church House, 123 Queen Street, Sheffield, 1.

THE CALVINISTIC METHODIST CHURCH OF WALES

THE CALVINISTIC METHODIST OR PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF WALES is the only Church of purely Welsh origin, and embraces a very large section of the Welsh-speaking population. Its form of government being Presbyterian, it is a constituent of the Pan-Presbyterian Council or Alliance. It is also a member of the British Council of Churches and the World Council of Churches. It has foreign missions in Assam and India.

In 1960 the body numbered—chapels and other buildings 1,412; ministers in pastoral charge, 487; elders, 7,189; communicants 136,716; Sunday-school teachers and officers 11,123; Sunday-school scholars, 73,664. Contributions for various religious purposes (including the ministry), £900,615.

One of the features of the Welsh churches is the Sunday-school, which is attended by adults as well as children.

The Eastern Association, which now includes nine of the English Presbyteries, was formed in 1947 and has 352 chapels and 26,746 communicants.

On 18 July, 1933, the Calvinistic Methodist or Presbyterian Church of Wales Act, 1933, received the Royal Assent. By this measure the autonomy of the Church in matters spiritual and the establishment of a Properties Board have been secured.

The Welsh Mission in Assam and East Pakistan numbers over 2,000 members.

Moderators of Associations (1962-63)—South Wales, Rev. Principal W. R. Williams, M.A., Aberystwyth; North Wales, Rev. C. O. Lewis, Llanfair P.G., Anglesey; The East, Rev. F. T. Davies, Swansea.

Moderator of General Assembly (1962-63), Rev. R. M. Roberts, B.A., B.D., Montgomery.

Chief Secretary, Rev. R. B. Owen, B.A., The Manse, Plas Avenue, Prestatyn, Flint.

THE INDEPENDENTS, or CONGREGATIONALISTS, are the most ancient community of Dissenters. In 1831 the majority of their churches united to form the Congregational Union of England and Wales, incorporated in 1902, and in 1920 nine provinces were formed, each with a Moderator. There are 51 county and other Associations in the British Isles, with 2,911 churches and preaching stations with 1,794 ministers and 206,830 members in England and Wales. Chairman of the Congregational Union of England and Wales (1962-63), Rev. John Huxtable, B.A. Secretary, Rev. H. S. Stanley, M.A. Office and Publication Department, Memorial Hall, Farrington Street, E.C.4.

The Countess of Huntingdon's Connexion, with 37 chapels and mission stations, is governed by nine trustees assisted by an annual conference of ministers and delegates. Most of the churches are affiliated with the Congregational Union. Secretary, B. Touch. Offices, 73 Selsea Avenue, Herne Bay, Kent.

Other Religious Denominations.

The General Assembly of Unitarian and Free Christian Churches has about 243 ministers, 330 chapels and other places of worship in Great Britain and Ireland. Gen. Sec., Rev. John Kieilty, Essex Hall, Essex Street, W.C.2.

The Salvation Army, first known as the Christian Mission, was founded by William Booth, in the East End of London in 1865. In 1878 it took its present name and adopted a quasi-military method of government. Since then it has become established in all parts of the world. The head of the denomination, known as the General, is elected by a High Council consisting of all the Commissioners of the Army. In 1961 there were, in Great Britain, 1,049 Corps (Churches), 2,793 Officers engaged in evangelistic work and 41,500 Local Officers (lay workers). The latest statistics for the world (1961) are 16,623 Corps and 26,123 Officers. General, Wilfred Kitching (elected May 11, 1954).

International Headquarters:—113 Queen Victoria Street, E.C.4.

The Brethren number about 80,000, of whom five-eighths belong to the "Open" body. The Society of Friends (Quakers) consists of 21,170 members in Great Britain, and has 446 places of

THE CONGREGATIONAL UNION OF SCOTLAND. In 1795 James and Robert Haldane left the Church of Scotland and the churches which they founded formed the Congregational Union in 1812, which in 1896 united with the Evangelical Union (founded in 1843 by James Morison). There are 144 Churches of the Congregational Union of Scotland with a membership of 33,221. Of the 160 Ministers, 118 are Pastors. President, Rev. J. L. Proudfoot, M.A., B.D., Kirkcaldy. Secretary, Rev. J. T. George, 217 West George Street, Glasgow, C.2.

The BAPTISTS have over 23,000,000 members in all countries. Like the Congregationalists, they are for the most part grouped in associations of churches, and the majority of these belong to the Baptist Union, which was formed in 1813. In the British Isles there were, in 1961, 2,068 pastors and deaconesses. The members numbered 313,885, young people (14-20), 54,961 and children under 14, 234,453. President of the Baptist Union (1962-63), Rev. W. D. Jackson, B.A. Secretary, Rev. E. A. worship (Recording Clerk, Stephen J. Thorne). The total number in the world is about 160,000 (110,000 are in U.S.A. and Canada). Central Offices (Great Britain), Friends House, Euston Road, N.W.1. (Ireland), 6 Eustace Street, Dublin. The Oxford Group ("Moral Re-Armament"), Hqrs., 4 Hays Mews, Berkeley Square, W.1. The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, U.S.A. (District Manager, Committees on Publication for Great Britain and Ireland, 30 Norfolk Street, Strand, W.C.2), has 331 branch churches and societies in Great Britain and Ireland. The Moravian Church, 5 Muswell Hill, N.10, has in the U.K. 40 congregations and preaching stations, with 2,998 communicants. The Free Church of England (otherwise called The Reformed Episcopal Church) has 43 churches in England, Gen. Sec., Rt. Rev. W. Rodgers, 3 Langdale Road, Wallasey, Cheshire. The Seventh Day Adventists (Hqrs., Stanborough Park, Watford, Herts.), have 115 organized churches, 40 companies and 9,561 members in the British Isles. At Woking, Surrey, is the Shah Jehan Mosque for Moslems, built in 1889. There are also Mosques at Southfield, S.W.18, Commercial Road E.1, Birmingham, Manchester, Cardiff, South Shields, Coventry and Glasgow.

THE JEWS

It is estimated that about 450,000 Jews are resident in the British Isles, some 280,000 being domiciled in Greater London. Of the total number in Great Britain about 90 per cent. are described as adhering to orthodox views.

The Board of Deputies of British Jews, established in 1760, is the representative body of British Jewry and is recognized by H.M. Government. The basis of representation is primarily synagogal, but secular organizations are now also represented. It is a deliberative body and its objects are to watch over the interests of British Jewry, to protect Jews against any disability which they may suffer by reason of their creed and to take such action as may be conducive to their welfare.

President of the Board of Deputies (Woburn House, Upper Woburn Place, W.C.1), Sir Barnett Janner, M.P. Secretary, A. G. Brotman. CHIEF RABBI—The Very Rev. Dr. Israel Brodie, born 1895, appointed 1948.

Secretary, Michael Wallach, Office, 85 Hamilton Terrace, N.W.8.

The Beth Din (Court of Judgment) is a rabbinic body consisting of Dayanim (Assessors) and the Chief Rabbi, who is President of the Court. The Court arbitrates when requested in cases between Jew and Jew and gives decisions on religious questions. The decisions are based on Jewish Law and practice and do not conflict with the law of the land. The Beth Din also deals with matters concerning dietary laws and marriages and divorces, according to Jewish Law.

Dayanim, L. Grossnass; A. Rapoport; Dr. M. Lew; M. Steinberg; M. Swift

Clerk to the Court, Marcus Carr, Adler House, Tavistock Square, W.C.1.

Chief Rabbi of the Community of Spanish and Portuguese Jews in London (Established 1657), Dr. Solomon Gaon.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH

His HOLINESS POPE JOHN XXIII (Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli), Roman Pontiff, born in Sotto il Monte, Italy, November 25, 1881; ordained priest August 10, 1904; Archbishop of Areopolis March 3, 1925; Cardinal January 12, 1953; Patriarch of Venice January 15, 1953; elected Pope October 28, 1958; crowned November 4, 1958.

THE SACRED COLLEGE OF CARDINALS, when complete, consists of six Cardinal Bishops, fifty Cardinal Priests and fourteen Cardinal Deacons. This number was fixed by Pope Sixtus V in 1586. Pope John XXIII created 23 new Cardinals on December 15, 1958, a further 8 new Cardinals on December 14, 1959, 7 on March 28, 1960, 4 more on Jan. 16, 1961, and 10 on Mar. 19, 1962. In August, 1962 there were 85 Cardinals. The Cardinals are the advisers and assistants of the Sovereign Pontiff and form the supreme council or Senate of the Church. On the death of the Pope they elect his successor. The assembly of the Cardinals at the Vatican for the election of a new Pope is known as the Conclave in which, in complete seclusion, the Cardinals elect by secret ballot; a two-thirds majority is necessary before the vote can be accepted as final. When a Cardinal receives the necessary votes the Dean of the Sacred College formally asks him if he will accept election and the name by which he wishes to be known. On his acceptance of the office the Conclave is dissolved and the First Cardinal Deacon announces the election to the assembled crowd in St. Peter's Square. On the first Sunday or Holyday following the election the new Pope is crowned with the tiara, the triple crown, the symbol of his supreme spiritual authority. A new pontificate is dated from the coronation.

The Catholic Directory estimates the Roman Catholic population of England and Wales at 3,660,000, Scotland (1961) 792,640, Republic of Ireland (1955) 2,786,033, Northern Ireland (1960) 484,214. The figures for Canada (1956) are 6,260,504, Australia (1961) 2,563,479, New Zealand (1960) 313,106, India (1959) 5,392,272, Pakistan (1960) 304,446, Ceylon (1957) 609,928, Malta (1958) 290,600, Federation of Malaya (1961) 108,417, State of Singapore (1961) 46,236. Trinidad (1961) 299,649, Jamaica (1961) 121,638, Tanganyika (1960) 1,331,296, Uganda (1960) 1,698,569, Nigeria (1961) 1,630,352, Ghana (1960) 563,345; world total (estimated) 527,643,000.

LONDON CATHEDRALS, CHURCHES, ETC.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL, City of London, E.C.4 (1675-1710), cost £747,660. The cross on the dome is 365 ft. above the ground level, the inner cupola 218 ft. above the floor. "Great Paul," in S.W. tower, weighs 17 tons. Organ by Father Smith (enlarged by Willis) in case carved by Grinling Gibbons (who also carved the choir stalls). The choir and high altar were restored in 1958 after war damage and the North Transept in 1962. The American War Memorial Chapel was consecrated in November, 1958. The Chapel of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire in the Crypt of the Cathedral was dedicated on May 20, 1960. Nave and transepts free; Fees to the following parts (on weekdays only, 11 a.m. to 3.30 p.m. and—during Summer Time only—4.45 p.m. to 5.30 p.m.); Crypt, 6d. Library, whispering gallery, and stone gallery, 1s.; golden gallery 1s.; ball, 1s.; total, 3s. 6d. Service on Sundays at 8, *10.30, *3.15, and *6.30. Weekdays at 8, *10, *4. Also Wednesdays, *12.30 p.m., Litany; Fridays, *12.30 p.m. short mid-day service. (*Services are choral.) To the S. are remains of the Chapter House and Cloisters of "Old St. Paul's," destroyed by the Fire of London in 1666.

WESTMINSTER ABBEY, S.W.1 (built A.D. 1050-1760).—Open on weekdays at 8 a.m. Admission to Royal Chapels by fee of 1s. (children 6d.), (week-days) except on Mondays (open free). Transepts and Nave open on Sundays only between services. Holy Communion at 8; matins at 10.30; Holy Communion at 11.30. Evensong at 3. Evening service with Sermon at 6.30; Dally—Holy Communion at 8 a.m.; Westminster School Service at 9 a.m.; matins, 10 a.m.; evensong (choral), 5.0 p.m. (Saturday and Bank Holidays, 3 p.m.). Chapel of Henry VII, Chapter House and Cloisters; King Edward the Confessor's shrine, A.D. 1269, tombs of kings (Edward I, Edward III, Henry V, Mary, Queen of Scots, Queen Elizabeth I), and many other monuments and objects of interest, including the grave of "An Unknown Warrior" and St. George's Chapel at the W. end of Nave (1920), and Poets' Corner. The Coronation Chair encloses the "Stone of Scone" brought from Scotland by Edward I in 1297.

SOUTHWARK CATHEDRAL, south side of the Thames, near London Bridge, S.E.1.—Mainly 13th century, but the nave is largely rebuilt. Known as St. Mary Overie before 1540. Open 7.30 a.m. to 6.45 p.m., free. Sunday services, Holy Communion, 8.30 and 11 a.m., Morning Prayer, 10.15 a.m., Evening Prayer, 3 p.m., Nave Service, 6.30 p.m. Weekdays: 7.30, 8 and 5.30 p.m. (choral except Wednesdays) (5 p.m. on Saturdays). Holy Communion, 6.0 p.m., Wednesdays and 1.10 p.m., Fridays. Lunch Hour Service, 1.10 p.m., Wednesdays. The tomb of John Gower (1330-1408) is between the Bunyan and Chaucer memorial windows, in the N. aisle; Shakespeare effigy backed by view of Southwark and Globe Theatre in S. aisle; the altar screen (erected 1520) has been restored; the tomb of Bishop Andrewes (died 1626) is near screen. The Early English Lady Chapel (behind the choir), restored 1930, is the scene of the Consistory Courts of the reign of Mary (Gardiner and Bonner); and is still used for this purpose. John Harvard, founder of Harvard University, was baptised here in 1607.

ALL SAINTS, Margaret Street, W.1.—Built by Butterfield in 1859. Anglo-Catholic and noted for its music.

ST. ANDREW UNDERSHAFT, St. Mary Axe, Leadenhall Street, E.C.3.—An early 16th-century church, contains a monument of Stow, the London antiquary (a new quill-pen being placed in his hand at an annual Commemorative Service), and a memorial of Holbein. The organ is by Renatus Harris the rival of Father Smith.

ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S Priory Church, Smithfield, E.C.1, the oldest parish church in London (A.D. 1123).—Rector, Rev. N. E. Wallbank, M.S.D., Fine old Norman building, with tomb of the first prior Rabere. N. transept restored and re-opened in June, 1893. Crypt, Lady Chapel and Cloisters opened 1905-1928. Open daily. Sunday services 9 a.m., 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m.

ST. BRIDE, Fleet Street, E.C.4.—Rebuilt by Wren. Restored after being gutted during Second World War and rededicated, Dec. 1957. Recent excavations have revealed remains of earlier churches on site.

ST. CLEMENT DANES, Strand, W.C.2.—Gutted in Second World War, rebuilt as Royal Air Force Church, and reconsecrated, 1958.

ST. EDMUND, KING AND MARTYR, Lombard Street, E.C.3.—Rebuilt by Wren, with altar at north end; organ by Renatus Harris.

ST. ETHELBURGA, Bishopsgate, E.C.2 (14th and 15th century) with two "Hudson" windows.—On April 19, 1607, Henry Hudson (the navigator who gave his name to Hudson's Bay and to the Hudson River), his son John, and his ten sailors took communion in St. Ethelburga's, "purposing to goe to sea four days after."

ST. GEORGE, Hanover Square, W.1 (18th century; famous for fashionable marriages).

ST. GEORGE, Borough High Street, Southwark, S.E.—(Rebuilt 1736) contains the tombs of Bishop Eonner (1497-1569) and Edward Cocker (1531-1675), the author of Cocker's "Arithmetick." (The expression "according to Cocker" refers to this book.)

ST. HELEN, Bishopsgate, E.C.2.—The "Westminster Abbey of the City" from its numerous monuments; building dates from 13th century. Contains a Shakespeare memorial window presented by Mr. William Prentice, an American.

ST. KATHERINE CREE, Leadenhall Street, E.C.3.—Rebuilt in early 17th century and ascribed to Inigo Jones. Contains a Catherine wheel E. window, an organ by Father Smith, Archbishop Laud's Prayer Book and Bible, and a monument of Sir Nicholas Throgmorton.

ST. MARGARET, WESTMINSTER, S.W.1.—Founded 11th or 12th century; buildings date from 15th century, with frequent "restorations." Since 1614 the parish church of the House of Commons.

ST. MARTIN-IN-THE-FIELDS, Trafalgar Square, S.W.1.—Built by James Gibbs (1721-6) in place of earlier church on same site. In register of burials are the names of Nell Gwynne (1687), Farquhar the dramatist (1707), and Roubillac the sculptor (1692). A bust of James Gibbs by Rysbrack is in the church. Famous for its broadcast services.

ST. MARY-LE-BOW, Cheapside, E.C.2.—The famous Bow Bells were rung again for the first time on Dec. 20, 1961, more than 20 years after the church was bombed. The bells were recast from the old metal.

ST. MICHAEL, PATERNOSTER ROYAL, College Hill, Upper Thames Street, E.C.4.—Rebuilt after the Fire by Strong (a pupil of Wren's), the former church contained the tomb of "Dick Whittington" and a Grinling Gibbons altarpiece.

ST. PAUL, Covent Garden, W.C.2.—Built by Inigo Jones. The tombstones round the exterior of the church record the burial places of Samuel Butler (Hudibras), Sir Peter Lely (painter), Wycherley (dramatist), Grinling Gibbons (wood-carver), Dr. Arne ("Rule, Britannia"), and Macklin (actor); Ellen Terry memorial.

ST. SEPULCHRE, Holborn, E.C.1.—Part of this church escaped the Fire. The organ is by Renatus Harris, in a case attributed to Grinling Gibbons. Memorials in the church to Roger Ascham (Queen Elizabeth's tutor) and Capt. John Smith, "some-time Governour of Virginia and Admirall of New England."

SAVOY CHAPEL, Savoy Street, Strand, W.C.2 (rebuilt about 1505, on site of 13th-century Savoy Palace, restored after disastrous fire in 1864).—Graves of Gavin Douglas and George Wither, and memorials of D'Oyly Carte, Laurence Irving.

TEMPLE CHURCH, The Temple, E.C.4.—The nave formed one of five remaining round churches in England, the others being at Cambridge, Northampton, Little Maplestead (Essex), and Ludlow Castle. Rebuilding of the church was completed in 1958. Sunday morning services, open to the public, 11.15 a.m., except in August and September. Master of the Temple, Rev. Canon T. R. Milford, M.A.

Education

ENGLAND AND WALES

Education in England and Wales is organized under the Education Act, 1944 (Butler Act). Minor amending Acts were passed in 1946, 1948 and 1953. The main features of the system are (a) that the State school system is highly decentralized, education being the responsibility of 146 local education authorities (61 administrative counties, 83 county boroughs, 1 joint board and London). The County Authorities exercise their powers in many instances through Divisional Executive Committees and the Education Committees of Excepted Districts; (b) that voluntary agencies play an important part in educational provision often in co-operation with the State. The Ministry of Education controls the system mainly through the scheme of inspection and with power derived from statute. The expenditure of local education authorities is met partly from rates and partly from central government grants. The latter are paid mainly in the form of a general grant from the Ministry of Housing and Local Government covering local health and other services as well as education. Detailed suggestions to L.E.A.'s are issued in Ministry of Education circulars and administrative memoranda. There are central advisory councils dealing with education in England and in Wales respectively.

A statutory report and two volumes of full statistical tables are published yearly by the Ministry.

The State System

The State system is in transition as the 1944 Act is being implemented. The administrative system has been reorganized and the school-leaving age raised (April 1, 1947) to 15. The major problem at present is the provision of teachers and accommodation for the increased number of children at school between 1952 and 1962. Special attention is being paid to the development of technical education. About 6,200 students were enrolled for courses leading to the Diploma in Technology in the 1961-62 session (5,000 in the preceding year). In 1961, 619 students gained the diploma as compared with 215 in 1960 and during 1961-62, 37 had been accepted as candidates for the new higher award of Membership of the College of Technologists. There are 10 Colleges of Advanced Technology. These have now been given the status of direct grant institutions, independently governed (i.e., no longer controlled by the local education authority) and financed by the Ministry. In 1960-61 about 7,500 students were taking full-time and sandwich courses leading to qualifications at university level, including degrees, diplomas in technology, and various professional qualifications. Over 5,000 were enrolled in advanced part-time day courses and 3,800 in evening courses. It is expected that by the early 1970's the number of places in these colleges will have increased to 26,000-27,000.

Education is envisaged in the 1944 Act in three stages:—

Primary Stage (for children up to 11 years). Nursery Schools to age 5 (must be provided by Local Education Authority for all parents who desire them); Infant Schools—from age 5 (compulsory school age); Junior Schools—from age 8 to 11.

About the age of 11 all children are to go to a secondary school. The suitability of the school may be reviewed at age 13.

Secondary Stage (11 years to 15 years, later to be raised to 16)—Secondary Grammar Schools (giving an academic education); Secondary Technical Schools (for those whose abilities are of a more practical character); Secondary Modern Schools (giving a general and practical education).

These Secondary Schools are intended to be of equal status and can be combined into a single multi-lateral or "comprehensive" school. The prevailing tendency is to foster wide experiment and flexibility in the organization of secondary schools. Education in Primary and Secondary Schools is free.

Pupils in Secondary Schools may sit for the examinations leading to the award of the General Certificate of Education. The nine examining bodies set papers at three levels, ordinary, advanced and scholarship. Entrance to the Universities and to many courses of professional training depends on the results in these examinations. The total number of candidates at the 1962 summer examination was 381,390 at Ordinary level and 104,590 at Advanced, including 30,120 from secondary modern schools at Ordinary and 810 at Advanced. In accordance with the Third Report of the Secondary School Examinations Council a new and uniform system of grading and presentation of results of G.C.E. examinations at A level will be used by all examining bodies. There will be five grades of pass awards on main or "basic" papers and two "supplementary" gradings (Distinction and Merit) for abler candidates who take "S" papers in addition to main papers: the existing Scholarship papers will be discontinued.

Since 1944 various bodies have set up examinations to meet the needs of pupils for whom the G.C.E. is not suitable. The Minister has accepted in principle the recommendation made by the Secondary School Examinations Council in its 1961 report, The Certificate of Secondary Education, that new school-leaving examinations leading to such a certificate should be nationally established on a regional basis, and in Sept., 1962 the Council announced that the examinations will probably start by 1965. The Council proposes that pupils should have completed five years of secondary education, that the examinations should be on a "subject" basis—i.e., that candidates should be free to enter for any subject or combination of subjects—and should be conducted largely under the control of teachers, but should be co-ordinated by the Council itself, which would advise the Minister on questions of recognition and standards, and should have the help of an examinations research and development unit. This follows the main recommendation of the Beloe Committee.

Further Stage. [Includes all types of provision for education after 15 (later 16).] County Colleges which, when established, all children not receiving full-time education will attend for the equivalent of one day a week from age 15 (later 16) to age 16 (later to be raised to 18); Technical Colleges and Colleges of Art and Commerce (providing specialist studies); Evening Institutes (evening classes in vocational and other subjects); Service of youth (recreational and other services for youth provided in co-operation with voluntary bodies); Adult Education (liberal education for adults provided in co-operation with voluntary bodies); Community Centres, etc.

In January, 1961, 7,040,462 children were present in the primary or secondary schools maintained, aided or controlled by Local Education Authorities. Of these 1,698,379 were in modern schools, 696,677 in grammar, 97,039 in technical, 44,166 in bilateral and multilateral and 141,899 in comprehensive.

The number of pupils aged 15 and over rose to 177,604 in maintained schools and 16,846 in direct grant schools. The number in sixth forms was 112,530—22,316 more than in 1960. There were 121,663 (18,314 in sixth forms) in all direct grant schools, 300,569 in independent schools recognized as efficient, and 194,872 in other independent schools. The number of pupils in all special schools, including hospital, was 57,626. The number of children in all-age schools in 1961 was 220,198 and the percentage of 13-year-old children fell from 4.2 to 3.4. The percentage of primary school children in classes of over 40 had gone down from 21.4 to 19.4. The percentage of children in senior classes of over 30 fell from 62.9 to 61.6. The average size of class in junior schools was 32.3 and in senior 29.7. In grant-aided establishments for further education, in 1961 full-time students numbered 119,148, sandwich, 12,907 and part-time day-release students 556,041, evening students numbering 1,746,295.

Total net expenditure on revenue account of local education authorities, during the year ending March, 1961 (excluding meals and milk) amounted to £704,554,000, compared with £597,000,000 the previous year.

The Youth Service

The Minister has issued regulations for the recognition by the Ministry of Qualified Youth Leaders, on a salary scale of £680 by £35(8) and £40 to £1,000: L.E.A.'s may pay £100-350 a year extra for posts of greater responsibility. Such leaders must either hold a university diploma or a degree in social science, or have completed five years' satisfactory service by Aug. 1, 1963 as full-time leaders employed by a local education authority or by a national voluntary grant-aided organization, or complete a course of training for full-time leadership provided by the National College, Leicester; Westhill Training College, Birmingham; University College, Swansea; the N.A.B.C. in co-operation with Liverpool University; or the National Council of Y.M.C.A.'s. In cases of existing full-time leaders who cannot fulfil either of these conditions the Minister will consider with the Joint Negotiating Committee what further training they will need for qualification. Unqualified full-time leaders may be paid on the scale £500 by £30(6) to £680. It is proposed to double the number of full-time leaders in five years but the Youth Service must continue to rely upon the participation of many thousand part-time workers, who should have adequate opportunity for training, and such training in all areas should reach the same high standard.

Towards the target of 1,300 full-time youth leaders by 1966 (compared with some 700 when the Albemarle Committee reported) the number increased in 1961 by 100, while local authorities and voluntary bodies are prepared to employ almost another 400 within the next three years.

Grants to national voluntary organizations for headquarters and training expenses increased in 1961 from £176,500 to £229,000. Offers of grants towards the cost of local capital projects under the Social and Physical Training Grant Regulations increased from £422,500 for 182 projects to £863,600 for 318 projects. Proposals for building projects costing £13,500,000 in the next few years are under consideration.

Voluntary Agencies

The school system is complicated by voluntary agencies which have assisted greatly in educational development. A number of the primary and secondary schools are still provided by voluntary bodies, mainly religious, but have long been maintained by L.E.A.'s. Under the 1944 Act, the managers of such schools could obtain half of the funds required for rebuilding to modern standards, the schools remaining under their partial control as "aided schools" and the cost of running the schools being met by the Local Education Authority. Under the Act of 1959 the building grant has been increased to 75 per cent. in respect of existing schools and of new secondary schools where these are required to accommodate pupils from existing primary schools. If the managers cannot raise money necessary for rebuilding, schools become "controlled schools" under the management of the Local Education Authority, though with provisions enabling denominational religious instruction to be given. In January, 1961, there were 839,286 pupils in Church of England schools, 565,080 in Roman Catholic, and 148,788 in others; of these 955,996 were in aided schools, 536,948 in controlled and 58,224 in special agreement schools. Since 1945, grants of £13,018,098 and loan advances of £4,730,989 have been made for building. Of the 10,242 voluntary schools or departments (primary and secondary) in January, 1961, 4,720 had been given controlled, 5,374 aided and 137 special agreement status.

The Direct Grant Grammar Schools (non-profit-making and with some non-local characteristics) occupy a semi-independent position, getting grants direct from the Ministry. They are run by Boards of Governors with Local Education Authority representatives and take fee-paying pupils chosen by themselves. For these pupils fees are graded according to parent's means. At least 25 per cent. of the places must be free, and Local Authorities may claim up to a further 25 per cent. of places, for which no further fees are paid by parents. In Jan., 1961 there were 178 such schools with 110,108 pupils (9,092 being boarders). In January, 1961, there were 5 Direct Grant Secondary Technical Schools with 838 pupils.

About 90 Public Boarding Schools and 4,036 Private Schools remain independent of the State system, except that many Public Schools give a limited number of places to nominees of Local Education Authorities. Under the 1944 Act all schools are being inspected by the Ministry and can be closed if found inefficient. Of these 4,036 schools, with 495,441 pupils, 1,508 have been recognized as efficient.

The number of students in further education rose steadily between 1960-61—full-time students from 106,000 to 119,000; sandwich course students from 11,300 to 12,900; part-time day students from nearly 488,000 to 556,000 and evening students from 713,000 to nearly 784,000. For the first time figures have been given of grants to students for courses in establishments of further education "comparable" to those in universities and training colleges. These rose from 7,200 in 1959-60 to 10,200 in 1961-62.

In the field of Further Education many private bodies, often receiving grants of money from Local Education Authorities and from the Ministry, are associated with the public authorities.

Teachers

The number of teachers in the maintained primary and secondary schools must be further raised from 272,804, of whom 19.8 per cent. are graduates (March, 1961), to deal with the increasing child population. In particular there is a shortage of women teachers. The total number of teachers in grant-aided establishments is 312,251, of whom 22.6 per cent. are graduates. Teachers are trained in a total of 185 institutions of various types. These include 24 University Departments of Education providing a one-year course for graduates. In 1961-62 these had 3,398 students. The remainder provide a three-year course for non-graduates and, in certain instances, a one-year course for graduates, the number of whom is to be increased. In 1961-62, these had 31,867 students. 109 general colleges are provided by Local Education Authorities and 49 by voluntary bodies. A large-scale plan of expansion has now been initiated, providing 24,000 additional places in the training colleges (the equivalent of 3 new universities) by 1966, thus about doubling the previous number of places. The voluntary colleges receive from the Government 75 per cent. of the building costs involved. Day training colleges, mainly for older and more mature students, have already been established in 8 areas. Of the 37,000 students entering teacher training colleges, 36,000 received grant aid. Teachers, other than graduates, must have satisfactorily completed a course of training. A degree or its equivalent entitles the holder to be given qualified teacher status but the National Advisory Council on the Training and Supply of Teachers has recommended the Minister to make training compulsory after 1968 for graduates who wish to teach in maintained schools. In March there were 5,334 teachers (3.8 per cent.) in maintained primary schools who were graduates, 13,340 (17.3 per cent.) in secondary modern and 27,839 (78.2 per cent.) in grammar. In direct grant grammar schools there were 4,118 (70 per cent.). In March, 1961, there were 1,406 non-qualified men teachers in maintained primary and secondary schools and 4,896 women.

Payment of teachers is regulated by the Burnham Scale which, on January 1, 1962, provided (for primary and secondary schools) from £600-£1,200 for a non-graduate 3-year-trained teacher to £890-£1,490 for a good honours graduate with six years' degree study, research and professional training. In these scales are added allowances for posts of special responsibility ranging from £100 for a graded post of assistant teacher to £1,670 for heads of the largest secondary schools. Salaries of men and women teachers are now equal.

The Commonwealth and Education

Resulting in many respects from the two recent Commonwealth Education Conferences (one at Delhi and one at Oxford) major developments have occurred in teaching about the Commonwealth in British schools (which the Commonwealth Institute assists in many ways) and co-operating with Commonwealth countries in the training and exchange of teachers. In 1960 351, and in 1961 336 bursaries were awarded for one or two (exceptionally three) year courses of study in this country to serving teachers, training college lecturers, inspectors and organizers from developing countries. In the summer of 1961 a party of 80 British teachers headed by one of Her Majesty's Inspectors conducted vacation courses in Nigeria for over 800 African teachers. The recruitment of teachers for service overseas (about 600 each year) has been considerably facilitated with the co-operation of local education authorities and teachers' associations.

In 1960-61, 1,300 teachers from Commonwealth countries entered contributory service in primary and secondary schools in England and Wales. There were 35,000 students from Commonwealth countries in the United Kingdom, including about 7,000 in universities, 8,000 in technical colleges and 1,200 in teacher training institutions. In 1961, the Government allocated £3,000,000 for the provision of about 5,000 hostel places and other amenities for overseas students.

EDUCATION IN SCOTLAND

The educational system of Scotland has developed independently of that of England and presents a number of distinctive features. The Scottish Education Department is the central body and the Education Authorities are the local bodies concerned in administering the provisions of the Education (Scotland) Act, 1962, which consolidates the enactments relating to education in Scotland. These authorities are the councils of the four cities (Aberdeen, Dundee, Edinburgh and Glasgow) and 31 county councils or joint county councils. Educational facilities of various kinds are also provided by the governing bodies of grant-aided schools, independent schools, central institutions providing advanced technical education and national voluntary organizations in the field of informal further education. The "Scottish solution" of the question of denominational schools arrived at in 1918 provided for the transfer of any denominational voluntary school to the management of the Education Authority subject to certain conditions relating to religious observances and the appointment of staff designed to preserve the denominational character of the school. Denominational schools provided by Education Authorities are subject to the same conditions.

Schools in Scotland fall into three main classes, viz. public schools, which in Scotland means schools managed by Education Authorities; grant-aided schools, conducted by voluntary managers who receive grants direct from the Department; and independent schools which receive no direct grant, but which are subject to inspection and registration. In the year ended July 31, 1961, there were 3,252 public schools, with a roll of 878,085, 49 grant-aided schools, with a roll of 21,788 and 140 independent schools, attended by 17,311 pupils.

Children between 5 and 11½ to 12½ attend primary schools. The secondary courses are junior, for pupils leaving school at 15, and senior, extending to four, five or six years. Some schools, called "comprehensive", offer both junior and senior secondary courses. There are 29 grant-aided secondary schools, mostly large and of considerable standing.

The Scottish Certificate of Education (formerly the Scottish Leaving Certificate) is awarded by the Department and is normally taken at the end of senior secondary courses of four or five years' duration. Pupils may take as many of a wide range of subjects as they are capable of attempting on either the Ordinary grade, corresponding to the G.C.E. Ordinary Level, or on the Higher, which, because there is less specialized study in sixth forms as understood in England, is not of so high a standard as the G.C.E. Advanced. In the award of a pass on either grade the teacher's estimate is taken into account as well as performance in the written examination.

Facilities for further education are provided by 16 Central Institutions (advanced colleges administered by independent Boards of Governors) and by further education centres managed by Education Authorities. The Central Institutions provide the highest form of specialized and fully organized instruction in science and technology, agriculture, commerce, domestic science and the arts. These colleges issue their own Diplomas and Associateships which are, in certain cases, equivalent in academic status to honours degrees and ordinary degrees.

The further education centres provide less advanced courses which are mainly part-time covering vocational and non-vocational subjects. The vocational courses normally lead to Craft certificates, certificates of the City and Guilds of London Institute or National Certificates. Courses are provided in any subject for which there is a reasonable demand.

There are seven Colleges of Education in Scotland. Six of the colleges (of which two are Roman Catholic residential colleges for women) provide both one- and three-year courses and are associated with a university. The seventh is a residential college of physical education for women. All men teachers must possess a university degree (except in certain "practical" subjects) and normally take a year's professional training at a College of Education. A considerable proportion of women teachers take a degree or diploma and a year's training, but those who do not must take three years' training. The basic scales of teachers' salaries are non-graduate, graduate and honours graduate, with additional payment for posts of special responsibility.

EDUCATION IN NORTHERN IRELAND

The statutory system of education in Northern Ireland is broadly similar to the system in Great Britain. Under the 1947 Act primary education is provided in primary schools for children up to 11½ years of age or thereabouts when they are transferred to one or other of the types of secondary schools. Those who pass to secondary intermediate schools follow a practical curriculum and the remainder, most of whom have attained a qualifying standard at an examination conducted by the Ministry of Education, proceed to secondary grammar schools. A child who is successful at the qualifying test for entry to a grammar school is awarded a scholarship by the local education authority of the area in which he is normally resident. Reciprocal arrangements between local education authorities in the United Kingdom ensure that in the event of a change of residence of the parents of a pupil who has passed the necessary test either in Great Britain or in Northern Ireland, the pupil's grammar school education will be continued.

On Dec. 31, 1961, there were 1,550 Primary (including Nursery and Special) Schools with 191,814 pupils, 81 Grammar Schools with 38,546 pupils, 116 Secondary Intermediate Schools with 54,192 pupils, and 31 Technical Intermediate Schools with 4,317 pupils. There were also 164 Institutions of Further Education, with 4,560 full-time and 41,087 part-time students enrolled. The Queen's University at Belfast had 51 Professors, 24 Readers, 293 Lecturers, Assistant Lecturers and University Tutors, and 4,225 students. Magee University College, Londonderry, had 5 Professors, 20 Lecturers, and 252 students. The estimated cost to the Exchequer for 1962-63 is £19,943,600 and from rates £6,129,119.

THE UNIVERSITIES

There are eighteen degree-giving universities in England (Birmingham, Bristol, Cambridge, Durham, Exeter, Hull, Keele, Leeds, Leicester, Liverpool, London, Manchester, Nottingham, Oxford, Reading, Sheffield, Southampton and Sussex); one in Wales (the University of Wales with Colleges at Aberystwyth, Bangor, Cardiff and Swansea); four in Scotland (Aberdeen, Edinburgh, Glasgow and St. Andrews); and one in Northern Ireland (the Queen's University, Belfast). In addition the Manchester College of Science and Technology and the Royal College of Science and Technology, Glasgow, receive Treasury grants on the recommendation of the University Grants Committee; and in July, 1961, St. David's College, Lampeter, was admitted to the grant list under a sponsorship scheme jointly agreed between the University Grants Committee, the University College of South Wales and Monmouthshire, Cardiff, and St. David's College. All these institutions are self-governing. The newly-founded University of Sussex admitted its first students in October, 1961, and plans are in hand for the establishment of new Universities of East Anglia (at Norwich), of Essex (at Colchester), of Kent (at Canterbury), of Lancaster, of Warwick (at Coventry), and of York. The total number of full-time students in the existing universities and colleges (excluding the Queen's University, Belfast) receiving grants from the University Grant Committee in the session 1960-61 was 107,699 of whom 26,369 were women (compared with a total of 104,009 in the previous year and just over 50,000 in 1939). The Government's aim is to continue the expansion of the universities to about 170,000 places by 1973-74. 82.4 per cent. of the students were assisted in whole or in part by scholarships or other awards from public or private funds. The Government has accepted the recommendation of the Anderson Committee that an award from public funds should be given to all students admitted to degree courses who have two G.C.E. passes at A level or the equivalent. The recurrent expenditure of university institutions in Great Britain in 1960-61 amounted to £67,822,988. Grants for capital expenditure in 1962-63 are estimated at over £26,000,000.

STUDENTS FROM OVERSEAS AT UNITED KINGDOM UNIVERSITIES, 1961-62.

Full-time Students.—A total of 13,385 students from other countries, including 1,862 women, enrolled for full-time study at British Universities in 1961-62, compared with 12,410 in 1960-61 and 11,284 in 1959-60. Of these, 8,086 came from other parts of the British Commonwealth and 5,299 from foreign countries. The largest numbers of students came from India (1,660), United States (1,146), Nigeria (1,124), Canada (559), Pakistan (526), Iraq (490), Kenya (400), South Africa (397), Australia (380) and Ghana (371). 5,850 students were known to hold an award of some kind (fellowship, scholarship, grant, etc.).

Categories of subjects studied, with total numbers of students, and distribution of 5,716 students working for higher degrees, certain higher diplomas or other post-graduate work were: Agriculture and Forestry, 297 (114); Arts, 3,415 (1,639); Dentistry, 165 (53); Medicine, 2,157 (875); Pure Science, 1,984 (1,152); Social Studies, 2,316 (879); Technology, 2,958 (990); Veterinary Science, 93 (14).

Overseas students were distributed at the uni-

National Advisory Council on Education for Industry and Commerce

Established in 1948 to advise the Minister on national educational policy relating to industry and commerce.

Chairman, Sir Harry Pilkington.

National Council for Technological Awards
24 Park Crescent, W. 1.

Established by the Minister of Education in 1955 to create and administer awards for students who successfully complete courses in technical colleges. The Council offers two awards, a Diploma in Technology and Membership of the College of Technologists.

Chairman, Sir Harold Cox, D.Sc., Ph.D.

Regional Advisory Councils

Set up in 1947 (i) to bring education and industry together to find out the needs of young workers and advise on the provision required, and (ii) to secure reasonable economy of provision. They also have certain responsibilities in connection with the procedure for the approval by the Ministry of Education of advanced courses, and issue handbooks, etc., giving, for the guidance of students and teachers, information about the facilities available within a region or district for various types of training (e.g. electrical engineering, textiles, building and chemistry). There are ten Regional Advisory Councils, in England and Wales:—

- REGION 1 (LONDON AND HOME COUNTIES).—Regional Advisory Council for Technological Education, Tavistock House South, Tavistock Square, W.C.1.
- 2 (SOUTHERN).—Regional Council for Further Education, 22 The Forbury, Reading.
- 3 (SOUTH-WEST).—Regional Council for Further Education, 12 Lower Castle Street, Bristol, 1.
- 4 (WEST MIDLANDS).—Advisory Council for Further Education, Pitman Buildings, 161 Corporation Street, Birmingham, 4.
- 5 (EAST MIDLANDS).—Regional Advisory Council for the Organization of Further Education, 12 King John's Chambers, Bridlesmith Gate, Nottingham.
- 6 (EAST ANGLIA).—Regional Advisory Council for Further Education, County Education Offices, Stracey Road, Norwich.
- 7 (YORKSHIRE).—Council for Further Education, Basinghall Buildings, Upper Basinghall Street, Leeds, 1.
- 8 (NORTH-WEST).—Regional Advisory Council for Further Education, Africa House, 54 Whitworth Street, Manchester, 1.
- 9 (NORTHERN).—Advisory Council for Further Education, 5 Grosvenor Villas, Grosvenor Road, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, 2.

Technical Colleges

The majority of the technical colleges in England and Wales are maintained or assisted by local education authorities. There are four main types.

Colleges of Advanced Technology. These provide a broad range and substantial volume of work exclusively at advanced level (whether in full-time, sandwich or part-time courses), including post-graduate and research work. Since April 1, 1962, all these colleges have been administered by independent governing bodies receiving grants direct from the Ministry of Education. Up to the present, ten establishments have been formally designated by the Minister as colleges of advanced technology:—

- BIRMINGHAM COLLEGE OF ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., P. F. R. Venables, Ph.D.
- BRADFORD INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., E. G. Edwards, Ph.D.
- BRISTOL COLLEGE OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY, Ashley Down.—Princ., G. H. Moore.
- LONDON: BATTERSEA COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY, Battersea Park Road, S.W.11.—Princ., D. M. A. Leggett, M.A., Ph.D., D.Sc.
- LONDON: BRUNEL COLLEGE OF ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY, Acton, Middx.—Princ., J. Topping, Ph.D.
- LONDON: CHELSEA COLLEGE OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY, Manresa Road, S.W.3.—Princ., N. M. H. Lightfoot.
- LONDON: NORTHAMPTON COLLEGE OF ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY, St. John Street, E.C.1.—Princ., J. S. Tait, Ph.D.
- LOUGHBOROUGH COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., H. L. Haslegrave, Ph.D.
- SALFORD: ROYAL COLLEGE OF ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., C. Whitworth, Ph.D.
- CARDIFF: WELSH COLLEGE OF ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., A. Harvey, Ph.D.

Regional Colleges. These are colleges which do a substantial amount of advanced work, including in particular, full-time and sandwich courses, but in which the volume and character of the advanced work are not such as to make it realistic for the colleges to concentrate entirely on such work. There are at present 20 regional colleges:—

- BRIGHTON COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., G. E. Watts, C.B.E., Ph.D.
- HUDDERSFIELD COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., W. E. Scott, M.B.E., Ph.D.
- KINGSTON-UPON-THAMES COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., J. R. I. Hepburn, D.Sc., Ph.D.
- LEICESTER COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., R. E. Wood.
- LIVERPOOL: CITY OF LIVERPOOL COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY, Byrom Street.—Princ., S. A. J. Parsons.
- " CITY OF LIVERPOOL COLLEGE OF BUILDING, Clarence Street, Liverpool, 3.—Princ., T. E. Hall.
- LONDON: BOROUGH POLYTECHNIC, Borough Road, S.E.1.—Princ., J. E. Garside, Ph.D.
- " BRIXTON L.C.C. SCHOOL OF BUILDING, Ferndale Road, S.W.4.—Princ., D. A. G. Reid.
- " NORTHERN POLYTECHNIC, Holloway Road, N.7.—Princ., J. Leicester.
- " THE POLYTECHNIC, 309 Regent Street, W.1.—Director of Education, J. E. Richardson, C.B.E., Ph.D.
- " SIR JOHN CASS COLLEGE, Jewry Street, E.C.3.—Princ., A. M. Ward, D.Sc., Ph.D.
- " WOOLWICH POLYTECHNIC, Thomas Street, S.E.18.—Princ., H. Heywood, D.Sc., Ph.D.

- NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT TECHNICAL COLLEGE.—Princ., D. A. R. Clark.
- PLYMOUTH COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., E. Bailey.
- PORTSMOUTH COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., W. Davey, Ph.D.
- RUGBY COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., G. S. Atkinson, Ph.D.
- STOKE-ON-TRENT: NORTH STAFFORDSHIRE COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., E. R. Patrick, Ph.D.
- SUNDERLAND TECHNICAL COLLEGE.—Princ., M. Hutton.
- TREFOREST: GLAMORGAN COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., D. P. Evans, Ph.D.
- WEST HAM COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY.—Princ., G. Bulmer, Ph.D.

Area Colleges. There are about 160 of these, providing mainly part-time courses up to the level of Higher National Certificate or its equivalent.

Local Colleges, of which there are about 270, provide on the vocational side a wide range of mainly part-time courses up to Ordinary National Certificate level or its equivalent.

In addition to these four main categories of technical college, there are some 8,500 Evening Institutes ranging in size from those with a few classes for adults in such subjects as music and arts and crafts to those catering for thousands of students in a wide variety of vocational as well as non-vocational classes.

There are also six National Colleges providing advanced and post-graduate courses for the comparatively few students from certain highly specialized industries for whom it would be impracticable to provide the highest level of training on a local basis. These colleges, which are financed partly by contributions from the industries concerned but, principally by means of grant from the Minister of Education are:—

- NATIONAL COLLEGE FOR HEATING, VENTILATING, REFRIGERATION AND FAN ENGINEERING, Borough Polytechnic, Borough Road, S.E.1.—Dir., J. E. Garside, Ph.D.

NATIONAL COLLEGE OF FOOD TECHNOLOGY, St. George's Avenue, Weybridge, Surrey.—Principal, J. D. Mounfield, Ph.D.
 NATIONAL COLLEGE OF RUBBER TECHNOLOGY, Northern Polytechnic, Holloway Road, N.7.—Principal, F. H. Cotton, Ph.D.
 NATIONAL FOUNDRY COLLEGE, Stafford Street, Wolverhampton.—Principal, J. Bamford.
 NATIONAL LEATHERSELLERS COLLEGE, Tower Bridge Road, S.E.1.—Principal, J. P. Danby, Ph.D., B.Sc.
 NATIONAL COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURAL ENGINEERING, Boreham House, Chelmsford (temporary address).—Princ., P. C. J. Payne, Ph.D.

SCOTLAND

Scottish Technical Education Consultative Council

The Consultative Council represents both sides of industry and educational interests. The Council's object is "to secure the widest possible measure of consultation on vocational further education between employers, employees and those responsible for its provision, and to advise, and generally to promote, the development of such education".—Sec., W. A. M. Good, Scottish Education Department, St. Andrew's House, Edinburgh, 1.

Technical Colleges

Technical education is available at 97 day-course schools and colleges in Scotland, including those which specialize in a particular subject. The following are among those recognized by the Scottish Education Department as "central institutions" (colleges for higher technical learning); other Scottish central institutions appear under Agriculture, Art, Commerce, Domestic Science and Music.

HEADMASTERS' CONFERENCE SCHOOLS

THE HEADMASTERS' CONFERENCE.—Sec., F. L. Allan, M.B.E., M.C., 29 Gordon Square, W.C.1. The annual meetings are, as a rule, held early in October.

In considering applications for election to membership the Committee will have regard to the scheme or other instrument under which the school is administered (taking particularly into consideration the degree of independence enjoyed by the Headmaster and the Governing Body); the number of boys over thirteen years of age in the school; the number of boys in proportion to the size of the school who are in the sixth form, i.e. engaged on studies above the standard of the Ordinary level of the General Certificate Examination; and the connection with the Universities, as indicated by the number of undergraduates from the school at British universities.

THE CENTENARIES OF 1963

On March 7, 1863, Princess Alexandra arrived in England for her wedding to the Prince of Wales. She was greeted at Gravesend, where she landed, and in London with the greatest enthusiasm. The wedding took place on March 10 in St. George's Chapel, Windsor, in the presence of the Queen. Her Majesty continued for the most part in the strict seclusion which had followed the death of the Prince Consort, but on May 8 she visited the Military Hospital at Netley, where the foundation stone had been laid by her husband in 1856 and on October 13 she went from Balmoral to the inauguration of the Albert Memorial at Aberdeen. In February the Queen had suffered fresh anxiety through the serious illness of her second son, Prince Alfred, with typhoid fever at Malta, and she was much saddened by the death on July 9 of Baron Stockmar, the old friend and adviser of the Prince Consort and herself.

The problem of the Greek throne was finally solved. After it had been refused in turn by Prince Alfred and the Prince Consort's brother, Duke Ernest of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, it was accepted by Prince William of Denmark, brother of the Princess of Wales, who was proclaimed as King George I on March 30. The British Government announced its intention of making over to Greece the Ionian Islands, of which this country had held the Protectorate since 1815.

The international scene was disturbed by the revolt in Poland and its consequences. This rebellion against arbitrary Russian rule began on Jan. 14 and was maintained with great bravery for some months, despite Russian brutality against the participants. The Poles aroused much sympathy in England and France, but Bismarck, who had come into power in Prussia in September 1862, concluded a treaty with Russia on Feb. 8 for united action in suppressing the insurrection. On June 17, Lord Russell, with the support of France and Austria, suggested six proposals to Russia for the pacification of Poland, but the Tsar and his minister, Prince Gortchakoff, refused to discuss them, and bloodshed continued until November, when the revolt virtually came to an end.

The differences between Prussia and Austria over Poland foreshadowed their coming struggle for leadership in Germany and was emphasized by the refusal of the King of Prussia to attend the congress of German sovereigns called together at Frankfort by the Emperor of Austria in August. In the absence of the King of Prussia the congress was abortive, and Queen Victoria, who saw both monarchs during a visit to Germany in the autumn, was unsuccessful in her efforts to bring them together.

Meanwhile affairs in Schleswig and Holstein had given Bismarck the pretext for his own first steps in aggression, supported in this instance by Austria and other German states. Denmark had during the year granted new constitutions to Holstein and Schleswig, incorporating the latter in Denmark, but Bismarck demanded their withdrawal. Queen Victoria, though inclining to the Prussian point of view, was torn by considerations of her family connections with both Prussia and Denmark. Palmerston, however, undoubtedly expressed British public opinion when he said that if the rights and independence of Denmark were attacked, those who made the attempt would find that it would not be Denmark alone with which they had to contend. He was, however, unable to find other countries to support a policy of intervention and in December Saxon and Hanoverian troops occupied Holstein without resistance by the Danes.

The American Civil War continued during the year without conclusive results. On May 2 General "Stonewall" Jackson was mortally wounded during the series of battles at Chancellorsville. From July 1-3 the battle which is often considered the turning point of the war was fought at Gettysburg, where, on November 19, President Lincoln delivered his famous dedicatory address. On January 1, the President had issued a proclamation that all persons held as slaves within the Confederate States were and thenceforward should be free, and that his Government would recognize and maintain their freedom.

In August a British fleet under Admiral Kuper entered the Bay of Kagoshima in Japan to demand satisfaction for attacks on English travellers. Failing to obtain reparations, the Admiral seized three ships on August 15. The port batteries thereupon fired on the British squadron, which proceeded to bombard and largely destroy the city of Kagoshima.

The Mexican Assembly resolved, on July 10, to adopt an hereditary monarchical government and invited the Archduke Maximilian of Austria to become Emperor. Later in the year the Archduke accepted the offer, subject to the ratification of his election by a free vote of the whole Mexican people.

In Britain, the distress caused in the cotton manufacturing areas by the American Civil War continued, though in less acute form. Dissatisfaction with the operations of the local relief committee caused riots in March at Stalybridge (where the military were called in) and Ashton-under-Lyne.

On Jan. 9 the Metropolitan Railway was ceremonially opened with a banquet at its Farringdon Street terminus; it was opened to the public on the following day, when it was used by 30,000 persons. The new line from Charing Cross to Greenwich was inaugurated on Dec. 1. On April 15 the new court at the South Kensington Museum was opened for the exhibition of the Prince and Princess of Wales' wedding presents, and on April 22 the Queen approved Mr. Gilbert Scott's design for the Albert Memorial, towards which Parliament voted £50,000 on the following day.

The worst disaster of the year was the wreck of H.M.S. Orpheus off the coast of New Zealand with the loss of 190 officers and men out of her complement of 260.

On December 10, Tom King defeated the American champion, Heenan, in a prize-fight near Wadhurst, Heenan retiring after twenty-five rounds.

During the year Charles Reade's Hard Cash and Kingsley's The Water Babies were published. George Eliot's Romola appeared in serial form in the Cornhill Magazine, to which Thackeray, until his sudden death on Christmas Eve, continued to contribute his Roundabout Papers.

ALIENS AND NATURALIZATION

Aliens.—Figures in the following table show the number of aliens registered with the police in the United Kingdom on Dec. 31, 1961. These figures exclude among others children under 16, diplomatic and consular officials, certain officials of international organizations and visitors spending less than three months in the country. Under the Aliens Order, 1960, aliens to whose stay in this country no conditions are attached are exempt from registration with the police.

Naturalization.—In the years 1946–1961, 103,180 certificates of naturalization were issued by the Home Department, an average of 10,621 each year in 1946–1950 and of 4,552 in 1951–1961. Numbers of persons naturalized by principal countries of origin are shown below.

Cases of Murder

The Homicide Act, 1957, in operation from March 21, 1957, removed from the category of murder homicides (a) which were previously murder only by doctrine of constructive malice; (b) under severe provocation by words alone;

(c) in pursuance of a suicide pact. It provided that a person charged with murder should not be found guilty of that offence if at the time of the offence he was suffering from diminished responsibility, but instead should be found guilty of manslaughter. The death penalty should not be imposed for murders other than capital murders* except where the murderer had committed another murder on a different occasion.

In 1961, 136 cases of murder of persons aged one year or over were known to the police. In 14 cases the offence was reduced to manslaughter. *Capital murder.—19 victims were murdered by 17 known murderers or suspects. Of these, 6 victims were murdered by 5 persons who committed suicide before arrest. In proceedings taken against 12 persons for the murder of the remaining 13 victims one person died while awaiting trial, two persons (including one person concerned in the murder of 2 victims) were found insane on arraignment, 2 persons were acquitted, one person was convicted and ordered to be detained during H.M. pleasure (under 18). Of 6 persons convicted and sentenced to death, 4 were executed, one sentence was commuted to life imprisonment and in one case a conviction of manslaughter was substituted by the Court of Criminal Appeal. Of those executed, one had been found guilty of non-capital murder of a second victim. Non-Capital Murder.—In 7 cases which appeared to be of non-capital murder, the murderers were not yet detected. 96 victims were murdered by 94 known murderers or suspects. Of these, 34 victims were murdered by 27 persons who committed suicide before arrest; one victim was murdered by a person who died before arrest. In proceedings taken against 66 persons for the murder of 61 victims, 3 were discharged. Of 63 persons committed for trial 11 persons were found insane on arraignment and 14 were acquitted. 6 persons (including 1 concerned in the murder of 2 victims) were found guilty but insane. 30 persons were sentenced to life imprisonment and one was detained during H.M. pleasure (under 18).

* Murder committed in the course of or in furtherance of theft; in resisting or avoiding arrest or escaping from legal custody; murder of police officers or prison officers or persons assisting them; and murder by shooting or causing explosions.

Suicide

Coroners' returns show that 5,212 persons (female, 2,181) committed suicide in 1961, compared with 5,119 in 1960 and 5,236 in 1959. As from Aug. 3, 1962, the rule of law whereby suicide is a crime, was abrogated; aiding, abetting or procuring a suicide (or attempt) is an indictable offence.

Cases of Murder.—In 1961, fourteen cases of murder were known to the police. Two of the 14 victims were under 10 years of age and two persons were over 60. Of seven persons proceeded against, three were found insane and unfit for trial. Seven persons were tried, 2 for capital murder and 5 for murder. A verdict of not guilty was reached in one case of capital murder and a verdict of not proven in the other. A verdict of not proven was reached in one case of non-capital murder, three persons were sentenced to life imprisonment and one was ordered to be detained during H.M. pleasure. At the end of the year one case was un-solved and proceedings were pending in six cases.

Juvenile Crime.—In 1961, 22,882 juveniles were proceeded against for crimes and offences of all kinds. 768 of these were acquitted or the charge against them was withdrawn. In 5,502 cases the charge was proved and an order made without a finding of guilt, 2,076 young persons being discharged absolutely and 3,422 placed on probation. In 16,244 cases where charges were proved with a finding of guilt, 5,768 juveniles were admonished, etc; 206 were cautioned (with or without surety); and 18 were found mentally defective. 858 juveniles were committed to approved schools, 733 to remand homes, 138 for Borstal training and 61 to the care of fit persons. One was placed on probation. 7,564 offenders were fined, and in 897 cases fines were imposed on the parent or guardian of the offender. 368 juveniles were discharged without trial.

PRISON POPULATIONS IN 1960 AND 1961

The daily average population of all British prisons and Borstal institutions in 1961 was 32,205, compared with 30,206 in 1960. Figures of receptions by Prisons and Borstal institutions in 1960 and 1961 were:—

UNITED KINGDOM EXPENDITURE, 1961-62 AND 1962-63

The Civil Estimates were presented to Parliament on April 9, 1962, in a new and simplified form. Votes have been regrouped into eleven classes for greater convenience and figures have been rounded off in £'000's wherever possible, with corresponding rounding off in totals. It will be noted that the Class formerly shown as "Revenue Departments" has been merged in Class I; under the Post Office Act, 1961, the Post Office is from 1961-62 largely responsible for its own finances and no longer appears in the Estimates. Expenditure subheads were reduced from 1,721 in 1961-62 to 1,323 in the current Civil Estimates.

Separate Estimates for each of the Services and for the Ministry of Defence were published as in 1961.

Following is a summary of the Estimates for 1962-63, compared with the Budget Estimates and Net Total Estimates for 1961-62:

	Net Budget Estimate	Net Total Estimate*	Net Budget Estimate	Net Total Estimate
				£ million
CIVIL ESTIMATES . . .	3,735.6	3,956.5	4,094.9
DEFENCE ESTIMATES†	1,451.4	1,478.7	1,516.7
TOTAL ESTIMATES	5,187.0	5,435.2	5,611.6

* Including Supplementary Estimates. † Including Ministry of Defence and Royal Ordnance Factories Estimates.

Following are notes on some major groups of expenditure, items of which are included in several classes of the Estimates.

Public Service Remuneration

Total cost of public service remuneration in 1962-63 was estimated at £2,365m., including Forces Pay, fees for professional services, indirect remuneration in grants to local authorities, universities and Territorial and Auxiliary Forces organizations, and retirement pensions. The comparable expenditure in 1961-62 was £2,312m. Staff of the non-industrial civil service at home was estimated to number 403,281 (1961-62, 397,928), excluding the Post Office. In addition 1,702 Forces personnel are employed in civil departments. Salaries, etc. of the non-industrial civil service, £379,485,000 (£373,369,000); superannuation and compensation allowances, including gratuities, injury grants, etc., £45,847,000 (£44,312,000, total estimate).

Agricultural and Food Subsidies

Provision was made in the Civil Estimates for 1962-63 for Agricultural Support Subsidies totalling £333m., compared with £344.8m. in 1961-62 (original 1961 Budget Estimate, £266.7m.). The figures for each year include a payment of £1,000,000 to the Northern Ireland Exchequer. Arising from the Annual Review of Guarantees, 1962, it was expected that there would be a reduction of about £7m. in respect of the guaranteed price of milk. Details of the Agricultural Support Subsidies are included in the Agriculture (Statistics) section (See p. 624).

The Ministry of Education and Scottish Education Dept. Votes provide for the cost of school meals (less charges) and milk.

School Meals
England & Wales . . .	£48,507,000	£52,248,000

* At rates current in 1961-62.

UNITED KINGDOM CAPITAL EXPENDITURE

Items referred to as expenditure "below the line" in the Financial Statement presented to Parliament annually at the Budget consist largely of repayable advances to (i) the nationalized industries; (ii) local authorities, New Towns Corporations and other public bodies; (iii) private industry; * (iv) Colonial governments and the Colonial Development Corporation, and foreign governments. Loans to foreign governments are made under the Export Guarantees Acts, 1949-59, and may only be drawn upon to finance payments to, or for the benefit of, United Kingdom companies. Other payments below the line arise from war-time liabilities, e.g. war damage payments, post-war refunds of Excess Profits Tax and repayment of post-war credits. Finally, advances may also be made under Statute for central government expenditure where it is desired to spread out the capital payments concerned over a period of years, e.g. loans for married quarters for H.M. Forces, planning compensation, tithe redemption, etc., to be repaid by Vote provision over a specified period. Advances for the provision of temporary houses at the end of the Second World War were repaid by annuities borne on the Votes of the Housing departments, terminating in 1961-62.

Interest is charged on repayable advances made below the line at rates related to those at which the Government can borrow at the time the advance is made, with some exceptions. Each advance results in a corresponding increase in the National Debt and statutes provide that interest received on repayable advances shall be applied to the payment of an equivalent amount of interest on the National Debt.

In the three years to March 31, 1962, about 80 per cent. of the total net issues below the line has consisted of loans to the nationalized industries which may borrow through the appropriate Minister for capital purposes. Statutes under which these advances are made are the Electricity (Borrowing Powers) Act, 1959; Gas Act, 1960; Transport (Borrowing Powers) Act, 1959; Air Corporations Act, 1960; Coal Industry Acts, 1946-61; and the Post Office Act, 1961.

* Most of the Government assistance to private industry is provided "above the line" on Votes.

BRITISH RAILWAYS IN 1961

The British Transport Commission set up by the terms of the Transport Act, 1947, organized the Railways of Britain in six Regions under the control of the Railway Executive.

(1) The London Midland Region, corresponding to the system of the London, Midland and Scottish Company in England and Wales.

(2) The Western Region, corresponding to the system of the Great Western Railway.

(3) The Southern Region, corresponding to the system of the Southern Railway.

(4) The Eastern Region, corresponding to the Southern Area of the London and North Eastern Railway.

(5) The North Eastern Region, corresponding to the North Eastern Area of the London and North Eastern Railway.

(6) The Scottish Region, corresponding to the Scottish systems of the London, Midland and Scottish and London and North Eastern Railway.

Certain revisions in the Regional boundaries have subsequently taken place, notably in the cases of the London Midland, Southern and Western Regions.

By the terms of the Transport Act, 1953, the Railway Executive ceased to exist on September 30, 1953, when its functions, together with those of the other Executives excepting the London Transport Executive, were assumed by the British Transport Commission.

Under the terms of the 1953 Act, the Commission was required to submit to the Minister of Transport and Civil Aviation a scheme for the re-organization of British Railways incorporating de-centralization of management whilst reserving to the Commission general financial control and general control of charges. This scheme, providing for the introduction of Area Boards, was received by the Minister on April 15, 1954, and came into effect on Jan. 1, 1955.

BRITISH TRANSPORT COMMISSION RESULTS

OPERATING RATIOS.—Working expenses of the British Transport Commission in the operation of railways in 1961 amounted to 118 per cent. of gross receipts, compared with 114 per cent. in 1960 and 109 per cent. in 1959; in the operation of ships, working expenses were 81 per cent. of gross receipts in 1961 compared with 80 per cent. in 1960 and 79 per cent. in 1959.

OPERATING STATISTICS

In the year 1961, British Railways had 48,880 miles of standard gauge lines and sidings in use, including 18,214 miles of first track of which 1,388 miles were electrified. The total length of electrified track in 1961 was 3,672 miles. Standard rail on main lines has a weight of 109 lbs. per yard. British railways had 15,028 locomotives (steam, 11,691; diesel and diesel electric, 3,179; and electric, 158); 2,428 multiple-unit diesel power cars and 2,966 multiple-unit electric power cars in 1961. Engine miles run in passenger service totalled 253,502,000. 37,849 passenger-carrying vehicles had a total of 2,203,210 seats or berths. 1,024,951,000 passenger journeys were made during the year, including 317,154,000 made by holders of season tickets. The average distance of each passenger journey on ordinary fare was 23.01 miles; on Early Morning fare, 14.49 miles and on season ticket, 15.70 miles. Passenger stations in use in 1961 numbered 4,709 and freight stations 2,459.

Freight.—There were 956,284 freight vehicles and 14,551 other vehicles in the non-passenger-carrying stock. 38,198,000 tons of merchandise and livestock were carried in 1961, 145,656,000 tons of coal and coke and 54,323,000 tons of other minerals. Engine miles run in freight service totalled 119,164,000. Freight train miles per train engine hour were 9.40 in steam, 10.38 in diesel and 9.94 in electric locomotives. 634 net ton miles were run per total traction hour in traffic. 37,894 railway motor vehicles were in use in 1961 and 48,296 containers.

Staff and Wages

On Dec. 31, 1961, British Railways employed a total staff of 500,434 persons. Average weekly earnings at March 25, 1961 (with numbers of staff), were:—Men (453,658) £14 14s.; Women (30,246) £9 4s.; Yonths and Boys (23,077) £7 2s.; and Girls (2,633) £4 15s.

MODERNIZATION

The British Transport Commission announced early in 1955, the Modernization and Re-equipment Plan for British Railways at a then estimated cost of £1,240,000,000. It has since made significant progress. The complete plan, covering a period of 15 years, envisages the provision of some 2,500 main-line diesel locomotives; about 8,200 vehicles for multiple-unit trains, of which some 3,600 are for electric and the remainder for diesel powered trains; a large number of diesel-shunting engines; electrification of certain main-line and suburban services; major improvements to goods marshalling yards and goods stations, and certain passenger stations; the provision of new rolling stock and carriage cleaning facilities.

Details of some of the major works and of new equipment provided under the Programme, include the following:—

Track and Signalling.—Long welded rails, giving lower maintenance costs, reduced train vibration and noise and diminished wear and tear of rolling stock, are now being produced in all six Regions of British Railways at the rate of 350 miles a year. Modern signalling, including electric colour-light signals, more track circuits and power-operated signal boxes, and the extension of the automatic warning system, is now being installed on a large scale. The 1959-63 programme provides for 2,000 miles of colour-light signalling and the reduction of the number of existing signal boxes from about 9,000 to 8,400.

Electrification.—Following approval by the Minister of Transport in January, 1961, for the completion of the London Midland main line electrification scheme, the second stage between Crewe and Liverpool, began electric working in January, 1962. Engineering work continues on the remaining sections between Crewe and London (Euston) and it is intended that full electric services will be operating by 1967. In Scotland the new electric multiple unit trains north of the Clyde were fully restored in October, 1961, following rectification of technical faults. Work on the second phase of the scheme involving electrification of suburban lines south of the Clyde has reached an advanced stage. Electric services also commenced running in the Eastern Region on the London, Tilbury and Shoeburyness line, and between Chelmsford and Colchester. In the Southern Region electric trains were introduced on all routes comprising the second phase of the Kent Coast electrification scheme.

Diesel Traction.—Of the 2,500 main line diesel locomotive ordered, 1,480 had been delivered by July, 1962; by the end of 1962 about 1,600 were expected to be in service. Nearly 2,000 diesel shunting engines are in use, and over 4,000 diesel multiple-unit train vehicles. The 22 3,300 h.p. Deltic locomotives ordered for the East Coast main line services between London (King's Cross) and Edinburgh, now replace 55 steam locomotives. These diesel-electrics are the most powerful in service and their use has led to spectacular reductions in timings.

Passenger Stations.—Improvements are in progress or have been carried out at many stations, including major schemes of reconstruction at Plymouth, Manchester (Piccadilly), Barking, Coventry, Stafford, Bishop's Stortford, Harlow, and Chichester. Work has started on the reconstruction of Euston Station and the comprehensive plan to combine Leeds City and Central Stations has been simplified.

Freight Yards.—New freight marshalling yards are at present under construction or planned at more than 20 places, and include those at Millerhill (Edinburgh), Carlisle, Lamesley (for Tynside), Healey Mills (near Wakefield) and Newport (Tees-side), Stourton (near Leeds) and Tinsley (Sheffield). In 1961 a new depot for concentrating freight traffic at Stoke-on-Trent came into service and facilities for co-ordination of goods terminal working were completed at Manchester (Ancoats), Ardwick East and Leeds depôts. Work is in progress on the reconstruction of Burnley depôt and on a new freight railyard at Gateshead.

INLAND WATERWAYS

There are about 2,400 miles of inland waterways in use in Great Britain. Of these about 2,000 miles are administered by British Transport Waterways. In the year 1961, 9,272,000 tons of goods—coal and other fuel, liquids in bulk and general merchandise—were carried on the inland waterways, compared with 12,236,000 tons in 1951. Administrative, technical and clerical staff numbered 637 in 1952 and boatmen 518, compared with a total of 770 staff and 323 boatmen at the beginning of 1962.

The Thames Conservancy had 136 miles of waterways in use in 1961 and carried 113,700 tons of goods; Manchester Ship Canal (36 miles) carried 14,900,656 tons and its Bridgewater Department (40 miles) carried 436,859 tons of goods.

ROADS

The total mileage of public roads in Great Britain is 195,217 miles, of which 167,016 are in England and Wales and 28,201 in Scotland. The roads of Great Britain are classified, and out of the total mileage of 195,217 there are 8,338 miles of Trunk Roads, 19,747 of Class I, 17,620 of Class II and 48,927 of Class III roads. The remainder are unclassified.

Highway Authorities.—The Minister of Transport became the highway authority for some 8,190 miles of road in Great Britain under the Trunk Roads Acts of 1936 and 1946 (now consolidated in the Highways Act, 1959). These roads which comprise the national system of routes for through traffic, are known as trunk roads and the Minister (in Scotland from April 1, 1956, the Secretary of State) is responsible for their maintenance and improvement. Under the Local Government Act, 1929, county councils in England and Wales became (from April 1, 1930) the highway authorities for all roads in rural districts except trunk roads, and all country roads (which include Class I, Class II and Class III Roads) outside county boroughs and metropolitan boroughs. County boroughs are responsible for all roads within their boundaries with the exception of trunk roads. Borough and urban district councils are the highway authorities for roads other than trunk roads and county roads which lie within their areas. In Scotland similar provisions have been made. In England and Wales under the Act of 1929, provision is made for borough councils and urban district councils in certain circumstances to act as highway authorities for country roads.

Grants made to Highway Authorities for the year 1961-62 amounted to £67,352,000 (provisional figure), an increase of £20,700,000 over the previous year. Payments for work carried out on trunk roads in England and Wales were estimated at £61,082,000, compared with £51,650,000 in the previous year. £5,280,000 was spent on trunk roads in Scotland in 1960-61.

Motorways.—The motorway network planned for England and Wales is designed to carry through traffic at relatively high speeds between important centres of trade and industry. These new motorways are dual carriageway roads restricted to motor traffic which can enter or leave only from the left at a limited number of specially constructed junctions. They are planned so as to eliminate all sharp bends and steep gradients, and are carried over or under existing roads which cross their path. They are fenced throughout and no frontage development is permitted except at specified service areas where there are refreshment and refuelling facilities.

The network is based on five main motorways: the London-Birmingham-Lancashire Motorway, the Birmingham-South Wales Motorway, the London-South Wales Motorway, the London-Yorkshire Motorway, and the Medway Towns Motorway. Shorter motorways known as the Midland Links will connect the three main motorways converging on Birmingham from London, from South Wales, and from the North-West. Other lengths of motorway are planned to radiate from London to Basingstoke, Crawley and Bishop's Stortford. On the Great North Road (A.1) motorways will bypass Stevenage, Baldock, Doncaster, Darlington and Durham; a motorway is also planned to run across the Pennines between Lancashire and Yorkshire.

In August, 1962, 190 miles of motorway were open to traffic. This comprised the London-Birmingham Motorway (73 miles), the Preston (8½ miles), Lancaster (11½ miles) and Stafford (7 miles) By-passes all forming part of the London-Lancashire Motorway, the northern section of the Bristol-Birmingham Motorway (28 miles), the Ross Spur (20½ miles), the Maidenhead By-pass (6 miles), the Maidstone By-pass (7½ miles), and the Doncaster (15 miles) and Stevenage (7 miles) By-passes on A.1. This total also includes the 6 mile long Stretford-Eccles By-pass, which is a motorway built by Lancashire County Council on a classified road.

Work is in hand on the whole of the Birmingham-Preston section of the London-Lancashire Motorway and it is hoped that the full 78½ miles will be open to traffic by the end of 1963. On the route from London to South Wales the construction of the huge suspension bridge carrying the motorway over the River Severn is under way and at the eastern end of the same route work is in progress on the Slough By-pass (5 miles) and Chiswick-Langley Motorway (12 miles). Work is also well advanced on the 25 mile long Medway Towns Motorway leading to the Channel Ports.

Trunk Roads.—The motorway network has been given first priority in the road programme for England and Wales, but the improvement and reconstruction of the existing trunk roads system remains an essential feature. In February, 1962, the Minister of Transport announced in the House of Commons 111 major trunk road schemes (with an estimated cost of approximately £120,000,000) which he hoped to be able to authorize during the next 4-5 years. The programme he announced, will among other things, virtually complete the modernization of the Great North Road (A.1) between London and Newcastle-upon-Tyne. Some other features of the programme are: the comprehensive improvement of the London-Ipswich Road (A.12); the provision of dual carriageways on A.2 between the L.C.C. boundary and the Medway Motor Road; and the removal of numerous traffic bottlenecks, including that on the A.30 at Honiton in Devon, which is to be bypassed.

In London, the £1,200,000 Hammersmith fly-over was opened to traffic in November, 1961; it forms an integral part of the Cromwell Road Extension scheme to provide a direct through route from central London to the Airport and the South Wales Motorway. Work was expected to be completed in the autumn of 1962 on the £5,000,000 Hyde Park Corner Scheme. And work on Stage II of the Elephant and Castle improvement scheme was more than half completed in August, 1962.

Outside London, work was completed on, for instance, the Bristol Inner Circuit Road and the Drypool Bridge, Hull. The Birmingham, Wolverhampton, Leicester, and Southampton Inner Ring Roads have been partially opened to traffic. And, in Plymouth, the Laira and Tamar bridges were approaching completion.

Tyne Tunnel.—Work started in 1961 on the driving of the new road tunnel under the River Tyne between Jarrow and Howden. At present there is no vehicular crossing of the Tyne between Newcastle and the sea, except by ferries. The tunnel with its approach roads, will connect the Gateshead-Sunderland Road (A.184) to the Newcastle-Tyneside Road (A.105B), and proposed extensions of the approach roads will provide a by-pass round the east side of the main Tyneside urban area for traffic from the Great North Road. The tunnel itself will be nearly one mile long and has a single 24 ft. carriageway within its internal diameter of 31 ft. 3 in. Separate tunnels for cyclists and pedestrians were opened in 1951 but the main scheme was deferred because of restrictions on capital expenditure on roadworks. Part of the cost will be recovered by tolls. The project will take about 5 years to complete and will cost approximately £12,500,000 towards which the Minister of Transport is making grants and loans amounting to £9,500,000.

New Thames Road Tunnel.—The driving of a new road tunnel under the Thames, from Dartford, Kent, to Purfleet, Essex, started on March 21, 1957. The project was authorized by Acts of Parliament in 1930 and 1937 and a pilot tunnel was completed in 1938, but progress was interrupted by the war. It is estimated that the scheme will take 5 years to complete and will cost about £11,000,000, of which three-quarters is to be repaid by toll revenue from 3,000,000 vehicles expected to use the tunnel each year. The tunnel and its approach roads will connect the London—Southend Road (A.13) and the London—Rochester Road (A.2), passing over or under intervening roads.

Situated in the Long Reach of the Thames, where the river is half a mile wide, the project provides for a single tunnel 4,700 feet long, carrying a roadway for two lanes of traffic. The roadway will fall from the tunnel entrances towards the river on gradients of 1 in 28 with a short section practically level underneath the river. At the lowest point in the tunnel the roadway will be 100 ft. below the high water level. The tunnel is iron lined to an internal diameter of 28 ft., using some 34,000 tons of cast iron and 260,000 bolts. The existing pilot tunnel of 12 ft. diameter was dismantled as construction of the full tunnel proceeded and its lining recovered for use elsewhere. The carriageway in the tunnel, carried on a reinforced concrete structure, will be 21 ft. wide between the kerbs, with minimum vertical headroom of 16 ft. at the kerb. Pedestrians will not be admitted to the tunnel.

Duplication of Blackwall Tunnel.—In June, 1960, work started on the duplication of the road traffic tunnel under the Thames at Blackwall. The new tunnel will be about 250 yards downstream from the old one. It will have a 20 ft. carriageway and on completion in 1965 will take southbound traffic only, while the old tunnel will carry northbound traffic. The northern approaches have been redesigned accordingly. The tunnel will cost about £6,700,000, towards which the Ministry of Transport will make a grant of about £5,000,000.

New Clyde Road Tunnel.—Work has been proceeding since June, 1957, on driving a new road tunnel under the River Clyde in Glasgow. This project, authorized by Act of Parliament in 1947, provides for two tunnels to link A.814 at Whiteinch with A.8 at Linthouse at a total cost now estimated at more than £10,000,000. The tunnels and approaches will provide two 12-ft. carriageways with a nominal headroom of 16 ft. 6 ins. and will cater for cyclists and pedestrians below the main carriageways. Difficult ground conditions caused serious delay at the end of 1960, but the first tunnel was expected to be open to traffic in 1963 and the second a year later.

New Road Bridge across the Firth of Forth.—Under powers conferred on the Forth Road Bridge Joint Board by Acts of Parliament between 1947 and 1960, a suspension bridge is being built to carry A.90 across the Firth of Forth at South Queensferry.

Construction began in September, 1958, and is expected to continue for 5 years and to cost about £17,000,000, of which £11,850,000 will be found by Government loan to be repaid from tolls charged for the use of the bridge. The new bridge will be about half a mile upstream from the famous railway bridge and the clear centre span of 3,300 ft. will be the longest in Europe. Dual carriageways each of 24 ft. and, outside the main cables, cycle tracks and footpaths of 9 ft. and 6 ft. respectively will be provided. The main towers, rising to 500 feet above sea level, and the suspension cable anchorages were completed in 1961 and the spinning of the suspension cables by a process new on this side of the Atlantic in 1962. A start had also been made in laying the bridge decking and in construction of approach viaducts and approach roads on each side of the Firth.

Motoring Offences.—A total of £2,989,375 in fines was paid by motorists in 1961. The number of persons charged in respect of 1,170,550 offences was 929,631. In addition written warnings were sent to 248,940 persons in respect of 273,718 alleged offences. Of the 680,691 persons prosecuted, 15,463 were arrested.

Convictions numbered 861,548 (against 765,365 in 1960) and a sentence of imprisonment without the option of a fine was passed on 3,257 persons for 6,422 offences. The number of motorists fined was 648,941 for 837,542 offences. Endorsements of licences numbered 276,864, of which 48,887 involved disqualification.

British Road Accident Statistics

Road accident figures were first recorded in Great Britain in 1909. In that year about 100,000 motor vehicles were licensed; and there were 1,070 fatal road accidents and 26,091 accidents resulting in non-fatal injuries, excluding those accidents attributed to pedal cycles. As the number of motor vehicles on the road increased, so did the annual casualty figures. Statistics of road accident deaths and injuries were first recorded in 1926. In that year there were 4,803 fatal and 119,484 non-fatal accidents, resulting in 4,886 deaths and 133,888 serious and slight injuries; and by then there were about 1,720,000 vehicles in use. Road casualty figures have been compiled, in increasing detail, since that time by the Ministry of Transport.

The accompanying table lists the total of road deaths and injuries in this country since 1926. The reporting of non-fatal injuries was suspended during the early part of the last war; and in fact during the rest of the war the reporting of slight injury cases was probably incomplete. Fatalities now exclude those occurring after 30 days. Over the years the volume of road traffic has increased steadily, particularly since the war; deaths and injuries, particularly the latter, have also risen, though not to quite the same extent.

By 1961 the annual road casualty toll had reached almost 350,000, including nearly 7,000 deaths. But there are 10,000,000 motor vehicles on our roads today; i.e. 51 vehicles per mile of road (the roads cover over 195,000 miles, one vehicle for every 35 yards, and on average, there is a death every 76 minutes and an injury every 92 seconds. Each day 19 road users are killed and 940 injured (a quarter of them seriously). Thus, despite the alarming rise in road accidents and casualties this century, reflecting the growth of traffic in this age of the motor vehicle, the tendency has been for accident rates to decline steadily. Thus for example, in 1935 personal-injury accidents per 100 vehicles licensed numbered 7.6, a rate which dropped to 6.3 just before the war. Soon after the war the rate was 4.4, and by 1961 it had fallen to 2.7. To consider the death rate is even more favourable. Just after the war the number of deaths per 10,000 vehicles was over 16, whereas today the rate, having fallen rapidly in the intervening years, is down to seven.

THE POST OFFICE

Crown services for the conveyance of Government letters and despatches by posts or stages were set up under a Master of the Posts about 1516. Public correspondence was officially accepted for the first time for conveyance by these services at fixed postage rates in 1635, but they were still under direct Crown control. In 1657 a Post Office was created under a Postmaster-General by Oliver Cromwell, and responsibility for the carrying of all letters was thus transferred to Parliament, Charles II ratified this arrangement by statute in 1660.

COUNTER SERVICES

At March 31, 1962, there were 1,822 Crown Post Offices and 23,181 Sub-Post Offices. Postage stamps to the value of £108,570,000 were sold in 1961-62 compared with £107,548,000 in 1960-61. 188,027,000 Family Allowances to the value of £139,885,000 were paid in 1961-62 (1960-61: 190,065,000 worth £136,805,000) and 53,874,000 Service Allowances to the value of £155,296,000 (1960-61: 57,860,000 worth £147,245,000). 22,095,000 licences were issued in 1961-62 compared with 22,251,000 in 1960-61 (Broadcast Receiving Licences, Sound £3,486,000; Combined Sound and Television £51,256,000 (including Excise Duty) and other licences to the value of £26,145,000).

Savings Business.—Savings Stamps to the value of £59,282,000 were sold compared with £55,797,000 in 1960-61. Savings Bank: Deposits £525,921,000 (£472,058,000); Withdrawals, £394,330,000 (£382,418,000) Savings Certificates issued £102,171,000 (£126,636,000); Repaid, £97,843,000 (£103,038,000). Remittance Services.—25,357,000 Inland Money Orders to the value of £325,913,000 were paid, compared with 24,244,000 (£306,560,000) in 1960-61. Overseas Money Orders numbered 3,045,000 (£12,426,000) compared with 3,176,000 (£12,924,000) in 1960-61. 659,738,000 Postal Orders were issued to the value of £444,609,000 compared with 720,731,000 in 1960-61 to the value of £438,132,000.

STAFF

On March 31, 1962, the total staff of the Post Office numbered 366,007, compared with 350,531 in March 1961. The total includes 25,000 part-time workers counted as a half each. Staff were divided as follows: Administration, 7,627; Postal Operating, 166,579; Telecommunications Operating, 86,520; Engineering, 92,947; Supply Department, 7,097; Motor Transport, 5,237.

In addition 22,936 Sub-postmasters are employed.

DEVELOPMENT PLANS, 1962-63

Postal.—The building programme provides for a start to be made on 65 new post offices and 50 sorting or delivery offices and further modernization or replacement of the older post offices. Projects for the further mechanization of postal services include provision of mail-handling machinery, including overhead chain conveyors to carry mail in both directions between sorting offices and railway stations where they are adjacent; the first chain conveyor links of this type to be introduced at Preston and Shrewsbury in 1963. Development and trials of new types of mail handling machinery will continue. A large scale experiment in the improvement of parcel distribution was planned to take place in the East Anglia area.

Inland Telecommunication.—Plans have been made to increase the number of trunk circuits from about 33,400 to about 37,000 during the year, by means of new cables and radio links and by modifying existing cable systems to give greater capacity. The total number of telephone connections at April 1, 1962, approximately 5,060,000, was expected to be raised to 5,260,000 by March 31, 1963 (new connections, 450,000; cessations 250,000). Estimated number of telephones in use at end of year, 9,000,000. The telephone waiting list was approximately 53,000 on April 1, 1962.

Development of the telephone service to fully automatic standard is planned to be complete by 1970. During 1962-63 a further 100 manual exchanges are due to be converted to automatic working, when 87 per cent. of subscribers will then have automatic service. There are plans for the building of 130 new telephone exchanges and 45 engineering centres and workshops. Subscriber Trunk Dialling—the service which enables subscribers to dial Trunk calls for themselves—is rapidly being introduced throughout the country. It is already available in most of the large towns and cities and by March, 1963, approximately one third of subscribers in the country on about 500 exchanges should have the facility. A new type of coinbox, permitting call office users to dial their own trunk calls, is also being installed. It was planned to introduce about 1,700 new Telex lines during the year, bringing the total to 10,400.

A 600 feet radio tower to carry new trunk and television links was under construction in Central London in 1962 and installation of equipment was expected to commence in 1963. The tower will be the tallest building in the U.K. and will be provided with public observation platforms and a rotating restaurant at the top.

Overseas Telecommunications.—In the overseas telegraph service, operators in London can now dial a large number of offices in Western Europe on the Gextex network and teleprint messages straight through. Installation of a "torn tape" message relay unit in London has commenced and improved services and economy in staffing is expected to be achieved as mechanization in this field develops. Direct dialling facilities for U.K. telex subscribers to Europe are being extended and already more than 80 per cent. of British telex calls to Europe are dialled through to the distant telex installation by the caller.

The installation of equipment to enable London telephone subscribers to dial calls direct to European numbers will continue in preparation for the general introduction of the facility in 1964. Manufacture of a further Transatlantic submarine telephone cable to be laid in the Summer of 1963 is in progress and new telephone cables to be laid to Germany and Denmark were also being made in 1962. A communications satellite (Telstar) was launched from Cape Canaveral, Florida on July 10 and a series of experiments and demonstrations in communications by satellite began at once. The G.P.O. ground station at Goonhilly Down, Cornwall, satisfactorily received and transmitted telegraph, telephone and television signals.

FUEL USED

Electricity.—Consumption of coal in the production of electricity rose from 14,010 thousand tons in 1938, to 53,988 thousand tons in 1961. Coke, including coke breeze, consumed in 1938 was 176,000 tons; in 1961 864,000 tons. Oil consumption rose from 20,000 tons in 1938 to 5,400,000 tons in 1961.

Gas.—Consumption of coal in the production of gas rose from 19.1 million tons in 1938 to 22.2 million tons in 1961-62. Oil for gasmaking rose from 124,000 tons in 1938 to 866,000 tons in 1961-62.

New Houses and Flats

Of the 92,880 new dwellings completed by local authorities in 1961, 42.2 per cent. were flats. 39.9 per cent. of the new dwellings had 3 bedrooms, 32.0 had 2 bedrooms, 26.1 per cent. had 1 bedroom and 2.0 per cent. 4 or more bedrooms.

Cost.—In the first quarter of 1952, the average tender price approved by the Ministry of Housing and Local Government was £1,380 (or 28s. 0½d. per square foot) for a traditional three-bedroom house of an average floor area of 984 sq. feet (including out-buildings). The average tender price for this type of house at the beginning of 1956 was £1,448 (or 31s. 6½d. per square foot), with a smaller average floor area of 918 square feet. In the last quarter of 1961, the average tender price for all types of three-bedroom houses (including new traditional houses) was £1,832 or 40s. 8d. per sq. ft., providing an average floor area per house of 902 sq. ft.

Conversions and Improvements

In 1961, applications for grants under the Housing Acts for the improvement or conversion of 128,584 houses were approved, including applications made by local authorities and housing associations for the conversion of 1,675 dwellings, for improvements to 9,004 dwellings and for provision of standard amenities in 32,139 dwellings. Applications by private persons were approved for 3,462 conversions, improvements in 33,804 dwellings and provision of standard amenities in 48,500 dwellings.

Slum Clearance and Repair

In 1961, 64,330 houses were demolished or closed in England and Wales, including 37,941 in scheduled clearance areas, and 165,838 persons were moved to other housing in consequence. At the end of 1961, a total of 35,575 unfit houses were retained in temporary occupation. As a result of informal action by local authorities, 142,866 dwellings were made fit or had defects remedied; in formal proceedings under the Health or Housing Acts, a further 78,332 dwellings were made fit or brought up to standard by their owners or by local authorities in default of action by the owners. 429 houses were reconstructed, enlarged or improved under the Housing Act, 1957.

INDUSTRIAL STOPPAGES IN THE UNITED KINGDOM, 1942-1961

The year 1957 saw the highest number ever recorded of stoppages of work due to industrial disputes, a total of 2,859, involving 1,275,000 workers directly, 81,000 indirectly, and a loss of 8,412,000 working days. A widespread engineering stoppage in 1957 caused the loss of 4,000,000 working days and a national shipbuilding stoppage a further 2,150,000. The peak figure of 1957 was again nearly approached in 1960.

STOPPAGES OF WORK IN 1961

In the United Kingdom in 1961, there were 2,686 new stoppages of work and a further 15 which had been in progress at the beginning of the year, a total of 2,701, compared with 2,849 stoppages in progress in 1960. 779,000 workers were involved in these stoppages, of whom approximately 99,000 were thrown out of work at the establishments where the stoppages occurred, but were not parties to the dispute. The comparable figures for 1960 were 819,000 and 118,000.

In all stoppages in progress in 1961, those involving the greatest numbers of workers and working days lost were as follows. Coal Mining.—The net figure of individual workers involved was 194,000 who were involved in more than one stoppage during the year and are counted more than once in the year's total of 248,600. Aggregate working days lost, 737,000. Motor Vehicle and Cycle Manufacturing.—83,000 individual workers were involved, some in more than one stoppage, making a total of 125,000 workers involved and a loss of 425,000 working days. Shipbuilding and Marine Engineering.—41,000 individual workers were involved, some in more than one stoppage, making a total of 64,200 workers involved and 388,000 working days lost. Construction.—Workers stopped 47,900; days lost, 285,000. Iron and Steel Manufactures.—Workers stopped, 31,400; days lost, 268,000. Engineering (other than Electrical).—Workers stopped, 49,500; days lost, 162,000; Port and Inland Water Transport.—Workers stopped, 35,600; days lost, 159,000.

AVERAGE EARNINGS AND HOURS OF WORK

Particulars of the earnings of manual wage-earners and hours worked in manufacturing industries generally and in some of the non-manufacturing industries and services are collected periodically by the Ministry of Labour. The average weekly hours of work and average weekly earnings of workers in the United Kingdom in 1938 and in 1956–1962 were as follows:—

NOTE.—A farm may consist of more than one holding. It is estimated that there are about 300,000 full-time farmers in Great Britain, and, in addition, about 55,500 part-time or “hobby” farmers.

According to the latest available figures, of the total number of agricultural holdings in Great Britain 78 per cent. were of 100 acres or less in area. In England, the average size was 76 acres, compared with Scotland's 71 acres and an average of 52 acres in Wales. In England and Wales, 95 per cent. of all rural dwellings now have access to a piped water supply, and by 1962, 86.9 per cent. of all farms were provided with a mains supply of electricity. The number of farm horses has fallen by 82 per cent since 1939 and Britain now has one of the highest tractor densities in the world.

Production Objectives and Price Guarantees

In the Annual Review and Determination of Guarantees presented to Parliament in March 1962, the Government announced that agricultural net output in 1961-62 was forecast at 83 per cent above pre-war, compared with 78 per cent, for 1960-61. On the basis where the average net agricultural output of the years 1954-55 to 1956-57 is taken as 100, the forecast for net output in 1961-62 is 122, compared with revised figures of 119 for 1960-61 and 112 for 1959-60.

The total cereals acreage in 1961 fell below the high level of 1960, but yields were all above the five-year average. The home production of beef has greatly increased and a further increase is forecast for 1962-63. The decline in 1961 in the number of calves retained for beef production has been arrested. The rate of expansion of pig breeding herds is lessening and the output of pig-meat recovered from the slight fall in 1960-61: that of mutton and lamb is expected to rise 10 per cent above last year's record level. A rise of nearly 5 per cent over 1960-61 is forecast for the output of hen eggs, which continues to meet nearly the whole of home demand for shell eggs.

In 1960-61 there was a record net income for the industry of £389½ m., and, despite adverse weather conditions, a further increase of £42 m. is forecast for 1961-62. The cost of goods and services used in agriculture has risen, however, and the expense of agricultural support to the Exchequer has markedly increased to £263 m. in 1960-61 and is forecast at £351 m. for 1961-62.

In making the determinations the Government's policy has been: to help small farmers who have been outside the scope of the present Scheme, to tackle problems facing certain commodities and to stimulate market development and research, for which the Government has offered to make a system of grants at an average rate of 50 per cent. of the cost of a project. This year, there was a reduction of almost £11 million in the total value of the guarantees compared with the reduction of about £14 m. in 1961-62.

According to the terms agreed to in the 1961 Annual Review, this year, the Government has decided to reduce the guaranteed price of milk by not more than half of last year's increase, as production continues to rise faster than liquid consumption and no satisfactory scheme has been found whereby excess milk can be sold profitably to manufacturers to maintain the pool price. The egg guaranteed price has also been reduced to prevent production exceeding demand.

Meat prices have been low owing to the increase in home production and deterioration in quality of fat cattle. The standard of cattle accepted for the guarantee will therefore be raised, but good quality young beasts will now be eligible at a weight lower than the general minimum, and the maximum weights on which guarantee payments are made will be reduced. The stabilizing limits will be widened to 10s. per cwt. The Government has decided to use similar means to help the similar difficulties of the fat sheep market, and encourage marketing at the most popular weights.

Under the new arrangement for fat pigs, where the guaranteed price is adjusted according to the number of pigs forecast to receive guarantees, a reduction of 6d. per score was made in the basic guaranteed price, as the forecast number rose to between 10.8 and 11 million in February 1962.

The present balance between guaranteed prices of cereals appears to be satisfactory. The price differential for sugar content will be increased in 1963 to encourage beet of a higher sugar content, and so to reduce costs all round.

These determinations have not been influenced by the United Kingdom's application for membership of the E.E.C. New policies will be formed to suit the situation when the outcome of the negotiations is definite.

Following is the index of the condition of each principal crop in Great Britain on September 1, 1962, published in The Times, with its 10-year average. 100 is taken to represent healthy condition, full growth and freedom from injury: wheat, 96 (94); barley, 94 (92); oats, 91 (90), potatoes, 91 (89); sugar beet, 94 (92); grass, 93 (91).

LOCAL GOVERNMENT IN THE UNITED KINGDOM

ENGLAND AND WALES

Local government is carried on by directly elected councils whose powers and duties are defined by statute, under the general supervision of various departments of the central government. Departments principally concerned are the Ministries of Housing and Local Government, Education, Health and Transport; and, in matters affecting law and order, police, fire services, care of children, civil defence preparations, etc., the Home Office. Supervision is by means of inspections and enquiries, issue of Regulations and Orders, approval of bye-laws, loan sanctions for capital expenditure, examination of accounts and the administration of government grants.

County Councils.—Constituted by the Local Government Act, 1888, they were made responsible for administrative duties which were previously performed by the justices of the peace in quarter sessions. In the main their functions relate to the more important services. In most cases the area of the administrative county is that of the geographical county, excluding county boroughs. Lincolnshire, Suffolk, Sussex and Yorkshire are exceptions, being divided into parts, each with a separate council, for administrative convenience. Councils consist of a chairman, aldermen and councillors. The chairman, who may receive remuneration, is elected annually by the council, either from among the aldermen or councillors or from persons eligible for election as aldermen or councillors. The aldermen form a quarter of the council; they are elected by the councillors from among themselves or persons eligible to be councillors and hold office for six years, half retiring every three years. Councillors are elected by local government electors for three years. Excluding London there are 61 county councils in England and Wales (see pp. 631-3; Wales, pp. 676-7).

County Borough Councils.—Boroughs with populations of 50,000 or more in 1888 and some ancient counties of cities were constituted by the Local Government Act, 1888, as county boroughs; their councils were given the same powers and duties as county councils, but they are also governed by the general law affecting boroughs and have the same constitution. Until 1926 other boroughs reaching 50,000 population could seek county borough status, but the figure was then raised to 75,000. The Local Government Act, 1958, again raised the figure, to 100,000, and placed a 15-year prohibition on Private Bills for this purpose. (Although important, level of population is only one factor in the attainment of county borough status.) There are 83 county borough councils in England and Wales (see pp. 664-71; Wales, p. 676).

The district councils within a county are borough councils (other than county borough councils), urban district councils and rural district councils.

Borough Councils.—Constituted in their present form by the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882. Urban district councils may by royal charter be incorporated as boroughs. Borough councils consist of a mayor, aldermen and councillors. The mayor, who presides at council meetings and may be paid, and the aldermen, are elected and hold office for the same terms as chairmen and aldermen of county councils (see above). Councillors are elected by the burgesses (local government electors of the borough) for a term of three years, one-third of the council retiring each year. The lists on pp. 672-4 indicate how the political parties were represented on the councils of the more important boroughs in 1962. There are 317 non-county boroughs in England and Wales (see pp. 664-71; Wales, p. 676).

Urban and Rural District Councils.—The Public Health Act, 1875, consolidated legislation on public health and conferred various powers and duties on local sanitary authorities and these bodies were re-constituted by the Local Government Act, 1894, as urban and rural district councils. They are corporate bodies and have a common seal. District councils consist of a chairman, elected annually by the council, and councillors elected for a term of three years. The chairman may receive an allowance. An important part of their responsibility is in the local administration of the Public Health Acts and Housing Acts. Urban district councils are also highway authorities. Both types of authority levy rates; they may raise loans for various purposes and make bye-laws with the sanction of the central Government. There are 564 urban district councils and 474 rural district councils in England and Wales.

Parish Councils and Parish Meetings.—Local government responsibility is for the area of the civil parish in rural areas and for purely secular matters. Parish meetings consist of all the local government electors of the parish under a chairman chosen by the meeting and must be held at least twice a year where there is no parish council. Parish councils consist of a chairman and a number of councillors which may vary from five to twenty-one, elected for three years. Parishes with a population of more than 300 must have a parish council. A parish meeting must be held annually and is presided over by the chairman of the parish council. Rates to meet the expenses of the parish council are levied by the rural district council.

London.—Local government is carried on by London County Council (see pp. 641-644), the Corporation of the City of London (pp. 635-41) and by the councils of the 28 metropolitan boroughs listed on p. 634. A Royal Commission set up to review local government in Greater London reported in October, 1960. The Government announced acceptance of most of the recommendations made and proposed to bring the necessary changes into effect by April, 1965. The result will be the creation of a Greater London Council and of 33 London boroughs in the population range 180,000 to 350,000.

Local Government Act, 1958.—The Act provides machinery for the review of areas and status of local authorities in the rest of England and Wales and for making changes where necessary in the interests of effective and convenient administration.

Local Government Elections

Generally speaking all British subjects or citizens of the Republic of Ireland of 21 years or over resident on the qualifying date in the area for which the election is being held are entitled to vote at local government elections. There is also a non-resident qualification (see p. 1154). A register of electors is prepared and published annually by local electoral registration officers. There are 9,293,898 local government electors in county boroughs, 15,819,102 in municipal boroughs, urban districts, the City of London and the metropolitan boroughs, and 5,983,735 in rural districts. These figures exclude "Y" voters, i.e. persons having their 21st birthday between Oct. 12 and June 16, who are entitled to vote at elections held after Oct. 1 following. County council elections are held triennially, usually in April, and elections for other authorities annually or triennially in May.

Voting takes place at polling stations arranged by the local authority and under the supervision of a presiding officer specially appointed for the purpose. Candidates, who are subject to various statutory qualifications and disqualifications designed to secure that they are suitable persons to hold office, must be nominated by two electors and, except in metropolitan borough, rural district or parish council elections, must secure the assent of eight other electors to the nomination. County council elections are based on divisions of the county regulated by the Home Secretary, each of which returns a single member; most boroughs, including county and metropolitan boroughs, are divided into wards, each electing its own members; other authorities may be so divided or may remain as single units depending upon their sizes.

Local Government Services

Local authorities must in their areas provide the services and carry out the functions required by various Acts of Parliament. They may provide additional services under general permissive legislation or under "local" Acts of Parliament which they have promoted as Private Bills. The nature of the duties imposed on local authorities and the scope of the services which they provide vary according to the type of authority. The only all-purpose council is that of the county borough. In the counties functions are divided between the county council and the borough and district councils and there is considerable delegation of functions by the county council to these other authorities, e.g. in education and planning matters. Principal subjects of local government administration are:—

Public health services (prevention of epidemics, abatement of sanitary nuisances, etc.) under the Public Health Act, 1936; local health services under the National Health Service; Care of deprived children; Welfare services for the aged and infirm and for the handicapped, under the National Assistance Act, 1948.

Housing; Land drainage; Water supply; Sewerage; Refuse collection and disposal; Baths and washhouses; Cemeteries.

Town and country planning; Parks and recreation grounds; Smallholdings and allotments.

Roads and bridges; Road safety; Street lighting; Harbours, docks and piers; Passenger transport.

Education; Public libraries, museums and art galleries; Municipal entertainments; Civic restaurants; Information centres.

Police; Fire services; Civil defence services.

Food and drugs inspection; Weights and measures.

Local Government Committees and Staff

Detailed administration of local government services is commonly carried out by committees, matters of policy being decided by the council as a whole; the appointment of certain committees is made compulsory by Act of Parliament. Committees may be executive or advisory; they may be constituted on a permanent basis as Standing Committees or as Special Committees set up for a limited period to deal with a particular subject; their powers and duties are laid down in the Standing Orders of the Council (subject in some cases to special statutory provisions). Where services such as water supply and sewerage are shared between two or more authorities, Joint Committees or Boards of representatives of the authorities concerned are set up to administer the service. Police forces of counties are administered in this way by the Standing Joint Committee of members drawn in equal numbers from the county council and the justices in quarter sessions.

The executive policy of the local authority is carried out by a salaried staff varying in number according to the type of authority. The chief official is, in boroughs, the Town Clerk, and elsewhere the Clerk of the Council, and these appointments, together with those of certain other executive officers, are compulsory. Appointments of staff (including professional, technical and clerical classes, and manual workers) are made to a set establishment.

Local Government Finance

Local government is financed from various sources. (1) Rates.—Levied by county borough, borough and district councils and in London by the City Corporation and the metropolitan boroughs. Sums required by county councils are included in the rates levied by metropolitan and non-county borough and district councils. Rates are levied by a poundage tax on the rateable value of property in the area of the rating authority. De-rating.—Agricultural land and buildings are exempt from rates under the Local Government Act, 1929. The same Act, as amended by the Local Government Act, 1958, provides for industrial and freight-transport hereditaments to be rated at 50 per cent. of their net annual values. The Rating and Valuation Act, 1957, effected a temporary reduction of 20 per cent. in the rateable values of shops, offices, hotels and other commercial property, for the duration of the present valuation lists. Valuation for rating, formerly the responsibility of local authorities, was transferred to the Board of Inland Revenue by the Local Government Act, 1948. (a) Government Grants.—From 1948-49 to 1958-59, the Exchequer made annual equalization grants to counties and county boroughs whose rateable value was below the average rateable value per head of weighted population in England and Wales to bring their respective rateable values up to the average level. Equalization grants replaced the former "block" grants paid to local authorities until 1948, which included an element of compensation for loss of revenue through de-rating. Percentage grants covered an agreed proportion of expenditure on approved services such as education, health, police and fire services. Special grants were also made.

The Local Government Act, 1958, provided for a new general grant, payable from 1959-60 onwards, in replacement of the grants for education, etc., services mentioned above and the grants on certain other services. The amount of the general grant is fixed in advance for a short period of years though not necessarily at the same level for each year of the period. If it appears that expenditure which previously attracted specific grant is bound to vary materially in the later years of a period the amount to be distributed by way of general grant will be graduated accordingly. This general grant is distributed to all County and County Borough Councils by reference to objective factors (mainly of weighted population) which are readily ascertainable and afford a fair and reasonable measure of the relative needs of each authority.

The equalization grant mentioned above ceased to be payable after 1958-59, except for balances due in respect of previous years, and was replaced for 1959-60 onwards by a rate deficiency grant based on rate products instead of rateable values as hitherto. This is paid direct to County District Councils and to Counties and County Boroughs whose resources in terms of rate product per head of population are below the average.

(3) Loans.—Local authorities may raise loans on the security of the rates, with the sanction of the central Government department directly concerned, for capital expenditure on housing, roads, markets, municipal transport services, sewerage works, etc.

On March 31, 1960, there were outstanding loans in England and Wales to the amount of £5,656,650,000; against this total the sum of £28,547,000 stood at the credit of various sinking funds.

SCOTLAND

Scotland is divided for local government purposes into counties, burghs and districts, and local authorities are similar to those in England and Wales.

County Councils.—First constituted in 1889, they are responsible for local government of the geographical area of the county excluding for most purposes the large burghs. For certain purposes the counties of Perth and Kinross, and Moray and Nairn are combined. County councils include representatives from the landward areas and from all the burghs which are within the county for any purpose, town councils electing representatives from among their own members. Councillors are elected triennially. The chairman of the county council is the convener of the County. There are 33 county councils in Scotland (see pp. 680-1).

Town Councils.—The town councils of the counties of cities (Edinburgh, Glasgow, Aberdeen and Dundee) are all-purpose authorities similar to the county borough councils in England and Wales and are presided over by the Lord Provost.

Scottish burghs are Royal burghs (incorporated by Royal Charter, 69), Parliamentary burghs (created by the Reform Act, 1832, with the right to send members to Parliament, 14) and Police burghs (all other burghs with a population of 7,000 or more, 115). Town councils consist of a provost (chairman), bailies and councillors. The provost and bailies (the equivalent of aldermen in England) are elected by the councillors from among themselves and hold office for three years; they are the magistrates of the burgh.

Large burghs other than the counties of cities, are independent for all purposes except that for valuation, electoral registration, education and, in some cases, police, they are included in the county; small burghs are within the county not only for these purposes but also for such purposes as classified roads, planning, etc.

There are 198 town councils in Scotland (counties of cities, 4; other large burghs, 20; small burghs, 174). (See pp. 681-2; 684-5.)

District Councils.—Outside the burghs the county council is responsible for most local government functions but district councils have statutory functions with regard to recreation grounds, rights of way, allotments, bus shelters and other local matters. Two counties—Kinross and Nairn—are not divided into districts. District councils consist of elected members and the county councillors for the district ex officio. There are 199 district councils in Scotland.

Local Government Electors.—In Scotland there are 1,260,813 electors in counties of cities, 571,126 in other large burghs, 603,843 in small burghs and 989,332 in landward areas—Total 3,425,114.

Product of 1d. rate in Scottish Cities

The estimated product of 1d. in Glasgow in 1961-62 was £85,819; in Edinburgh, £48,160; in Dundee, £15,838; and in Aberdeen, £14,556. Amounts of rates raised per head were: Glasgow, 430s. 3d.; Edinburgh, 346s. 3d.; Dundee, 395s. 9d.; and Aberdeen, 388s. 9d.

NORTHERN IRELAND

The structure of local government in Northern Ireland is similar to that of England and Wales. Types of local authority are: county councils, 6; county boroughs, 2; non-county boroughs or municipal councils, 9; urban district councils, 25; and rural district councils, 31. (See p. 691.)

Electors.—The register published on Feb. 15, 1961, contained the names of 645,461 local government electors. Of this total, 198,639 related to the County Borough of Belfast and 22,414 to Londonderry County Borough. A new electoral register will be published on Feb. 15, 1964.

Local Government Debts.—The total amount of outstanding loans and capitalized annuities in Northern Ireland on March 31, 1961, was £118,484,247 (excluding Hospitals).

POLICE

The Police of England and Wales are administered by the Home Office, those of Scotland by the Scottish Home and Health Department and those of Northern Ireland by the Ministry of Home Affairs.

LONDON FIRE BRIGADE

Headquarters: Albert Embankment, S.E.1.

The former Metropolitan Fire Brigade (founded 1866) was taken over by London County Council under the Local Government Act, 1888, and in 1904 the title "London Fire Brigade" was adopted. The Brigade was considerably augmented during the 1939-45 war, when it was part of the National Fire Service (1941-48). It was returned to the control of London County Council on April 1, 1948.

The number of calls to which the Brigade responded during the year ending December 31, 1961, totalled 28,900, the fires numbered 13,502, chimney fires 3,089, false alarms 8,695 (including 4,039 malicious false alarms), and the calls to perform special services numbered 3,614.

Under the provisions of the Civil Defence Act, 1948, an Auxiliary Fire Service was re-established. Chief Officer, L. W. T. Leete, M.B.E. Deputy Chief Officer (vacant). Assistant Chief Officer, J. K. H. Cunningham, M.B.E. Administrative Officer.—E. W. Parker.

THE KINGDOM OF ENGLAND

Position and Extent.—The Kingdom of England occupies the southern portion of the island of Great Britain and lies between $55^{\circ} 46'$ and $49^{\circ} 57' 30''$ N. latitude (from the mouth of the Tweed to the Lizard), and between $1^{\circ} 46'$ E. and $5^{\circ} 43'$ W. (from Lowestoft to Land's End). England is bounded on the north by the summit of the Cheviot Hills, which form a natural boundary with the Kingdom of Scotland; on the south by the English Channel; on the east by the Straits of Dover (Pas de Calais) and the North Sea; and on the west by the Atlantic Ocean, Wales and the Irish Sea. Area, 50,331 square miles. Population (Census of 1961, preliminary), 43,430,972, compared with 41,159,213 at the Census of 1951.

Relief.—There is a natural orographic division into the hilly districts of the north, west and south-west, and the undulating downs and low-lying plains of the east and south-east. In the extreme north the Cheviot Hills run from east to west, culminating in the Cheviot, 2,676 feet above mean sea level. Divided from the Cheviots by the Tyne Gap is the Pennine Chain, running N. by W. to S. by E., with its highest point in Cross Fell, 2,930 feet above mean sea level. West of the Pennines are the Cumbrian Mountains, which contain in Scafell Pike (3,210 feet) the highest land in England, and east of the Pennines are the Yorkshire Moors, their highest point being Urra Moor (1,489 feet). South of the Pennines are the Peak of Derbyshire (2,088 feet) and Dartmoor (High Willhays, 2,039 feet). In the western county of Shropshire are the isolated Wrekin (1,335 feet), Longmynd (1,696 feet), and Brown Clee (1,792 feet); in Herefordshire the Black Mountain (2,310 feet); in Worcestershire the Malvern Hills (1,395 feet); in Monmouthshire (now usually grouped with Wales) the Sugar Loaf (1,955 feet) and Colty (1,905 feet), and the Cotswold Hills of Gloucestershire contain Cleeve Clod (1,134 feet).

Hydrography.—The Thames is the longest and most important river of England, with a total length of 210 miles from its source in the Cotswold Hills; to its outflow into the North Sea, and is navigable by ocean-going steamers to London Bridge. The Thames is tidal to Teddington (69 miles from its mouth) and forms county boundaries almost throughout its course; on its banks are situated London, the capital of the British Commonwealth; Windsor Castle, the home of the Sovereign; Eton College, the first of the public schools, and Oxford, the oldest university in the kingdom. The Severn is the longest river in Great Britain, rising in the north-eastern slopes of Plinlimmon (Wales) and entering England in Shropshire, with a total length of 220 miles from its source to its outflow into the Bristol Channel, where it receives on the left the Bristol Avon, and on the right the Wye, its other tributaries being the Vyrnwy, Tern, Stour, Teme and Upper (or Warwickshire) Avon. The Severn is tidal below Gloucester, and a high bore or tidal wave sometimes reverses the flow as high as Tewkesbury (13½ miles above Gloucester). The scenery of the greater part of the river is very picturesque and beautiful, and the Severn is a noted salmon river, some of its tributaries being famous for trout. Navigation is assisted by the Gloucester and Berkeley Ship Canal (16½ miles), which admits vessels of 350 tons to Gloucester. The Severn Tunnel, 14 miles below the Sharpness Bridge, begun in 1873 and completed in 1886 (at a cost of £2,000,000) after many difficulties from flooding, is 4 miles 624 yards in length (of which 2½ miles are under the river). A road bridge over the Severn estuary, between Haysgate, Mon., and Almondsbury, Glos., (which will be the largest in Europe and the third largest in the world, with a centre span of 3,300 ft.) was under construction in 1962. Of the remaining English rivers those flowing into the North Sea are the Tyne, Wear, Tees, Ouse and Trent from the Pennine Range, the Great Ouse (160 miles) from the Central Plain, and the Orwell and Stour from the hills of East Anglia. Flowing into the English Channel are the Sussex Ouse from the Weald, the Itchen from the Wiltshire and Hampshire Hills, and the Axe, Teign, Dart, Tamar and Exe from the Devonian Hills; and flowing into the Irish Sea are the Mersey, Ribble and Eden from the western slopes of the Pennines and the Derwent from the Cumbrian Mountains. The English Lakes are noteworthy rather for their picturesque scenery and poetic associations than for their size. These lie mainly in Cumberland, but partly in Westmorland and Lancashire, the largest being Windermere (10 miles long), Ullswater and Derwentwater.

Islands.—The Isle of Wight is separated from Hampshire by the Solent; total area 147 sq. miles, population (1961 Census preliminary), 95,479. The climate is mild and healthy, and many watering places have grown up during the last century. Capital, Newport, at the head of the estuary of the Medina, Cowes (at the mouth) being the chief port; other centres are Ryde, Sandown, Shanklin, Ventnor, Freshwater, Yarmouth, Totland Bay, Seaview and Bembridge. The Scilly Islands, 25 miles from Land's End, consist of about 40 islands, with a total area of about 4,000 acres, only St. Mary's Treco, St. Martin's, St. Agnes and Bryher being inhabited. The capital is Hugh Town, in St. Mary's. The climate is unusually mild, and vegetation luxuriant, semi-tropical plants flourishing in the open. Lundy (=Island), 11 miles N.W. of Hartland Point, Devon, is about 2 miles long and about ½ mile broad (average), with a total area of about 1,050 acres (mainly picturesque), and a population of about 20; it contains the seat of the proprietor of the island and 3 lighthouses (one disused).

Climate.—The mean annual air temperature reduced to sea-level varies from 52° F. at Penzance and the Scilly Islands to 48° F. near Berwick-on-Tweed. In January the south and west are warmer than the east, the mean temperature reduced to sea-level being less than 40° F. over the eastern half of the country. In July the warmest districts are more definitely in the south and inland, the range being from 63° F. around London to less than 59° F. in the extreme north. The decrease of mean temperature with height is about 1° F. per 300 ft. The coldest month of the year is January and the warmest July. Sea temperature reaches its maximum rather later than air temperature. The average annual rainfall decreases from west to east, owing to the preponderance of south-west winds, and also increases with altitude. Of the total area 55 per cent. has an average less than 30 in., 29 per cent. between 30 in. and 40 in. and 16 per cent. more than 40 in. In the neighbourhood of the Thames Estuary the average is only 20 in.; at Seathwaite, Cumberland, 122 in.; and at the wettest spot in the Lake District 185 in. The months of least rain are March to June and the wettest months October to January. September is on the average drier than July and August. The mean annual number of hours of bright sunshine varies from 1,750 hours along the south-east coast to less than 1,300 hours in the neighbourhood of the Pennine range. June is the sunniest month followed by May, July, August and September in that order.

EARLY INHABITANTS

Prehistoric Man.—Palaeolithic and Neolithic remains are abundantly found throughout England. The Neolithic period is held to have merged into the Bronze Age about 2000 to 1500 B.C., and a date between these years has been given to Stonehenge (10 miles N. of Salisbury, Wiltshire) which consists of two circles of menhirs (the largest monolith being 22½ feet in height). The village of Avebury and its surroundings were scheduled in 1937, and in 1943 about 1,000 acres at Avebury were purchased by the National Trust, thus preserving the Circle of megalithic monuments, the Avenue, Silbury Hill, etc., relics of Stone Age culture of 1900-1800 B.C., which make this one of the most important archaeological sites in Europe. The Devil's Arrows, near Boroughbridge, Yorkshire, are regarded as the finest remaining megalithic monoliths in northern Europe; the tallest arrow is 30 ft. 6 in. high and its greatest circumference is 16 ft. In the latter part of the Bronze Age the Goidels, a people of Celtic race, and in the Iron Age other Celtic races of Brythons and Belgae, invaded the country and brought with them Celtic civilization and dialects, place names in England bearing witness to the spread of the invasion over the whole kingdom.

The Roman Conquest.—Julius Cæsar raided Britain in 55 B.C. and 54 B.C. The Emperor Claudius, nearly 100 years later (A.D. 42), dispatched Aulus Plautius, with a well-equipped force of 40,000 all arms, and himself followed with reinforcements in the same year. The British leader from A.D. 48-51 was Caratacus (Caractacus), who was finally captured and sent to Rome. By A.D. 70 the conquest of South Britain was completed, a great revolt under Boadicea, Queen of the Iceni, being crushed in A.D. 61. In A.D. 122, the Emperor Hadrian visited Britain and built a continuous rampart, since known as Hadrian's Wall, from Wallsend to Bowness (Tyne to Solway). The work was entrusted by the Emperor Hadrian to Aulus Platorius Nepos, legate of Britain from 122 to 126, the work being now regarded as "the greatest and most impressive relic of the Roman frontier system in Europe." The Romans administered Britain as a Province under a Governor, with a well-defined system of local government, each Roman municipality ruling itself and the surrounding territory. Colchester, Lincoln, York, Gloucester and St. Albans stand on the sites of five Roman municipalities, while London was the centre of the road system and the seat of the financial officials of the Province of Britain. Well-preserved Roman towns have been uncovered at (or near) Silchester (Calleva Atrebatum), 10 miles south of Reading, Wroxeter (Viroconium), near Shrewsbury, and St. Albans (Verulamium) in Hertfordshire. Four main groups of roads radiated from London, and a fifth (the Fosse) ran obliquely from Ermine Street (at Lincoln), through Leicester, Cirencester and Bath to Exeter. Of the four groups radiating from London one ran S.E. to Canterbury and the coast of Kent, a second to Silchester and thence to parts of Western Britain and South Wales, a third (now known as Walling Street) ran through Verulamium to Chester, with various branches, and the fourth reached Colchester, Lincoln, York and the eastern counties. Christianity reached the Roman province of Britain from Gaul in the 3rd century (or possibly earlier), Alban, "the protomartyr of Britain," being put to death as a Christian during the persecution of Diocletian (June 22, 303), at his native town Verulamium. The Bishops of Londinium, Eboracum (York), and Lindum (Lincoln) attended the Council of Arles in 314. The Roman garrison of Britain was much harassed in the 4th century by Saxon pirates, who invaded the eastern counties. A system of coast defence was organized from the Wash to Southampton Water, with forts at Brancaster, Burgh Castle (Yarmouth), Walton (Felixstowe), Bradwell, Reculver, Richborough, Dover, Stutfall, Pevensey and Porchester (Portsmouth). About A.D. 350 incursions in the north of Irish (Scott) and Picts became most formidable, and towards the end of the 4th century many troops were removed from Britain for service in other parts of the Roman Empire. Early in the 5th century Gaul was taken from the Romans by Teutonic invaders and Britain was cut off from Rome. The last Roman garrison was withdrawn from Britain in A.D. 442 and the S.E. portion was conquered by the Saxons. The Latin-speaking Celts of England were replaced by their heathen and Teutonic conquerors, to the submergence of the Christian religion and the loss of Latin speech. According to legend, the British King Vortigern called in the Saxons to defend him against the Picts, the Saxon chieftains being Hengist and Horsa, who landed at Ebbsfleet, Kent, and established themselves in the Isle of Thanet. Bede, a Northumbrian monk, author of the Ecclesiastical History at the opening of the 8th century, described these settlers as Jutes, and there are traces of differences in Kentish customs from those of other Anglo-Saxon kingdoms.

Anglo-Saxons and Normans.—What happened in Britain during the 150 years which elapsed between the final break with Rome and the coming of St. Augustine is shrouded in the deepest mystery. The Jutes, the Saxons and the Angles (whose gods Twi, Woden, Thunor and Frigg are commemorated in "Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday") were converted to Christianity by a mission under Augustine (dispatched by Pope Gregory in 597), which established Archbishoprics at Canterbury and York, and England appears to have been again converted by the end of the 7th century. In the 8th century Offa, King of Mercia, is stated to have built a wall and rampart, afterwards known as Offa's Dike, from the mouth of the Dee to that of the Wye, as a protection against the Welsh. The greatest of the English kingdoms was Wessex, with its capital at Winchester, and the greatest of the Wessex kings was Alfred the Great (871-901), who resisted the incursions of the Northmen (Danes) and fixed a limit to their advance by the Treaty of Wedmore (878). In the 10th century the Kings of Wessex recovered the whole of England from the Danes, but subsequent rulers were unable to resist the invaders, and England paid tribute (Danegelt) for many years, and was ruled by Danish Kings from 1016 to 1042, when Edward the Confessor was recalled from exile. In 1066 Harold (brother-in-law of Edward and son of Earl Godwin of Wessex) was chosen King of England, but after defeating (at Stamford Bridge, Yorkshire, Sept. 25) an invading army under Harald Hadrada, King of Norway (aided by the outlawed Earl Tostig, of Northumbria, younger son of Earl Godwin), he was himself defeated at the Battle of Hastings on Oct. 14, 1066, and the Norman Conquest secured the throne of England for Duke William of Normandy.

(a) Administrative Counties, excluding County Boroughs, named in the First Schedule of the Local Government Act, 1933; (b) Geographical Counties, including County Boroughs; in each case as at the Census of April, 1961 (preliminary figures); (c) includes value of property occupied by the Crown for public purposes upon which contributions in lieu of rates are paid.

Lords Lieutenant of Counties.—The actual words used in the Letters Patent relative to these appointments are "Her Majesty's Lieutenant of and in the County of . . ." and this is the official title whether the individual appointed be a Peer or a Commoner. In documents of the highest formality the proper term is therefore "Her Majesty's Lieutenant." In less formal and informal documents and colloquially, the style "Lord Lieutenant" has been applied to H. M. Lieutenants. Peers and Commoners alike, for a great many years. The duties of the Lord Lieutenant are to advise the Lord Chancellor as to the appointment of magistrates to the county bench, to appoint Deputy Lieutenants and to raise the militia, if need be, in time of riot or invasion. The Lord Lieutenant is usually a peer or a baronet and a large landowner and is often appointed custos rotularum (keeper of the records).

THE GOVERNMENT OF LONDON

LONDON, the capital of England and of the British Commonwealth of Nations, is situated on both banks of the River Thames, 50 miles from the North Sea.

Greater London includes the administrative counties of LONDON (the City of London and 28 metropolitan boroughs); MIDDLESEX (18 boroughs and 8 urban districts); and parts of SURREY (the County Borough of Croydon, the 10 Boroughs of Barnes, Beddington and Wallington, Epsom and Ewell, Kingston-upon-Thames, Malden and Coombe, Mitcham, Richmond, Surbiton, Sutton and Cheam, and Wimbledon); and the 5 Urban Districts of Banstead, Carshalton, Coulsdon and Purley, Esher, and Merton and Morden); parts of KENT (the 4 Boroughs of Beckenham, Bexley, Bromley, and Erith; and the 4 Urban Districts of Chislehurst and Sidcup, Crayford, Orpington and Penge); parts of HERTFORDSHIRE (the 4 Urban Districts of Barnet, Bushey, Cheshunt and East Barnet; and the Elstree Rural District); parts of ESSEX (the County Boroughs of East Ham and West Ham, the 7 Boroughs of Barking, Chingford, Dagenham, Ilford, Leyton, Walthamstow, and Wanstead and Woodford; and 2 Urban Districts, Chigwell and Waltham Holy Cross). It covers an area of 461,882 acres (722 sq. miles) and in April, 1961, had a population (Census preliminary figures) of 3,171,902 (within the County of London, 3,195,114; Middlesex and the Home Counties, 4,976,788).

The City of London (see pp. 635-41) represents London within its ancient boundaries.

The City of Westminster, which is bounded by the City of London on the east, by Chelsea and Kensington on the west, by Paddington, St. Marylebone and Holborn on the north, and by the Thames and Chelsea on the south, was formed into a borough by the London Government Act of 1899, and was created a city by Royal Charter of Oct. 29, 1900, the Council consisting of a Mayor, 10 Aldermen and 60 Councillors. Extending from the eastern end of the Strand to Kensington Gardens, and from Oxford Street to the Thames, it includes within its boundaries a large number of the finest buildings in London. The Abbey and the Roman Catholic Cathedral, the Houses of Parliament and the Law Courts, Buckingham Palace and St. James's, and the principal government offices, clubs and theatres are situated in Westminster.

Metropolitan Boroughs.—Under the London Government Act of 1899, the administrative functions of the various vestries in the Metropolitan districts surrounding the City of London were transferred to 28 Metropolitan Boroughs, of which one became afterwards the City of Westminster. The area covered by these boroughs extends northwards to include Stoke Newington, southwards to Wandsworth and Lewisham, eastwards to Woolwich, and westwards to Hammersmith.

London County Council.—For County purposes the affairs of London are administered by the London County Council (see pp. 641-4), which was created by the Local Government Act of 1888.

Miscellaneous Authorities.—For Police purposes the administration is invested in the Corporation of London as to the City Police and in the Home

Office as to the Metropolitan Police. The water authority is the Metropolitan Water Board; while the River Thames is administered as to its tidal portion by the Port of London Authority and above Teddington by the Thames Conservancy; the Port Health Committee of the Corporation is the Health Authority for the River, the lighthouse and pilotage authority being Trinity House. The bridges are maintained in the City of London by the Bridge House Estates Committee of the Corporation and in the remaining area by the London County Council.

THE CORPORATION OF LONDON

The City of London is the historic centre at the heart of London known as "the square mile" around which the vast metropolis has grown over the centuries. The civic government is carried on by the Corporation of London through the Court of Common Council, a body consisting of the Lord Mayor, 25 other Aldermen and a number of Common Councilmen. The legal title of the Corporation is "the Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of the City of London."

The City is the financial and business centre of London and includes the head offices of the principal banks, insurance companies and mercantile houses, in addition to buildings ranging from the historic interest of the Roman Wall and the 15th century Guildhall, to the massive splendour of St. Paul's Cathedral and the architectural beauty of Wren's spires.

The City of London at the time of the revolt of the Iceni (A.D. 61) was described by Tacitus (born A.D. 55; died A.D. 120) as "a busy emporium for trade and traders." In Saxon times it was, in reality, a small independent federated State of Wards (holding wardmotes) with a folkmete, predecessor of the present Common Council, for general affairs. Its burgesses maintained their independence even after the Battle of Hastings. William the Norman only gained possession of their city by means of a treaty with them, and granted a charter, which is still preserved. The mayoralty was established on the recognition of the corporate unity of the citizens by Prince John in 1191, the first Mayor being Henry Fitz Alwyn, who filled the office for 21 years and was succeeded by Fitz Alan (1212-15). A new charter was granted by King John in 1215, directing the Mayor to be chosen annually, which has ever since been done, though in early times the same individual often held the office more than once. A familiar instance is that of "Whittington, thrice Lord Mayor of London" (in reality four times, A.D. 1397, 1398, 1406, 1419); and many modern cases have occurred.

The earliest instance of the phrase "Lord Mayor" in English is in 1414. It is used more generally in the latter part of the 15th century and becomes invariable from 1535 onwards. At Michaelmas the Liverymen in Common Hall choose two Aldermen who have served the office of Sheriff for presentation to the Court of Aldermen, and one is chosen to be Lord Mayor for the ensuing mayoral year. The Lord Mayor is presented to the Lord Chief Justice at the Royal Courts of Justice on the second Saturday in November to make the final declaration of office, having been sworn in at Guildhall on the preceding day. The procession to the Royal Courts of Justice is popularly known as the Lord Mayor's Show.

Aldermen are mentioned in the 11th century and their office is of Saxon origin. They were elected annually between 1377 and 1394, when a charter of Richard II. directed them to be chosen for life. The Common Council, elected annually on St. Thomas's Day (Dec. 21), was, at an early date, substituted for a popular assembly called the Folkmete. At first only two representatives were sent from each ward, but the number has since been greatly increased, some wards having at present as many as 12 members, and none fewer than four.

The Corporation, by Acts of Common Council, has decided to reduce the number of Common Councilmen from 206 to 159 as at St. Thomas's Day, 1965, casual vacancies occurring by death or resignation in the meantime not being filled so long as the representation of any Ward does not fall below the number specified in the Acts.

Sheriffs were Saxon officers; their predecessors were the wic-reeves and portreeves of London and Middlesex. At first they were officers of the Crown, and were named by the Barons of the Exchequer; but Henry I. (in 1132) gave the citizens permission to choose their own Sheriffs, and the annual election of Sheriffs became fully operative under King John's charter of 1199. The citizens lost this privilege, as far as the election of Sheriff of Middlesex is concerned, by the Local Government Act, 1888; but the Liverymen continue, as heretofore, to choose two Sheriffs of the City of London, who are appointed on Midsummer Day, and take office at Michaelmas.

Officers.—The Recorder was first appointed in 1298. The office of Chamberlain is an ancient one, the first contemporary record of which is 1276. The Town Clerk (or Common Clerk) is mentioned in 1274 and the Common Serjeant in 1291.

Activities.—The work is assigned to a number of committees which present reports to the Court of Common Council. These Committees are:—City Lands, Bridge House Estates, Coal and Corn and Finance, Rates Finance, Improvements and Town Planning, Streets, Central Markets, Cattle Markets, Billingsgate and Leadhall Markets, Spitalfields Market, Police, Port and City of London Health, Library (Library, Records, Art Gallery and Museum), City of London Schools, Freeman's School, Music (Guildhall School of Music and Drama), General Purposes, Officers and Clerks, Civil Defence, and Housing. The Committees specially appointed are:—Gresham (City side), Epping Forest, West Ham Park, Special, Privileges, Labour, Special (Guildhall Reconstruction), Barbican and Licensing Planning.

The Honourable the Irish Society, which manages the Corporation's Estates in Ulster, consists of a Governor and 5 other Aldermen, the Recorder, and 19 Common Councilmen, of whom one is elected Deputy Governor.

The City's Estate, in the possession of which the Corporation of London differs from other municipalities in the Kingdom, is managed by the City Lands Committee, the Chairmanship of which carries with it the title of "Chief Commoner."

The Coal and Corn and Finance Committee manages the funds derived from the City's Estate and other sources and receives accounts of the Bridge House Estates (which are employed in the provision and maintenance of London, Blackfriars, Southwark and Tower Bridges). The cost of certain public services, including the maintenance of open spaces outside the City such as Epping Forest, West Ham Park, Burnham Beeches and some of the Surrey commons and the net expense of the City of London School, the City of London School for Girls, the City of London Freeman's School, and the Guildhall School of Music and Drama is met from City's Cash.

The Rates Finance Committee supervises the collection of rates and the expenditure of money so collected, two rates being levied by the Corporation, a Poor Rate and a General Rate. The Poor Rate is levied mainly to satisfy the precept served on the Corporation by the London County Council for the City's share of rate-borne expenditure of the County, and also to meet the contribution the Corporation is required to make under the London Rates Equalization Scheme. The General Rate is levied to meet the net cost of the services which the Corporation as a local authority is required to maintain (see below).

THE CITY GUILDS (LIVERY COMPANIES)

The Livery Companies of the City of London derive their name from the assumption of a distinctive dress or livery by their members in the 14th century.

The order of precedence (according to 2nd Report of Municipal Corporations' Commissioners, 1837) and omitting extinct companies, is given in parentheses after the name of each Company. There are 82 Guilds in existence. The Comb-makers, Silk-throwers, Silkmen, Pinmakers, Soap-makers, Hatbandmakers, Long-bow Stringmakers, Woodmongers, Starchmakers and Fishermen are extinct.

About 10,000 Liverymen of the Guilds are entitled to vote at elections in Common Hall.

The liveries of the Shipwrights (500), Horners (407), Carmen (406), Stationers and Newspaper Makers (406), and Apothecaries (379), are the most numerous, the Ironmongers (35) the smallest.

THE LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL

Offices, The County Hall, Westminster Bridge, S.E.1.

THE London County Council was constituted under the Local Government Act of 1888. London is an administrative county, covering an area of 117 square miles, with a population (1961) of 3,179,980.

The City of London is a county for non-administrative purposes, such as justices, &c., and the Metropolis outside the City is also a county for non-administrative purposes, by name the County of London. The offices of Clerk of the Council and Clerk of the Peace are not held jointly in the County.

The Council comprises 21 aldermen, and 126 councillors, together 147, or, if the chairman of the Council be also an elected member or alderman, 146. The term of office for aldermen is 6 years, and half their number retires every 3 years. The councillors are elected for 3 years, and they elect the aldermen. The position of aldermen and councillors is the same, except as to the method of election and the term of office.

Meetings of the Council are held fortnightly in session time, and the standing committees meet fortnightly, except a few which meet monthly.

The Finance Committee has important statutory powers. No costs, debt or liability exceeding £100 may be incurred by the Council except upon a resolution passed on an estimate submitted by the Finance Committee. The Council has a net debt, according to the latest returns of £353,452,600 (£271,834,400 represents debt incurred for housing). Its annual expenditure on revenue account is about £143,000,000 and on capital account about £36,000,000. Advances amounting to £15,200,000 have been made on loan under the Housing and Small Dwellings Acquisition Acts to people who wish to buy a home.

The General Purposes Committee is responsible for advising the Council on the more important general questions, allocation of duties to Committees and heads of departments, consultation with other local authorities and government departments, matters relating to legislation, senior staff appointments, the development of the South Bank and the Crystal Palace site and the management of the Royal Festival Hall, and civil defence.

The Children's Committee is charged with the care of nearly 10,000 deprived and neglected children.

The Education Committee comprises thirty-eight members of the Council and twelve co-opted members. Women as well as men must be included (see p. 144).

The Establishment Committee is responsible for the efficient and economical use of manpower and for a general control over numbers, grading, pay and conditions of staff (except teachers). The Council employs over 65,000 staff of all grades.

The Fire Brigade Committee is responsible for carrying out the duties laid on the Council by the Fire Services Act, 1947.

The Health Committee, set up under the National Health Service Act, 1946, is responsible for health services provided under that Act and for discharging the functions of the Council under the Mental Health Acts and the Clean Air Act, 1956. Under this committee are nine Divisional Health Committees, the majority of whose members are drawn from the Corporation of the City of London and the Metropolitan Borough Councils. These divisional committees are entrusted with considerable responsibilities for the day-to-day administration of the personal health services.

The Housing Committee performs the duties placed upon the Council by the various Housing Acts, including the clearance of insanitary areas and the relief of overcrowding. The total capital expenditure incurred up to March 31, 1962, in respect of all schemes was over £320,000,000. The income (rents &c.) for 1962-63 in respect of dwellings and housing estates of the Council is estimated at over £24,000,000. The total of the Exchequer subsidy in respect of the Council's housing operations is estimated at £4,925,000.

The Supplies Committee is responsible for supplying stores, etc., arranging contracts for printing etc., sale and disposal of old or surplus materials and general oversight of transport.

The Rivers and Drainage Committee administers the Metropolitan Main Drainage system which covers about 179 square miles, including certain districts outside the county, and comprises about 420 miles of main, storm-relief, intercepting and outfall sewers, twelve pumping stations, two sewage outfalls, and three sludge vessels. The total capital outlay on main drainage is over £28,000,000, and further work is in progress. This committee is also responsible for Thames flood prevention, the upkeep of the Thames tunnels, most of the Thames bridges and Woolwich Ferry.

The Town Planning Committee deals with questions relating to town-planning, the carrying out of street improvements and construction of bridges, tunnels and ferries, the naming of streets and numbering of houses, the maintenance of historic buildings and monuments, and also regulates under statute such matters as the construction and safety of buildings, building lines, space about buildings, and means of escape in case of fire.

The Welfare Committee provides residential accommodation for the aged and infirm and for other people in need of care and attention, including homeless families. They are also charged with the welfare of blind and other handicapped persons.

The Parks Committee is responsible for the acquisition and maintenance of parks and open spaces, and the provision of facilities for sport, open-air entertainment and exhibitions in them; the Public Control Committee is responsible for the control of storage of explosive substances and petroleum; testing weights and measures; the granting of licences for music, dancing, boxing and wrestling; administration of the Shops Acts; licensing and inspection of employment agencies, nurses' agencies and massage establishments; licensing of premises under the Cinematograph Acts; registration of motor cars; collection of duties on motor cars, dog, game, gun and certain other local taxation licences.

The expenditure of the Council, including loans to other local authorities, is met by two chief sources of supply—capital money raised by external borrowing, or by the use of the Sinking Fund of the Council's debt, the Superannuation

Fund, etc., and current income raised in a county rate or by the revenue of undertakings. Substantial contributions are received from the Exchequer by way of housing subsidies, the General Grant, grants in respect of school meals and capital grants towards the cost of road improvements. All borrowings by the Council are subject to the provision of a sinking fund, under Treasury approval, sufficient to repay all expenditure generally within a period of 60 years (in a few cases the limit is 80 years). The total stock outstanding at March 31, 1962, was £174,242,590 and in addition £200,000,000 had been borrowed from the Public Works Loan Board and other sources.

The Rating for the year 1962-63, as shown by the statement below (which relates to rate accounts only), amounted to 11s. 1½d. in the pound over the whole county, including the City, and a further rate over the county outside the City of 1½d. in the pound, together 11s. 3d. The total rate for 1961-62 was 9s. 8d. The Rateable Value of the County of London, on April 6, 1962, was estimated to be approximately £108,960,000—a 1d. rate over the whole county producing £454,000.

Public and Private Buildings in London

ADELPHI, Strand, W.C.2.—Adelphi Terrace and district commemorate the four architect brothers, James, John, Robert and William ADAM, who laid out the district (formerly Durham House) at the close of the 18th century. Four of the streets in the Adelphi were formerly called James, John, Robert, and William Streets to commemorate these founders of the Adam style of architecture and internal decoration. They are now Adam Street, John Adam Street, Robert Street and Durham House Street. Extensive rebuilding took place between the two World Wars, and there are now few 18th-century houses left in the district. In the neighbourhood of the Adelphi was York House, built by the Duke of Buckingham in 1625 (the Water Gate of which still stands in Embankment Gardens), the commemorative streets being Charles Street, Villiers Street, Duke Street, Of Lane, Buckingham Street (Of Lane is now "York Buildings").

AUSTRALIA HOUSE, Strand, W.C.2.—A handsome and imposing building, erected 1911-14 by the Commonwealth of Australia as the offices of the High Commissioner for the Commonwealth. NEW SOUTH WALES, QUEENSLAND, VICTORIA and WESTERN AUSTRALIA have separate offices in the Strand; TASMANIA at Golden Cross House, Charing Cross, and SOUTH AUSTRALIA at S.A. House, Marlborough Arch.

BALTIC EXCHANGE, St. Mary Axe, E.C.3.—The world market for the chartering of cargo ships. The Exchange was built in 1903 and the new wing opened by Her Majesty the Queen on Nov. 21, 1956.

BANK OF ENGLAND, Threadneedle Street, E.C.2. (Not open to sightseers).—The Bank of England, founded in 1694, has always been closely connected with the Government. The present building, completed in 1940 to the designs of Sir Herbert Baker, incorporates features reminiscent of the earlier architects, Sampson (1734), Sir Robert Taylor (1765) and Sir John Soane (1788). A Bank picquet is mounted every evening by the Brigade of Guards.

BRIDGES.—The bridges over the Thames (from East to West) are the Tower Bridge (built by the Corporation of London and opened in 1894), with its bascules, affording a fine view of the Pool and of the metropolis; London Bridge (opened after rebuilding in 1831, and until 1750 the only bridge over the Thames in London), with the London Monument (q.v.) and Fishmongers' Hall; Southwark Bridge (opened in 1819, and rebuilt by the Corporation of London, 1922); Blackfriars Bridge (opened in 1869 and widened by the Corporation of London in 1908); width, 105 ft.; Waterloo Bridge (Rennie), width, 42 ft. 6 ins. (opened in 1817) commanding a fine view of western London (rebuilt by L.C.C. and re-opened 1944); Hungerford Bridge (railway bridge with a footbridge); Westminster Bridge (built in 1750 and then presenting a view that inspired Wordsworth's sonnet; rebuilt and re-opened in 1862; width, 84 ft.) with Thornycroft's Boadicea at the north-eastern end; this bridge leads from Westminster Abbey and the Houses of Parliament to the County Hall (q.v.) and St. Thomas's Hospital; Lambeth Bridge (rebuilt by L.C.C. and opened in 1932) leading from Lambeth Palace to Millbank; Vauxhall Bridge (rebuilt in 1906) leading to Kennington Oval; Chelsea Bridge, leading from Chelsea Hospital to Battersea Park (reconstructed and widened 1937); and Albert Bridge (1873); Battersea Bridge (opened in 1890); Wandsworth Bridge (opened in 1873; rebuilt and re-opened in 1940);

Putney Bridge (opened in 1886 and widened in 1933) where the Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race is started for Mortlake; Hammersmith Bridge (rebuilt 1887); Barnes Bridge (for pedestrians only, 1933); Chiswick Bridge (opened in 1933); King Edward VII Bridge, Kew (rebuilt in 1902), leading to the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew; Twickenham Lock Bridge; Twickenham Bridge (opened in 1933); Richmond Bridge (opened in 1777); Kingston Bridge and Hampton Court Bridge (rebuilt, 1933).

BUCKINGHAM PALACE, St. James's Park, S.W.1. (Not open to the public).—Was purchased by King George III. in 1762 from the heir of the Duke of Buckingham, and was altered by Nash for King George IV. The London home of the Sovereign since Queen Victoria's accession in 1837. Re-fronted in stone (part of the Queen Victoria Memorial) by Sir Aston Webb in 1913.

The Queen's Gallery, containing a selection of the finest pictures and works of art from all parts of the royal collection, was opened to the public on July 25, 1962. Open: Tues.—Sat., 11-6 p.m.; Sundays, 2-5 p.m.; Bank Holiday Mondays, 11-6 p.m. (Closed on other Mondays). Admission, 2s. 6d., entering from Buckingham Palace Road.

The Royal Mews is open to visitors on Wednesday afternoons only. Applications for tickets should be addressed in writing to the Superintendent, accompanied by an addressed envelope. The following charges, the proceeds of which are devoted to charities, are payable on admission: Adults, 1s.; Children under 16, 6d.; Children in arms, free.

CANADA HOUSE, Trafalgar Square, S.W.1.—A conspicuous building on the Western side of the Square, in which are the Offices of the High Commissioner of the Dominion and Officials dealing with Trade, Emigration, etc. Designed by Sir Robert Smirke in 1820, it was renovated and embellished when vacated by the Union Club. Certain interior features of the original building are preserved, and the spacious, richly furnished 1000 now occupied by the High Commissioner is much admired. Surrounded by Offices of Canadian Banks, Steamship, Railway and other Dominion Companies, the Canadian Building is one of London's landmarks. It was opened by H.M. King George V. in June, 1925.

CANONBURY TOWER, Canonbury, N.1.—Till recently a club for boys and girls from the vicinity (in the remains of the 16th-century house of the Priors of St. Bartholomew), but at the moment partly in use as headquarters of a theatre company. Contains the "Spencer" and "Compton" oak-panelled rooms. Other relics of Canonbury House can be seen nearby.

CARLYLE'S HOUSE, 24 Cheyne Row, Chelsea, S.W.3. The home of Thomas Carlyle for 47 years until his death in 1881, and containing much of his furniture, etc. Now the property of the National Trust. Open daily, except Tuesdays, 10-1, 2-6, or dusk, if earlier. Sundays, 2-6. Admission, 2s.; Children and Students, 1s.

CATHOLIC CENTRAL LIBRARY, St. Francis Friary, 47 Francis Street, S.W.1.—Founded as a private library in 1914 and administered as the Catholic Truth Society Library from 1922 until 1940, the stock being presented to the Catholic Central Library then set up. Now administered by the Graymoor Friars. Stock of 40,000 volumes for lending and reference, on many aspects of religion (devotional, Church history, doctrine, etc.), sociology, fine arts, literature, history, travel, biography and fiction. Books are sent by post when required. Hours of opening: Mon.—Fri. 11—7; Sat. 11—5.

CEMETERIES.—For Bunhill Fields, see p. 498. In Kensal Green Cemetery, North Kensington, W.10 (70 acres), are tombs of W. M. Thackeray, Anthony Trollope, Sydney Smith, Shirley Brooks, Wilkie Collins, Tom Hood, W. Mulready, George Cruikshank, John Leech, Leigh Hunt, Brunel ("Great Eastern"), Ross (Arctic), Charles Kemble and Charles Mathews (Actors). In Highgate Cemetery, N.6., are the tombs of George Eliot, Herbert Spencer, Michael Faraday, and G. J. Holyoake. In Abney Park Cemetery, Stoke Newington, N.16, are the tomb of General Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, and memorials to many Nonconformist Divines. In the South Metropolitan Cemetery, Norwood, S.E.27, are the tombs of C. H. Spurgeon, Lord Alverstone, Douglas Jerrold, John Belcher, R.A., Theodore Watts-Dunton, Dr. Moffatt (Missionary), Sir H. Bessemer, Sir H. Maxim, Sir J. Barnby, Sir A. Manns, and J. Whitaker, F.S.A. (Whitaker's Almanack). In the churchyard of the former Marylebone Chapel are buried Allan Ramsay (poet), Hoyle (whist), Ferguson (astronomer), Charles Wesley (hymn writer) and his son Samuel Wesley (musician). The chapel itself was demolished in 1949. CREMATORIA.—Iford (City of London); Norwood; Hendon; Streatham Park; Finchley (St. Marylebone) and Golder's Green (12 acres), near Hampstead Heath, with "Garden of Rest" and memorials to famous men and women.

CENOTAPH, Whitehall, S.W.1. — (Literally "empty tomb"). Monument erected "To the Glorious Dead," as a memorial to all ranks of the Sea, Land and Air Forces who gave their lives in the service of the Empire during the First World War. Erected as a temporary memorial in 1919 and replaced by a permanent structure in 1920. Unveiled by King George V. on Armistice Day, 1920. An additional inscription was added after the 1939-45 War, to commemorate those who gave their lives in that conflict.

CHARTERHOUSE, Charterhouse Square, E.C.1. (Master, Rev. T. S. Nevill, M.A.; Registrar and Clerk to the Governors, N. Long-Brown, M.A., I.L.B.), a Carthusian monastery until 1538, purchased from the Earl of Suffolk in 1611 by Thomas Sutton as a home for aged "Brothers" and a School (at Godalming since 1872). The buildings are partly 14th (but mainly 16th) century. They suffered much damage during the 1939-45 War but are now restored and can accommodate 40 "Brothers." Visitors must apply to the Master or the Registrar for permission to see the Hall, etc. Roger Williams, the founder and governor of Rhode Island, U.S.A., was on June 25, 1621, elected a scholar of Sutton's Hospital. Other famous Carthusians are John Wesley; the poets Crashaw and Lovelace; Addison and Steele; Sir William Blackstone and Thackeray, who described "Greyfriars School" (Charterhouse) in "The Newcomes."

CHELSEA PHYSIC GARDEN, Royal Hospital Road, S.W.3.—A garden of general botanical research, established in latter part of 17th century by the Society of Apothecaries, occupies site presented in 1722 by Sir Hans Sloane. Transferred in 1809 to the Trustees of the London Parochial Charities. Tickets of admission for approved students obtainable from the Clerk to the Trustees, 3 Temple Gardens, E.C.4.

CHELSEA ROYAL HOSPITAL (founded by Charles II, in 1682, and built by Wren; opened in 1764), Royal Hospital Road, Chelsea, S.W.3, for old and disabled soldiers. Great Hall now used as Dining Hall for in-pensioners. Much damaged by bombs in the Second World War. The extensive grounds include the former Ranclagh Gardens. Open daily 10 to 12 and 2 to 4, and on Sunday afternoons. Governor, General Sir Frank Simpson, G.B.E., K.C.B., D.S.O., Lieut-Governor and Secretary, Major-Gen. Sir Douglas Campbell, K.B.E., C.B., D.S.O., M.C.

COLLEGE OF ARMS OR HERALDS' COLLEGE, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.4.—Her Majesty's Officers of Arms (Kings, Heralds and Pursuivants of Arms) were incorporated by Richard III., and granted Derby House on the site of the present College building by Queen Mary I. The building now in use was built after the Fire of London. The powers vested by the Crown in the Earl Marshal (The Duke of Norfolk) with regard to full State ceremonial, and the granting and use of Armorial Bearings, are largely exercised through this College. Enquiry may be made to the Officer on duty in the Public Office every day between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Saturdays, 10 to 12.

COUNTY HALL, Westminster Bridge, S.E.1.—The Headquarters of the London County Council (see pp. 641-4) built on the Pedlar's Acre, Lambeth, from the designs of Ralph Knott, with a river façade of 750 ft. Foundation stone laid by His late Majesty King George V., March 9, 1912, and the ceremonial opening of the first three sections of the building by His late Majesty, July 17, 1922. In 1939 the two central sections of the north and south blocks were completed on a site to the east of the main building. The extension to the north block was completed in 1957. The main building contains, in addition to office accommodation, the council chamber, a conference hall, committee and conference rooms; education library for teachers; county record office; and a members' library with maps, prints, drawings, books and manuscripts on London, which is open to the public for reference purposes. Librarian, Miss I. Darlington, M.A., F.L.A. The Council, when in session, meets in public in the council chamber fortnightly on Tuesday afternoons at 3 p.m. The times for public inspection of the building are, on Saturdays from 10.30 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1.30 p.m. to 3.30 p.m.; and on Easter Monday, Whit Monday and August Bank Holiday, from 10.30 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1.30 p.m. to 4.30 p.m. Admission free.

CUSTOM HOUSE, Lower Thames Street, E.C.3.—Built early in 19th century, with a wide quay on Thames. The Long Room is about 190 ft. long.

DICKENS HOUSE, 48 Doughty Street, W.C.1.—In this house Charles Dickens lived from 1837 to 1839, and here he completed Pickwick Papers. It is the headquarters of The Dickens Fellowship, and contains many relics of the novelist. It is open to the public daily, 10 to 12.30 and 2 to 5 (Sundays and Bank Holidays excepted); admission 1s.

DR. JOHNSON'S HOUSE, Gough Square, Fleet Street, E.C.4.—An imposing late 17th-century house, in the garret of which, with the aid of six amanuenses, Samuel Johnson compiled his Dictionary. Open daily (except Sundays and Bank Holidays) from 10.30 to 4.30 or 5 (according to season). Admission 2s.

ELY PLACE, Holborn Circus, E.C.1.—The site of the London house of former Bishops of Ely, Ely Place is a private street whose affairs are administered by Commissioners under a special Act of Parliament. The 14th-century chapel, now St. Etheldreda's (R.C.) Church, is open daily until dusk.

FULHAM PALACE, Bishop's Avenue, Fulham, S.W.6.—The courtyard is 15th century, remainder 18th century. Residence of the Bishop of London. Grounds of 37 acres, surrounded by ancient moat. Previous application to visit should be made to the Bishop's Secretary.

GEFFREY MUSEUM, Kingsland Road, E.2.—Open on Tuesdays to Saturdays 10 to 5, Sundays 2 to 5

Closed on Christmas Day and on Mondays except Bank Holidays. Admission free.

The Museum is housed in a building erected originally as almshouses in 1715. It was eventually purchased by the London County Council and opened as a museum in 1914. The exhibits are shown in a series of period rooms dating from 1600 to the present day, each containing furniture and domestic equipment of a middle-class English home. Photographic enlargements illustrate the costume of each period. Architectural features, mainly 18th century, an 18th century wood-worker's shop, a downhearth kitchen and a gallery of tools are also shown. Temporary exhibitions and periodic series of evening lectures and recitals are held in the Lecture Hall. There is a reference library of books on furniture, social history and art. Special arrangements for children visiting the Museum in school parties and in their leisure time. Curator, Mrs. M. Harrison.

GEORGE INN, Southwark.—Near London Bridge Station. Given to National Trust in 1937. Last galleried inn in London, built in 1677.

GUILDHALL, King Street, City, E.C.2 (dating from early 15th century).—Burnt out by incendiary bombs, 1940. The main hall and crypt have been restored. The Library, Museum and Art Gallery adjoining mainly escaped damage, and are in part open to the public. Admission free. The Library (with Commercial Reference Room adjoining) contains Plan of London, 1570; Deed of Sale with Shakespeare's signature; first, second and fourth folios of Shakespeare's plays, etc. Open free on week-days, 9.30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sundays (May–Sept.), 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Keeper of the Guildhall, F. R. Tomkins.

HONOURABLE ARTILLERY COMPANY'S HEAD-QUARTERS, City Road, E.C.1.—The H.A.C. (Sec., Brig. E. Foster Hall, M.C.) received its charter of incorporation from Henry VIII. in 1537, and has occupied its present ground since 1641. The Armoury House dates from 1735. Four of its members who emigrated in the 17th century, founded in 1638 the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts. The H.A.C. is the senior regiment of the Territorial Army, and maintains a Headquarters with an Officer Training Wing, an Artillery Regiment and an Infantry Battalion.

HORNIMAN MUSEUM AND LIBRARY, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.23. Open daily except Tuesdays and Christmas Day, 10.30 to 6, Sundays 2 to 6. Admission free. The Museum was presented in 1901 to the London County Council by the founder, Mr. F. J. Horniman, M.P. The Museum has three main departments, ethnology, musical instruments and zoology. In the ethnology department the large collections include exhibits illustrating man's progress in the arts and crafts from prehistoric times. The Zoological department includes an aquarium. The reference library contains forty thousand volumes dealing with the subjects represented in the Museum. Curator, O. W. Samson.

HORSE GUARDS, Whitehall, S.W.1.—Archway and offices built about 1753. The mounting of the guard (Life Guards, or Royal Horse Guards) at 11 a.m. (10 a.m. on Sundays) and the dismounting at 4 p.m. are picturesque ceremonies. Only those on the Lord Chamberlain's list may drive through the gates and archway into Horse Guards' Parade (230,000 sq. ft.), where the Colour is "trooped" on the Queen's Official Birthday. (Trafalgar Square is 168,850 sq. ft.; Parliament Square, 136,900 sq. ft.; Leicester Square, 100,000 sq. ft.).

HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT, Westminster, S.W.1.—The Palace of Westminster was re-built in 1840–68 from the designs of Sir Charles Barry and Augustus Welby Pugin, at a cost of over £2,000,000.—Open to visitors on Saturdays, on Mondays in August and on Easter and Whit Mondays and Tuesdays if neither House be sitting. Admission at the Sovereign's Entrance, House of Lords, on the above-mentioned days, from 10 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. Closed to visitors on Christmas Day, Boxing Day and Good Friday. Admission to the Strangers' Gallery of the House of Commons, during session, by member's order, or order obtained on personal application at the Admission Order Office in St. Stephen's Hall. The present House of Commons was used for the first time on October 26, 1950, the original Chamber having been destroyed by bombs in 1941. The Victoria Tower (House of Lords) is about 330 ft. high, and when Parliament is sitting the Union Jack flies by day from its flagstaff. The Clock Tower of the House of Commons is about 320 ft. high and contains "Big Ben", the Hour Bell, named after Sir Benjamin Hall, First Commissioner of Works when the original bell was cast in 1856. This bell which weighed 16 tons 11 cwt., was found cracked in 1857. The present bell (13½ tons) is a recasting of the original and was first brought into use in July, 1859. A light is displayed from this tower at night when Parliament is sitting.

INNS OF COURT.—The Inner and Middle Temple, S. of Fleet Street, E.C.4, and N. of Victoria Embankment, to which the gardens extend, have occupied (since early 14th century) the site of the buildings of the Order of Knights Templars. Inner Temple Hall is open to the public on Monday–Friday, 10–11.30 a.m. and 2.30–4 p.m., except during Vacations. Temple Church, restored in 1958 after severe damage by bombing, is open on week-days 10–5 p.m. and the public are admitted to Sunday services (see p. 498). Middle Temple Hall (Sixteenth Century) is open to the public, Monday–Friday, 10–12 and 3–5 p.m.; Saturday, 10–4.30. Closed 12–2 p.m. and Sundays. In Middle Temple Gardens Shakespeare (Henry VI., Part I.) places the incident which led to the "Wars of the Roses" (1455–85). Lincoln's Inn, from Chancery Lane to Lincoln's Inn Fields, W.C.2, occupies the site of the palace of a former Bishop of Chichester and of a Black Friars monastery. It was founded early in the 14th century. The new Hall and Library are modern, and the old Hall early 16th century, the Chapel (Inigo Jones) early 17th century. Lincoln's Inn Fields (7 acres); the Square contains many fine old houses with handsome interiors. Gray's Inn, Gray's Inn Road, W.C.1, was founded in the late 14th century. The squares and roadways are open to the public during the day and the gardens from 12–2 p.m. (May–July) (August and Sept., 9 a.m.–5 p.m.). The 16th-century Hall, where the "Comedy of Errors" was performed in 1594, was reduced to a shell by bombs, but has been rebuilt. The Gardens were laid out (according to tradition) by Lord Chancellor Bacon (died 1626). No other "Inns" are active, but what remains of Staple Inn is worth visiting as a relic of Elizabethan London; though heavy damage was done by a flying-bomb, it retains a picturesque gabled front on Holborn (opposite Gray's Inn Road). Clement's Inn (near St. Clement Danes' Church), Clifford's Inn, Fleet Street, and Thavies Inn, Holborn Circus, are all rebuilt. Serjeant's Inn, Fleet Street (damaged by bombing), and another (now demolished) of the same name in Chancery Lane, were composed of Serjeants-at-Law, the last of whom died in 1922.

JEWISH MUSEUM, Woburn House, Upper Woburn Place, W.C.1.—Opened in 1932, the Museum contains a comprehensive collection of Jewish antiquities, liturgical paraphernalia and "Anglo-Judaica." Open free (Mon.-Thurs.), 2.30-5; (Fri. and Sun.), 10 a.m.-1 p.m. Closed on Saturdays and Jewish Holydays. Conducted tours of parties by arrangement with the Secretary/Curator.

KEATS HOUSE AND MUSEUM, Keats Grove, Hampstead, N.W.3.—In one of two houses here, now made into one, John Keats lived at various times between 1818 and 1820. The house and the museum are open free, weekdays, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The Keats Memorial Library (4,500 volumes) in the adjoining building is open free on weekdays 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. (Monday and Thursday to 8 p.m.)

KENSINGTON PALACE, W.8.—Enlarged by Christopher Wren for King William III. (1691), and continued as a royal residence until 1760. The birthplace of Queen Victoria in 1819. State apartments, re-opened to the public in 1956 under administrative control of the London Museum, contain pictures from the royal collections, royal costumes and furniture formerly belonging to Queen Mary. Hours of Opening: (March 1-Sept. 30) 10 a.m.-6 p.m.; Sundays, 2-6 p.m.; (Oct. 1-Feb. 28) 10-4; Sundays, 2-4 p.m. Kensington Gardens (q.v.) adjoin.

KING HENRY VIII WINE CELLAR, Horse Guards Avenue, Whitehall, S.W.1.—Built in Cardinal Wolsey's time, the Cellar is one of the few remains of the Tudor Palace of Whitehall which King Henry VIII appropriated from the See of York when the Cardinal was deprived of the Great Seal in 1529. The Wine Cellar is open to the public on Saturdays at 2.30 p.m. from Easter Saturday to mid-December. Admission is free but is by appointment only and application for a pass must be made in advance to the Secretary, Ministry of Works (A.S.8.L.). Lambeth Bridge House, Albert Embankment, S.E.1.

LAMBETH PALACE, S.E.1.—The official residence of the Archbishop of Canterbury, on south bank of Thames; the oldest part is 13th century, the house itself is early 19th century. For leave to visit the historical portions, applications should be made by letter to the Archbishop's Secretary.

LIVERY COMPANIES' HALLS.—The Principal Companies (see pp. 638-40) have magnificent halls, but admission to view them has generally to be arranged beforehand. Among the finest or more interesting may be mentioned the following: Goldsmiths' Hall, Foster Lane. The present hall was completed in 1835, and contains some magnificent rooms. Exhibitions of plate have been shown here periodically in recent years. Fishmongers' Hall, London Bridge (built 1831-3), now admirably restored after severe bomb damage, also contains fine rooms. Apothecaries' Hall, Water Lane, was rebuilt in 1670, after the Great Fire, and has library, hall and kitchen which are good examples of this period, together with a pleasant courtyard. Vintners' Hall, Upper Thames Street, was also rebuilt after the Great Fire, and its hall has very fine late 17th century panelling. The Watermen and Lightermen's Company is not, strictly speaking, a Livery Company, but its hall, in St. Mary at Hill, is a good example of a smaller 18th century building, with pilastered façade. It was completed in 1780. Stationers' Hall, in Stationers' Hall Court, behind Ludgate Hill, another post-Fire Hall, standing in its own court, has a particularly finely carved screen. Barbers' Hall, Monkwell Street, with a Hall attributed to Inigo Jones, was completely destroyed by bombing, but is to be rebuilt. The new hall is to be built some 30 ft. from the old site to enable one of the bastions and part of the wall of the Roman fort to remain exposed to view. Mercers' Hall, Cheapside, built to replace the hall destroyed by bombing, was opened in 1958.

LLOYD'S, Lime Street, E.C.3.—Housed in the Royal Exchange for 150 years and in Leadenhall Street from 1928-1957. The present building was opened by H.M. Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother on Nov. 14, 1957. The underwriting space has an area of 44,250 sq. ft.

LORD'S CRICKET GROUND, St. John's Wood Road, N.W.8.—The headquarters (since 1814) of the Marylebone Cricket Club, the premier cricket club in England and the governing body of cricket, the scene of some of the principal matches of the season and Middlesex County headquarters. Tennis court in building behind members' pavilion.

MANSON HOUSE, City, E.C.4.—(Reconstructed 1930-31.) The official residence of the Lord Mayor; the Egyptian Hall and Ballroom are the chief attractions. Admission by order from the Lord Mayor's Secretary.

MARKETS.—The London markets (administered by the Corporation of the City of London) provide foodstuffs for 8,500,000 to 9,000,000 people. The dead meat market at Smithfield is the largest in the world, the supplies marketed amounting to nearly 500,000 tons annually. Central Meat, Fish, Fruit, Vegetable, and Poultry Markets, Smithfield (the Poultry Market was gutted by fire in January, 1958); Leadenhall Market (Meat and Poultry); Billingsgate (Fish), Thames Street; Spitalfields, E.1 (Vegetables, Fruit, etc.), enlarged 1928, and opened by the late Queen Mary; London Fruit Exchange, Brushfield Street (built by Corporation of London 1928-29) faces Spitalfields Market. Other markets are—Covent Garden, W.C.2 (established under a charter of Charles II, in 1661) and Borough Market, S.E.1, for vegetables, fruit, flowers, etc.

MARLBOROUGH HOUSE, Pall Mall, S.W.1.—The London home of Queen Mary until her death in 1953. Built by Wren for the great Duke of Marlborough about 1710, and purchased by the Crown in 1817. Prince Leopold lived there until 1831, and Queen Adelaide from 1837 until her death in 1849. In 1863 it became the London house of the Prince of Wales. The Queen's Chapel, Marlborough Gate, begun in 1623 from the designs of Inigo Jones for the Infanta Maria of Spain, and completed for Queen Henrietta Maria, is open to the public for services during part of the year. In 1959 Marlborough House was given by the Queen as a Commonwealth centre for Government conferences and it was opened as such in March, 1962. It is open to the public at certain times when conferences are not taking place.

LONDON MONUMENT, (commonly called "The Monument"), Monument Street, E.C.3.—Built from designs of Wren, 1671-77, to commemorate the Great Fire of London, which broke out in Pudding Lane, Sept. 2, 1666. The fluted Doric column is 120 ft. high (the moulded cylinder above the balcony supporting a flaming vase of gilt bronze is 42 ft. in addition), and is based on a square plinth 40 ft. high, with fine carvings on W. face (making a total height of 202 ft.). Splendid views of London from gallery at top of column (311 steps) Admission 6d., Monday to Saturday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. (Oct.-March to 4 p.m.). Sundays—May to Sept., 2-6 p.m. Parties of 20 or more school children in charge of an adult 3d. each.

PERCIVAL DAVID FOUNDATION OF CHINESE ART, 53 Gordon Square, W.C.1.—Set up in 1950 to promote the study and teaching of the art and culture of China and the surrounding regions, and provide facilities necessary to that end. The Foundation contains the collection of Chinese ceramics formed by Sir Percival David and his important library of books on Chinese art. To these was added a gift from the Hon. Mountstuart Elphinstone of part of his collection of Chinese monochrome porcelains. The galleries were opened to the public in 1952. The Foundation is administered on behalf of the University of London by the School of Oriental and African Studies. Hours of opening: Galleries, Mon. 2 to 5 p.m.; Tues. to Fri. 10.30 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sat. 10.30 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Library, Mon. 2.30 to 4.30 p.m.; Tues. to Fri. 10.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m.; 1.30 to 4.30 p.m.; Sat. 10.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m. Secretary-Librarian, Miss B. W. D. Martin.

PORT OF LONDON.—The Port of London comprises the tidal portion of the River Thames from Teddington to the sea, a distance of 69 miles and five dock systems covering an area of 3,988 acres, of which 666 acres are water. The governing body is the Port of London Authority, whose Head Offices in Trinity Square, E.C.3, were designed by Sir Edwin Cooper. Particulars of the docks are as follow:—London & St. Katharine Docks, E.1.—Area 127 acres including 45 acres water. Chief commodities handled are Wool, Ivory, Spices, Shells, Tea, Rubber, Wine, Marhle, Canned Goods, Hides, Perfumes, etc., and general cargo from Continental and coastwise ports. Surrey Commercial Docks, S.E.16.—Area 390 acres, including 136 acres water. The chief centre of the London and Provincial Soft-wood Trade. Also handles Hardwood, Grain and general cargo. India & Millwall Docks, E.14.—Area 455 acres including 127 acres water. Principal commodities handled are Rum, Sugar, Grain, Hardwood, Fruit, Plywood and Wood pulp. In Millwall Dock a special feature is the Granary. East India Dock, E.14.—Area 47 acres including 23 acres water. Royal Victoria & Albert & King George V. Docks, E.16.—Area 1,056 acres including 230 acres water—have special facilities for handling Frozen and Chilled Meat, Grain, Tobacco and Bananas. Large quantities of Wool, Fruit, Dairy Produce and general cargo are also dealt with. The King George V. Dock, opened in 1921, provides accommodation for vessels up to 30,000 tons. Tilbury Docks, Essex.—Area 725 acres, including 105 acres water. These docks are 26 miles below London Bridge and are used principally by vessels plying on the Australian, Indian and other Eastern routes. The Cargo Jetty in the River at Tilbury is available for vessels to discharge or load part cargoes. Tilbury Passenger Landing Stage provides accommodation for liners at all states of the tide and adjoins Tilbury Riverside Station, giving direct rail connection with London, the Midlands and the North.

PRINCE HENRY'S ROOM, 17 Fleet Street, E.C.4.—Early 17th century timber-framed house containing fine room on first floor with panelling and modelled plaster ceiling. Open Mon. to Fri. 1.45 p.m. to 5 p.m.; Sat. to 4.30 p.m. Closed Christmas Day and Good Friday. Available for evening lettings to societies, etc. on application to the Architect, County Hall, S.E.1.

ROMAN LONDON.—Though visible remains are very few, almost every excavation for the foundations of new buildings in the City reveals Roman remains. Sections of the City wall, often however merely a mediæval re-build on the Roman foundations, are the most striking remains still to be seen. Fragments may be seen near the White Tower in the Tower of London, Trinity Square, No. 1 Crutched Friars, All Hallows, London Wall—its semi-circular vestry being built on the remains of a round bastion—St. Alpheg, London Wall, recently restored by the Corporation of London and showing a striking succession of building and repairs from Roman till later mediæval times, St. Giles, Cripplegate and, by permission only, the great bastion beneath the pavement of the yard of the G.P.O. in Giltspur Street. Recent excavations in the Cripplegate area have revealed that a fort was built in this area and later incorporated in the town wall in this north-west corner of the City. Evidence from these excavations proves that the fort was not built until about 100–120 A.D., and the date of the town wall must therefore be considerably later. Remains of a bath building are preserved beneath the Coal Exchange in Lower Thames Street and other foundations may be seen in the Crypt of All Hallows Barking by the Tower. The governmental headquarters of the town was a great basilica, more than 400 ft. long from east to west, the massive walls of which have been encountered, extending from Leadenhall Market across Gracechurch Street as far as St. Michael's, Cornhill. Excavations during the past few years have shown that buildings over the river front were erected on huge oaken piles and a framework of timber for a considerable distance both east and west of the present London Bridge. The "Roman Bath," in Strand Lane, which is not now held by most authorities to be of Roman origin, is maintained by the L.C.C. on behalf of the National Trust, and is open to the public on weekdays from 10 a.m. to 12.30 p.m. (Admission, 1s.). Excavations since 1948 on a bombed site in Walbrook, on the banks of the old Wall Brook, have produced many interesting discoveries, including a Temple of Mithras, from which the splendid marble statues have been placed in Guildhall Museum, now in the Royal Exchange, where many other relics from the Roman City may be seen.

ROYAL EXCHANGE, E.C.3 (founded by Sir Thomas Gresham, 1566, opened as "The Bourse" and proclaimed "The Royal Exchange" by Queen Elizabeth I., 1571, rebuilt 1667-69 and 1842-44).—Open to the public, free. Statues of Queen Elizabeth I., Charles II., Queen Victoria, Sir Thomas Gresham, and others; mural paintings in the ambulatory by Leighton, Abhey, Brangwyn, Wyllie, and others. Part of the Guildhall Museum is now housed in the building and from time to time various exhibitions are held there. The carillon of the Royal Exchange (reinstated 1950) plays English, Scottish, Irish, Welsh, Canadian and Australian melodies at 9 a.m., 12 noon and 3 and 6 p.m. With the exception of the courtyard ambulatory and the shops the whole of the building is now occupied by the Royal Exchange Assurance (which has had its head office there since 1720) and is administered by the Gresham Committee (Clerk, Mercers' Hall, Ironmonger Lane, E.C.2.)

ROYAL GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY, Kensington Gore, S.W.7.—Map Room open to public, free.

ROYAL MINT, Tower Hill, E.C.3 (building erected 1811), where coins for the United Kingdom and abroad are struck. Admission by order only, application for which should be made to the Deputy Master of the Mint, at least 6 weeks in advance of intended visit. Hours of admission, 9.20 a.m. to 2.50 p.m., Mon. to Fri., except Bank Holidays, etc., when the Mint is closed.

ST. JAMES'S PALACE, in Pall Mall, S.W.1.—(Not open to the public.) Built by Henry VIII.; the Gatehouse and Presence Chamber remain, and part of the Chapel Royal, which in 1955 was reopened to the public for services during part of the year. A royal residence from 1697 to 1837. Representatives of Foreign Powers are still accredited "to the Court of St. James's" and (by the permission of the Crown) the Conference of the Allies (1921) and later conferences have been held here.

ST. JOHN'S GATE, Clerkenwell, E.C.1.—Now the Chancery of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, and formerly the gate of the Priory of that Order, of which the gate house (early 16th century) and crypt of Church (12th century) alone survive. The gatehouse may be inspected on application to the Secretary at the Chancery.

SIR JOHN SOANE'S MUSEUM, 13 Lincoln's Inn Fields, W.C.2. The house and galleries, built 1812-24, are the work of the founder, Sir John Soane (1753-1837) and contain his collections, arranged as he left them, in pursuance of an Act procured by him in 1833. Exhhlits include the Sarcophagus of Set I. (1370 B.C.), classical vases and marbles, Hogarth's Rake's Progress and Election series, paintings by Canaletto, Reynolds, Turner, Lawrence, etc., and sculpture by Chantrey, Flaxman, etc. Soane's library of 8,000 vols. and a collection of 20,000 architectural drawings are available for study. Open Tues.—Sat. inclusive, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Closed Bank Holidays and throughout August. Curator, Sir John Summer-son, C.B.E., F.B.A. Inspector, Miss D. Stroud, F.S.A.

SOMERSET HOUSE, Strand, W.C.2, and Victoria Embankment, W.C.2.—The beautiful river façade (600 ft. long) was built at the close of the 18th century from the designs of Sir W. Chambers; the remainder of the building is early 19th century.

Somerset House was the property of Lord Protector Somerset, at whose attainder in 1552 the palace passed to the Crown, and it was a royal residence until about the close of the 17th century. The building is now occupied by the Board of Inland Revenue and other branches of the Civil Service and by the Principal Probate Registry. In the Probate Registry (Central Hall) are the wills of (inter alios) Shakespeare, Newton, Van Dyck, Pitt, Dr. Johnson, Nelson, Wellington and Burke.

STOCK EXCHANGE, E.C.2.—The foundation stone of the present building was laid in 1801, but the building was almost entirely reconstructed in 1854 from the designs of Thomas Allason. The most notable alteration since that date occurred in 1885 when an east wing was added; this is surmounted by a dome, the apex of which is more than 100 feet above the floor. The area of the floor is about 25,000 square feet. The Stock Exchange provides a market for the purchase and sale of about 9,500 securities quoted in the Stock Exchange Daily Official List and valued at over £50,000,000,000 and also securities listed on other Exchanges. At present the members of the Stock Exchange, who consist of brokers (agents for clients) and jobbers (dealers in specific securities) number about 3,500. Visitors' Gallery (entrance, 8 Throgmorton Street) open between 10.30 a.m. and 3 p.m. from Monday to Friday. Admission free and without ticket. Film show.

THAMES EMBANKMENTS.—The Victoria Embankment, on the N. side (from Westminster to Blackfriars), was constructed by Sir J. W. Bazalgette for the Metropolitan Board of Works, 1864-70 (the seats, of which the supports of some are a kneeling camel, laden with spicery, and of others a winged sphinx, were presented by the Grocers' Company, and by Rt. Hon. W. H. Smith, M.P., in 1874); the Albert Embankment on the S. side (from Westminster Bridge to Vauxhall), 1866-69; the Chelsea Embankment, 1871-74. The total cost exceeded £2,000,000. Sir J. W. Bazalgette (1819-91) also inaugurated the London main drainage system, 1858-65. A medallion has been placed on a pier of the Victoria Embankment to commemorate the engineer of the Thames waterside improvements ("Fluminis vincula posuit"). The County Hall of the L.C.C. includes an embankment on the Surrey side.

THAMES TUNNELS.—The Rotherhithe Tunnel (foot passengers and vehicles), constructed by the L.C.C. and opened in 1908, connects Commercial Road East, with Lower Road, Rotherhithe; the total length is 1 mile 332 yards, of which 474 yards are under the river. The cost of the tunnel and its approaches was £1,506,914. The Blackwall Tunnel (foot passengers and vehicles), constructed by the L.C.C. and opened in 1897, connects East India Dock Road, Poplar, with Blackwall Lane, East Greenwich. The total length of the tunnel is 1 mile 279 yards, of which 377 yards are under the river. The cost of the tunnel with its approaches was about £1,323,663. Greenwich Tunnel (foot passengers only), constructed by the L.C.C. and opened in 1902, connects the Isle of Dogs, Poplar, with Greenwich. The length of the subway is 406 yards, and the cost was about £180,000. The Woolwich Tunnel (foot passengers only), constructed by the L.C.C. and opened in 1912, connects North and South Woolwich below the passenger and vehicular ferry from North Woolwich Station, E.16, to High Street, Woolwich, S.E.18. The length of the subway is 552 yards, and its cost was about £86,000. The Thames Tunnel (1,300 feet) was opened in 1843 to connect Wapping (N.) with Rotherhithe (S.). In 1866 it was closed to the public, and purchased by the East London Railway Company. The Tower

Subway for foot passengers was opened in 1870, and has long been closed.

TOWER HILL, E.C.1 and E.C.3, was formerly the place of execution for condemned prisoners from the Tower, the site of the scaffold being marked in the gardens of Trinity Square. A movement, sponsored by the Council for Tower Hill Improvement, aims at creating more open space around the Tower by the demolition of encroaching buildings and by opening Trinity Square Gardens to the public, thus restoring to Tower Hill its ancient title to be the City's pleasure, or "Board-room."

TOWER OF LONDON, E.C.3.—Admission to a general view of the Tower, the White Tower Armouries, the Beauchamp and Bloody Towers and the Chapels Royal—1s. 6d.; children, 9d.; to Jewel House—1s. Half-price for children. The Tower of London is closed on Sundays during the Winter period and on the mornings of the Summer time period, Good Friday and Christmas Day. On Sundays throughout the year the public is admitted to Holy Communion, 8.15 a.m. and Morning Service, 11.15 a.m. Open on weekdays, May 1 to Sept. 30, 10 a.m. to 5.30 p.m.; Oct. 1 to mid-March, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; mid-March to April 30, 10 a.m. to 4.30 p.m.; Sundays, first Sunday in April to last in Oct., 2 to 5 p.m. CONSTABLE, Field-Marshal The Earl Alexander of Tunis, K.G., P.C., G.C.B., O.M., G.C.M.G., C.S.I., D.S.O., M.C.; LIEUTENANT, Lieut.-General Sir Roger Bower, K.C.B., K.B.E.; MAJOR AND RESIDENT GOVERNOR, Col. Sir Thomas Butler, Bt., D.S.O., O.B.E.; KEEPER OF THE JEWEL HOUSE, Maj.-General H. D. W. Sitwell, C.B., M.C., F.S.A.; MASTER OF THE ARMOURIES, Sir James Mann, F.S.A.

The White Tower is the oldest and central building in Her Majesty's Royal Palace and Fortress of the Tower of London. It was built at the order of William I. and constructed by Gundulph, Bishop of Rochester, in the years 1078-98. The Inner Wall, with thirteen towers, was constructed by Henry III. in the 12th century. The Moat was extended and completed by Richard I. and the Wharf first mentioned in 1228. The Outer Wall was completed in the reign of Edward I. and now incorporates 6 towers and 2 bastions. The last Monarch to reside in the Tower of London was James I. The Crown Jewels came to the Tower in the reign of Henry III. All coinage used in Great Britain was minted in the Outer Ward of the Tower of London until 1810 when the Royal Mint was formed. The Tower of London has had a military garrison since 1078.

WELLINGTON MUSEUM, Apsley House, Hyde Park Corner, W.1.—Admission on weekdays and Bank Holidays, 10 to 6; Sundays, 2.30 to 6. Closed Good Friday and Christmas Day. Adults 1s., Children, 6d. Organized School parties admitted free. Apsley House was designed by Robert Adam for Lord Bathurst and built 1771-8. It was bought in 1817 by the Duke of Wellington, who in 1828-29 employed Benjamin Wyatt to enlarge it, face it with Bath stone and add the Corinthian portico. The Museum contains many fine paintings, services of porcelain and silver plate and personal relics formerly belonging to the 1st Duke of Wellington (1769-1852) and was given to the Nation by the present Duke. It was first opened to the public in 1952, under the administration of the Victoria and Albert Museum.

WESTMINSTER HALL, S.W.1 (built by William Rufus, A.D. 1087-1100 and altered by Richard II, 1377-99), adjacent to and incorporated in the Houses of Parliament.—Westminster Hall is part of the old Palace of Westminster and survived the fire, which destroyed most of the remainder of the Palace (Oct. 16, 1834). The Hall is about 240 ft. long, 68 ft. wide, and 90 ft. high. The hammer beam roof of carved oak, dating from 1399, is one of the principal attractions. King Charles I. was tried in the Hall. Extensive repairs to the Hall have recently been carried out. Admission: During sessions—Mon. to Thurs., 10 a.m. until 1.30 p.m. Sat., 10 a.m.—5 p.m. During Recess—Mon. to Fri., except Good Friday, Christmas Day and Boxing Day, 10 a.m.—4 p.m.; Sat., 10 a.m.—5 p.m.

ENVIRONS OF LONDON

BARNET AND HADLEY GREEN.—Scene of Battle, A.D. 1471. Hadley Woods.

BURNHAM BEECHES and FLEET WOOD, Bucks.—Magnificent wooded scenery (425 acres), purchased by the Corporation of London for the benefit of the public in 1879; Fleet Wood (65 acres) presented in 1921. During summer omnibus runs daily, Sundays included, from Slough Station (Western Region), passing within 250 yards of "Gray's Elegy" Church. See "Stoke Poges."

BUSHY PARK (1,100 acres).—Adjoining Hampton Court, contains many fine trees and avenue of horse-chestnuts enclosed in a fourfold avenue of limes, planted by King William III. "Chestnut Sunday" (when the trees are in full bloom with their "candles") is usually about 1st to 15th May.

CHEQUERS, a country residence for Prime Ministers, was presented to the Nation (with an endowment to maintain the estate, etc.) by Lord and Lady Lee of Fareham, as the official country residence for the Prime Minister of the day, and the gift was approved by Parliament in the Chequers Estate Act, 1917. In 1921 the Chequers Estate of 700 acres was added to the gift by Lord Lee. Chequers is a mansion in Tudor style in the Chilterns, about 3 miles from Princes Risborough, Bucks, and contains a collection of Cromwellian portraits and relics.

CHILTERN HUNDREDS (Stoke, Burnham and Desborough, in Buckinghamshire).—No duly elected member of the Commons can resign his seat; he must apply for some office of profit under the Crown, and so vacate his seat under the Act of Settlement, 1707 (6 Anne, c. 7), and the usual practice is to apply for the Stewardship of the Chiltern Hundreds, or of the Manor of Northstead, whereupon the seat is declared vacant (under the Place Act of 1742, which expressly permitted acceptance of such offices to serve as an excuse for resignation) and a new writ is issued by the Speaker.

DARWIN AND DOWN HOUSE, Downe, Farnborough, Kent.—Where Charles Darwin thought and worked for 40 years and died in 1882. Maintained by the Royal College of Surgeons. Open daily (except Fridays and Christmas Day) 11 to 5. Admission, 1s.; Children, 6d.

DORNEYWOOD, country house in 215 acres, near Burnham Beeches, Bucks., was bequeathed to the nation by Lord Courtauld-Thomson (died 1954) as an official residence for any Minister of the Crown chosen by the Prime Minister during office. Administered by the National Trust. Open to the public, August and September, Saturdays, 2.15-6 p.m.

DULWICH, S.E.21 (5 miles from London), contains Dulwich College (founded by Edward Alleyn in 1619), the Horniman Museum and Dulwich Park (72 acres). The Dulwich Picture Gallery, built by Sir John Soane to house the collection bequeathed by the artist, Sir Francis Bourgeois, was damaged by enemy action in the Second World War. The pictures, however, were saved, and the gallery has been rebuilt with the aid of a grant from the Pilgrim Trust. It was reopened by Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother on April 27, 1953. In Dulwich Village the rural characteristics of the pre-suburban period are preserved.

ELTHAM, Kent (10 miles from London by Southern Region). Remains of 13th-15th century Eltham Palace, the birthplace of John of Eltham (1316), son of Edward II. The hall, built by Edward IV., contains fine hammer-beam roof of chestnut. In the churchyard of St. John the Baptist is the tomb of Thomas Doggett, the comedian and founder of the Thames Watermen's championship (Doggett's Coat and Badge).

EPHING FOREST (6,000 acres, originally purchased by the Corporation of London for £250,000 and thrown open to the public in 1882; the present forest is 12 miles long by 1 to 2 miles wide, about one-tenth of its original area). LOUGHTON, BUCKHURST HILL, CHINGFORD, HIGH BEECH (London Transport and Eastern Region). Beautiful forest scenery.

ETON COLLEGE.—22 miles from London. The most famous of English schools, founded by Henry VI. in 1440, the scholars numbering 1,160 in July, 1952. Buildings date from 1442.

GREENWICH, S.E.10.—A south-eastern metropolitan borough with a frontage of 4½ miles on the Thames. Greenwich Hospital (since 1873, the Royal Naval College) was built by Charles II., from designs by Inigo Jones, and by Queen Anne and William III., from designs by Wren, on the site of an ancient royal palace, and of the more recent Placentia, an enlarged edition of the palace, constructed by Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester (1391-1447), son of Henry IV. Henry VIII., Queen Mary I. and Queen Elizabeth I were born in the Royal Palace (which reverted to the Crown in 1447) and King Edward VI. died there. In the principal quadrangle is a marble statue of George II., by Rysbrack. (For National Maritime Museum, see pp. 405-6.) Painted Hall and Chapel open daily except Thursdays from 2.30 p.m. to 5 p.m. (closed on Sundays, Oct.-April inclusive). Visitors are also admitted to Morning Service in the Chapel at 11 a.m., summer and winter, except during College vacations. Greenwich Park (185 acres) was enclosed by Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester, and laid out by Charles II., from the designs of Le Nôtre. On a hill in Greenwich Park is the old Royal Observatory (founded 1675), which is now removed to Herstmonceux Castle, Sussex (see p. 409). Part of its buildings at Greenwich have been taken over by the Maritime Museum and named Flamsteed House, after John Flamsteed, the first Astronomer Royal. The parish church of Greenwich (St. Alfege) was rebuilt by Hawksmoor (Wren's pupil) in 1728, and restored after severe damage during the Second World War. General Wolfe (Heights of Abraham) and Tallis ("the father of Church Music") are buried in the church. Henry VIII. was christened in the former church. The Ministerial Whitebait Dinners at the "Ship" and "Trafalgar" Hotels, were held throughout the 19th century. Charlton House: built in the early 17th century (1607-1612) for Adam Newton, tutor to Prince Henry, brother to Charles I. The house is largely in the Jacobean style of architecture. Cutty Sark, the last of the famous tea clippers, which has been preserved as a memorial to ships and men of a past era. The ship is fully restored and re-rigged, with a museum of sail on board. Open to visitors: weekdays, 11 to 6, Sundays, 2.30 to 6.

HAM HOUSE, Richmond.—A notable example of 17th-century domestic architecture, long the home of the Tollemache family (Earls of Dysart). Now the property of the National Trust, which has let it on a long lease to the Ministry of Works. The contents, described as "probably the finest and most varied collection of Charles II.'s reign to survive," were purchased for the Victoria and Albert Museum which now administers the house.

Opened to the public in May, 1950, Ham House may be seen on Tues.—Sun. inclusive and on Bank Holidays, 2–6 p.m., April–Oct., 12–4 p.m., Nov.–March. Closed Mon. (except Bank Holidays), Christmas Day and Good Friday. Admission, 1s., Children, 6d.

HAMPTON COURT.—Sixteenth-century Palace built by Cardinal Wolsey, with additions by Sir Christopher Wren for William and Mary, 15 miles from London. Fine view of river. Beautiful gardens with maze and prolific grape vine (planted in 1769). Old Royal Apartments and collection of pictures. Tennis Court, built by King Henry VIII. in 1530. The Palace is closed on Christmas Day and Good Friday. Comprehensive ticket for all parts of the Palace open to the public, 2s.; children under 15, 1s. Individual tickets for Vine (2d.) and Maze (3d.) also available. Admission, Oct.–March, when the Tudor Tennis Court and the Banqueting House are closed, Adults, 1s. 6d.; Children, 1s. Refreshments can be obtained in the Tilt Yard gardens during the summer season. Bushy Park adjoins the Lion Gates of Hampton Court Palace.

Grace and Favour Residences.—Hampton Court contains a total of 57 residences occupied by favour of Her Majesty the Queen. The Minister of Public Building and Works reported in Parliament on April 17, 1962, that, of 140 grace and favour residences, the remainder were situated at Windsor Castle (46), Kensington Palace (16), St. James's Palace (8), Marlborough House Mews (9), Bushy Park (2), Kew Palace (1) and Hyde Park (1).

HARROW-ON-THE-HILL.—10 miles by Metropolitan and other railways. Large public school founded by John Lyon in 1571. The "Fourth Form Room" dates from 1608.

HUGHENDEN MANOR, High Wycombe, Bucks.—The home of Disraeli from 1847 till his death and contains much of his furniture, books, etc. Conveyed to the National Trust in 1947. Open daily including Sundays and Monday Bank Holidays (but not other Mondays and not the day after a Monday Bank Holiday), 2–6 or till dusk. Open also Saturdays and Sundays, 10–1. Closed all January. Admission (non-members), 2s.; children, 1s.; parties of 20 or more, 1s. 6d.

JORDANS AND CHALFONT ST. GILES, near Beaconsfield, Bucks, contain the Old Quaker Meeting House (1688) at Jordans, in the burial ground of which lies William Penn (Pennsylvania); a barn built out of the timbers of the Mayflower by the 17th-century owner of Jordans (Gardener). At Chalfont St. Giles is the cottage where Milton lived during the Great Plague (1665–1666).

KEW, Surrey, a parish contained since 1892 in the borough of Richmond, was a favourite home of the early Hanoverian monarchs. Kew House, the residence of Frederick, Prince of Wales, and later of his son, George III., was pulled down in 1803, but the earlier Dutch House, now known as Kew Palace, survives. It was built in 1631 and acquired by George III. as an annex to Kew House in 1781. The famous Kew Gardens (see p. 651) were originally laid out as a private garden for Kew House for George III.'s mother in 1759 and were much enlarged in the nineteenth century, notably by the inclusion of the grounds of the former Richmond Lodge. Kew Green, between the Gardens and Kew Bridge, is very attractive and on the Green stands the parish church, built in 1714 and several times enlarged. Princess Mary of Cambridge and the Duke of Teck, the parents of the late Queen Mary, were married here in 1866 and the Church contains many reminders of Royal connections with Kew.

KINGSTON-UPON-THAMES, Surrey (about 12 miles from London), is the ancient place of coronation of the Kings of Saxon England. The Coronation Stone (hence the name "King's Stone") is preserved within railings adjoining the Guildhall.

NATIONAL ARMY MUSEUM, Royal Military Academy, Sandhurst, Camberley, Surrey.—Opened by H.M. the Queen on July 15, 1960. Official museum for British Army, Indian Army and colonial forces. There is a special section for the disbanded Irish regiments.

OSTERLEY PARK, Isleworth.—House and park of 300 acres given to the National Trust by the Earl of Jersey in 1949. Part of the Elizabethan house, built in 1577 for Sir Thomas Gresham, remains, but it was largely remodelled by Robert Adam, and the staterooms are among the best examples of Adam decoration. Open daily, except Mondays, (April–Sept.) 2–6 p.m.; (Oct.–March) 12 noon–4 p.m. Closed Monday (except Bank Holidays), Christmas Day and Good Friday. Admission 1s., children 6d.

RICHMOND, Surrey, contains the red brick gateway of Richmond Palace (Henry VII., 1485–1509) and buildings of the Jacobean, Queen Anne, and early Georgian periods, including White Lodge in Richmond Park, the former home of Queen Mary's mother (the Duke of Windsor was born there, June 23, 1894). The Star and Garter Home for Disabled Soldiers, Sailors, and Airmen (the Women's Memorial of the Great War) was opened by Queen Mary in 1924. Richmond Park (2,358 acres) contains herds of fallow and red deer. From the Terrace Gardens, Richmond Hill, can be obtained a wonderful view of the Valley of the Thames.

RUNNIMED.—A meadow of about 100 acres, on S. bank of Thames (part of the Crown Lands), between Windsor and Staines. From June 15–23, 1215, the hostile Barons encamped on this meadow during negotiations with King John, who rode over each day from Windsor. The 48 "Articles of the Barons" were accepted by the King on June 15, and were subsequently embodied in a charter, since known as Magna Carta, of which several copies were sealed on June 19. About half a mile N.E. of the meadow is Magna Carta Island (claimed as the actual site of the sealing), presented to the National Trust in 1930 by Lady Fairhaven and her sons.

A memorial at Cooper's Hill, near Runnymede, to members of the Commonwealth air forces who lost their lives in the Second World War while serving from bases in the United Kingdom and north-western Europe and have no known grave, was unveiled by the Queen on October 17, 1953.

ST. ALBANS.—A city in Hertfordshire, on the river Ver, 22 miles N.W. of London. The abbey church, built partly of materials from the old Roman city of Verulamium by Paul of Caen, was consecrated in 1125. Parts still remain of the Norman structure. The city was the scene of the overthrow of Henry VI. in 1455, and of the Earl of Warwick in 1461. On a printing press set up in the abbey the first English translation of the Bible was printed. The site of the pre-Roman city of King Tasciovanus and the remains of the ancient City of Verulamium, with well preserved theatre and many other features, excavated in recent years. St. Michael's Church, with tomb of Sir Francis Bacon.

STOKE POGES (2 miles from Slough station, Western Region) contains the 14th-century Church with the Churchyard of Gray's "Elegy" and "Ode on a Distant Prospect of Eton College." The poet was buried in the church in 1771.

SYON HOUSE, Brentford.—The town seat of the Duke of Northumberland. The house is part of the buildings of the Nunnery of Syon, erected by permission of Henry VI. in 1431. At the Dissolution of the Nunnery the Estate reverted to the Crown. In 1578 it was granted to the 9th Earl of Northumberland and in 1632 the house was repaired under superintendence of Inigo Jones. In 1766 the interior was transformed by Robert Adam, who also built the entrance gateway. The lion on the river-front was brought here in 1874 on the demolition of Northumberland House in the Strand. Open (April, May, June), Wed.-Sat., also Easter Monday, Whit Sunday and Whit Monday; (July-Sept.), Wed.-Sun. 1 p.m. to 4.30 p.m. Admission 2s. 6d.; children, 1s.

WALTHAM ABBEY (or WALTHAM HOLY CROSS), 13 miles from London (Eastern Region).—The Abbey ruins, Harold's Bridge (11th century), the Nave of the former cruciform Abbey Church (the oldest Norman building in England (consecrated May 3, 1060) and the traditional burial place of King Harold II. (1066), and a Lady Chapel of Edward II., with crypt below. New evidence of the position and style of several buildings, which once stood on the site of the Augustinian monastery, were revealed by the prolonged drought in the summer of 1933. At Waltham Cross, 1 mile from the Abbey, is one of the crosses (partly restored) erected by Edward I. to mark a resting place of the corpse of Queen Eleanor on its way to Westminster Abbey. (Ten crosses were erected, but only those at Geddington, Northampton and Waltham remain; "Charing" Cross originally stood on the spot now occupied by the statue of Charles I. at Whitehall.)

WINDSOR CASTLE (begun by William the Conqueror. A.D. 1066-87).—22 miles from London, by Western and Southern Regions. The Castle Precincts are open daily, free of charge, from 10 a.m. to sunset. Official Guides are in attendance from 10 to 4, Oct., to March, and from 10 to 5, April to Sept. When the Court is not in residence, the State Apartments of Windsor Castle are open to the public, during Her Majesty's pleasure, on every weekday and on certain Sunday afternoons during the summer months. When the State Apartment, are open the charges for admission are for Adults, 1s. 6d., and for Children, 6d. By the Queen's command, the net proceeds go to charities. An authorized guide book can be obtained at the office, price 1s. 3d. The hours of admission to the State Apartments are from April 1 to May 31, and Oct. 1 to 31 between 11 and 4; June 1 to Sept. 30, 11 to 5; and from Nov. 1 to March 31, between 11 and 3 and on certain Sundays during the summer between 1.30 and 5. The Queen's Doll's House and the Old Master Drawings can be seen on the same days and hours as the State Apartments, admission 6d. each person to each. The Albert Memorial Chapel is open on the same days and at the same hours as the State Apartments (except between 1 and 2 p.m.) but not on Sundays; the Round Tower or Keep is open from April 1 to Sept. 30 (except when the Royal Standard is flying), the same days and hours as the State Apartments. Admission free. By permission of the Dean and Chapter, St. George's Chapel may be viewed on Mon.-Thurs., between 11 a.m. and 3.45 p.m.; Fridays, 1 p.m. to 3.45 p.m.; Sundays, 2.30 to 4 p.m. Admission 2s. per person, except at service times. The Chapel is usually closed during January. The Daily Services in the Chapel are open to the public. The Cusfew Tower may be seen under the guidance of the Keeper, to whom application must be made at the entrance (admission 6d.). The Royal Mausoleum, Frogmore Gardens, Home Park, is open only on Whit Monday, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission free.

HOUSES OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

THE PRINCIPAL ENGLISH CITIES

BIRMINGHAM

BIRMINGHAM (Warwickshire) is the second City in Britain and the chief centre of the hardware trade. The municipal area is 51,247 acres (about 80 square miles), with a population (1961 Census, preliminary) of 1,105,651. It is estimated that over 1,500 distinct trades are carried on in the city, the chief industries being the manufacture of buttons, bedsteads, plastic goods, chocolate, chemicals, cycles, electro-plate, guns, machine tools, glass, motor-cars and motor cycles, motor tyres, nuts and bolts, pens and nibs, tubes, paint and enamels, tools, toys, electrical apparatus, wire, jewellery and brass working, etc.

Water is supplied by the City Corporation, which also owns the transport undertaking, airport, markets and Municipal Bank. The first section of Birmingham's new Queen Elizabeth Hospital, erected at Edgbaston at a cost of approximately £1,000,000, is claimed to be the finest of its type in Europe. The city has started work on the construction of an inner ring road round the centre of the city, with many improvements in the shopping centre and a redevelopment of industrial areas.

The principal buildings are the Town Hall, built in 1832-1834; the Council House and Corporation Museum and Art Gallery (1878); Victoria Law Courts (1891); the University (1909); the Central Library; the 13th century Church of St. Martin (rebuilt 1873); the Cathedral (formerly St. Philip's Church); the Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. Chad (Pugin) and the Methodist Central Hall. Birmingham was incorporated as a borough in 1838, and was created a city in 1889; it is governed by a Lord Mayor and City Council of 39 Aldermen and 117 Councillors. The generally accepted derivation of "Birmingham" is the ham or dwelling-place of the ing or the family of Beorma presumed to have been a Saxon. Between the 11th and 16th centuries the de Berminghams were Lords of the Manor.

Lord Mayor and Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1962-63), E. W. Horton.
Recorder, J. A. Grieves, Q.C. (1960).
Stipendiary Magistrate, John Frederic Milward (1951).
Town Clerk, T. H. Parkinson (1960).
Clerk of the Peace, G. M. Butts.

LIVERPOOL

LIVERPOOL (Lancashire), on the right bank of the river Mersey, 3 miles from the Irish Sea and 194 miles N.W. of London, is one of the greatest trading centres of the world and the principal port in the United Kingdom for the Atlantic trade. The municipal area is 27,819 acres (which includes 2,840 acres in the bed of the river Mersey) (about 43 square miles, excluding the bed of the river), with a population (1961 Registrar-General's estimate) of 745,810. Quays on both sides of the river are about 38 miles long, and the Gladstone Dock can accommodate the largest vessels afloat. The chief import is grain, those next in importance being sugar, fruit, oil, timber, cotton and provisions.

The Corporation owns large industrial estates at Speke, Kirkby and Aintree, on which many modern factories have been built. Speke and Aintree are now almost fully developed, and at Kirkby new land is constantly being leased, bringing many new industries into the area. In 1943 a lease for 99 years was taken of the Elizabethan mansion at Speke Hall at a nominal rent.

The principal buildings are the Cathedral, erected from the designs of Sir Giles Gilbert Scott and consecrated in 1924; when completed this will be the largest ecclesiastical building in England;

St. George's Hall, erected 1838-1854, and regarded as one of the finest modern examples of classical architecture; the Town Hall, erected 1754 from the designs of Wood; the Walker Art Gallery; the University; the Royal Infirmary; the Municipal Offices; and the Philharmonic Hall. A Roman Catholic Cathedral is in course of erection at Brownlow Hill.

The Mersey Tunnel (Queensway) connecting Liverpool and Birkenhead is one of the most important engineering achievements of recent years; begun in 1925, it was opened to traffic on July 18, 1934, the total cost being estimated at £7,077,800. In 1961-62, 14,502,889 vehicles passed through it.

Liverpool was incorporated as a borough early in the 13th century and was created a city in 1880. The Corporation consists of a Lord Mayor and a City Council of 40 Aldermen and 120 Councillors. The name is believed to be derived from Norse words meaning the "Pool of the Slopes."

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1962-63), D. J. Lewis.
Recorder, N. J. Laski, Q.C. (1956).
Stipendiary Magistrate, Arthur McFarland (1947).
Presiding Judge, Court of Passage, G. Glynn Blackledge, M.C., Q.C. (1950).
Town Clerk, T. Alker, C.B.E. (1947).

MANCHESTER

MANCHESTER (Lancashire) (the Mancunium of the Romans, who occupied it in A.D. 78) is 189 miles N.W. of London. The municipal area is 27,255 acres (about 43 square miles), the population (1961, Registrar-General's estimate), 660,300.

Manchester is a commercial rather than an industrial centre, the industries being largely in the neighbouring towns. Within 25 miles radius, lives a population of 4,500,000 engaged in engineering, chemical, clothing, food processing and textile industries and in providing the packing, transport, banking, insurance and other distributive facilities for those industries. The city is connected with the sea by the Manchester Ship Canal, opened in 1894, 35½ miles long, and accommodating ships up to 15,000 tons.

The principal buildings are the Town Hall, erected in 1877 from the designs of Alfred Waterhouse, R.A., together with a large extension; the Royal Exchange, built in 1869 and enlarged in 1921; the Central Library (1934); the Art Gallery; Heaton Hall; the Gallery of English Costume; the 17th century Chetham Library; the Rylands Library (1809), which includes the Althorp collection; the University (Owens College); the 15th century Cathedral (formerly the parish church) and the Free Trade Hall. Manchester is one of the principal centres of political, literary and scientific advancement, and the Hallé Concerts have placed the city in the forefront of musical development. The Guardian newspaper exercises a widespread influence throughout the English-speaking world.

The town received a charter of incorporation in 1838 and was created a city in 1853. The City Council consists of 38 Aldermen and 114 Councillors.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1962-63), R. E. Thomas.
Recorder, Judge J. R. D. Crichton, Q.C. (1960).
Stipendiary Magistrate, F. B. Turner (1951).
Town Clerk, P. B. Dingle, C.B.E. (1944).

SHEFFIELD

SHEFFIELD (Yorkshire, West Riding), the centre of the special steel and cutlery trades, is situated 159 miles N.N.W. of London, at the junction of the Sheaf, Porter, Rivelin and Loxley with the river Don. The city is set in a beautiful countryside, its residential suburbs penetrating the Peak District of Derbyshire.

Sheffield has an area of 39,586 acres (nearly 62 square miles), including 3,332 acres of publicly owned parks and woodland, and a population (1962) of 494,650. Though its cutlery, silverware and plate have long been famous, Sheffield has other and now more important industries—special and alloy steels, engineering and tools in great variety. Titanium is one of the city's latest products. Refractory materials, silver refining, brush making, the manufacture of confectionery, canning, type-founding, ophthalmic optical goods and the making of snuff are other contrasting industries in Sheffield. In addition to those associated with the staple industries, important institutions are concerned with research in mining, glass technology and radiotherapy.

The parish church of St. Peter and St. Paul, founded in the twelfth century, became the Cathedral Church of the Diocese of Sheffield in 1914. Parts of the present building date from about 1435. The principal modern buildings are the Town Hall (1897 and 1923), the Cutlers' Hall (1832), the University (1905 and recent extensions), City Hall (1932), Central Library and Graves Art Gallery (1934) and the City Museum (1937).

Sheffield was created a borough on Aug. 24, 1843, a county borough in 1888 and a city in 1893, the Mayor becoming a Lord Mayor in 1897. It was made an Assize Town in 1955. The Corporation consists of 25 Aldermen and 75 Councillors.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1962-63), P. J. C. T. Kirkman.
Recorder, R. Lyons, Q.C. (1961).
Master Cutler (1962-63) (Master of the Company of Cutlers in Hallamshire), S. M. de Bartolome.
Town Clerk, J. Heys, C.B.E. (1942).
Clerk of the Peace, P. T. Ward.

LEEDS

LEEDS (Yorkshire, West Riding) is a junction for road, rail and canal services and an important commercial centre, situated 185 miles N.N.W. of London. It is a centre of the wholesale clothing trade. The city has large foundries; engineering works producing textile machinery, machine tools, etc.; printing works, tanneries, and chemical works producing dyestuffs and related products.

The municipal area is 40,619 acres, the population (1961 Census, preliminary), 510,597.

The principal buildings are the Civic Hall (opened by King George V. in 1933), the Town Hall (1858), the Philosophical Hall, the Municipal Buildings and Art Gallery (1884) and the University. The Parish Church (St. Peter's) was rebuilt in 1840; the 17th century St. John's Church has a fine interior with a famous Renaissance screen; the 17th century Mill Hill Chapel was rebuilt in 1848. Kirkstall Abbey (about 3 miles from the centre of the city), founded by Henry de Lacy in 1152, is one of the most complete examples of Cistercian houses now remaining. Temple Newsam, birthplace of Lord Darnley, was acquired by the Corporation in 1922. The present house, a stately building in red brick, was largely re-built by Sir Arthur Ingram in about 1620. Adel Church, about 5 miles from the centre of the city, is a fine Norman structure.

Leeds was first incorporated by Charles I. in 1626, made a county borough in 1889, and was created a city in 1893. The Lord Mayor presides over a Council of 28 Aldermen and 84 Councillors. The earliest forms of the name are Loidis or Ledes, the origin of which is obscure.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1962-63), H. Watson.
Recorder, G. S. Waller, O.B.E., Q.C. (1961).
Stipendiary Magistrate, Ralph Cleworth, Q.C. (1959).
Town Clerk, R. Crute (1952).
Clerk of the Peace, T. A. Whittington (1952).

BRISTOL

BRISTOL, situated on the borders of Gloucestershire and Somerset, is a City and County of itself, and is 119 miles W. of London. The present municipal area is 26,350 acres, with a population (1961 Census, preliminary) of 436,440.

Among the various industries are aircraft design and construction, paints, jams, pickles, preserves, milling, shipbuilding, rope making, chocolate, sugar and tobacco, motor and general engineering, clothing, printing, paper bag and cardboard making, glass and earthenware, soap, leather and chemical works, breweries and copper, lead and iron works. Bristol is noted for its maritime history and the docks within the Port are the City Docks, 6 miles from the entrance to the river Avon; the Royal Edward and Avonmouth Docks, at the mouth of the river; and the Portishead Docks, to the west of the river entrance. The principal imports are grain, cereal products, cocoa, molasses, feeding stuffs, bananas and other fruit, provisions, frozen meat, sugar, metals, ores, phosphates, oil-seeds, paper, petroleum and petroleum spirit, timber, tobacco, wines and spirits, wood pulp and general merchandise, and the chief exports are machinery, chemicals, stromtia, unmanufactured clay, motor vehicles and parts, coke, carbon black, prefabricated buildings and manufactured goods. A new municipal airport was opened at Lulsgate in May, 1957, replacing that at Whitchurch.

The chief buildings, in addition to the 13th century Cathedral (with later additions), with Norman Chapter House and gateway, the 11th century Church of St. Mary, Redcliffe (described by Queen Elizabeth I. as "the fairest, goodliest, and most famous parish church in England"), and Wesley's Chapel, Broadmead, are the Merchant Venturers' Almshouses, the Council House (opened by H.M. The Queen in April, 1956), Guildhall, Exchange (erected from the designs of John Wood in 1743), Art Gallery, Central Library, Cabot Tower, the University and Clifton College, Red Lodge (Tudor), Georgian House, and Blaise Castle and Mansion with Folk Museum. The Clifton Suspension Bridge, with a span of 702 feet over the Avon, was projected by Brunel in 1835 but was not completed until 1864. The beautiful Clifton Down adjoins Durdham Down (making a total of 442 acres), with Leigh Woods and Nightingale Valley on the opposite side of the river; Ashton Court Estate (840 acres) was acquired by Bristol Corporation in Jan., 1960.

Bristol was a Royal Borough before the Norman Conquest. In 1373 it received from Edward III. a charter granting it county status and in 1899 its Mayor became a Lord Mayor. The Corporation includes 28 Aldermen and 84 Councillors. The earliest forms of the name are Bristowe and Bristow.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1962-63), L. K. Stevenson.
Sheriff (1962-63), S. W. Evans, O.B.E.
Recorder, N. R. Fox-Andrews, Q.C. (1961).
Town Clerk, T. J. Urwin.
Clerk of the Peace, T. D. Corpe, O.B.E.

KINGSTON UPON HULL

HULL (officially "Kingston upon Hull") is situated in the East Riding of Yorkshire, at the junction of the Hull with the Humber, 22 miles from the North Sea and 18½ miles N. of London. The municipal area is 14,493 acres, with a population (1961 Census, preliminary) of 303,268.

Hull is one of the great seaports of the United Kingdom. It has docks covering a water area of 200 acres, well equipped for the rapid handling of cargoes of every kind, and its many industries include oil-extracting, saw-milling, flour-milling, engineering and chemical industries. It also claims to be the premier fishing port.

The City, restored after very heavy air raid damage during World War II, is well laid out with fine thoroughfares. It has good office and administrative buildings; its municipal centre being the Guildhall; its educational centre the University of Hull and its religious centre the Parish Church of the Holy Trinity, 272 feet in length.

Kingston upon Hull (anciently known as Wylke) was so named by Edward I, who granted the first of its Charter privileges in 1299. Later privileges included the creation of the office of Mayor (1331); Charter of Incorporation—the creation of the county of the town, with the power, annually exercised, to elect a Sheriff (1440); county area extended (1447); power given to elect a High Steward (1598); City status accorded (1897) and the office of Mayor raised to the dignity of Lord Mayor (1914). The City Council consists of a Lord Mayor, 21 Aldermen and 63 Councillors, representing the 21 wards of the City.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1962-63), G. Frear.

Recorder, P. S. Price, Q.C. (1958).

Sheriff, W. Fox.

Stipendiary Magistrate, D. N. O'Sullivan (1952).

Town Clerk and Clerk of the Peace, J. H. W. Glen.

NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE

NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE (Northumberland) a City and a County on the north bank of the Tyne estuary, 8 miles from the North Sea and 272 miles N. of London, has an area of 11,094 acres (18 square miles) and a population (1961 Census, preliminary) of 269,389.

The city is conveniently placed on the estuary, in the centre of the Northumberland and Durham coalfields. The exports of the Port of Newcastle upon Tyne (River Tyne) include coal and coke, sulphate of ammonia, oil fuel (as cargo and bunkers), machinery, iron and steel manufactures, tar and pitch, petroleum spirit and other oils, textiles, firebricks and fireclay goods, grain and animal feeding stuffs; the chief imports are iron ore, metals and minerals, iron and steel manufactures and scrap, oil fuels and other oils, petroleum spirit, timber, grain, fertilizers, cement, fish, fruit and vegetables, and provisions. The chief industries are coal mining, shipbuilding, ship repairing, iron and steel manufactures, engineering and boiler-making shops, locomotives, lead works, chemical manufactures, flour milling etc.

The principal buildings include the 11th century "New" Castle, of which the walls, keep and chapel are well preserved, the Cathedral (St. Nicholas), St. Andrew's Church (11th century), St. John's (12th century), St. George's, Jesmond, the Roman Catholic Cathedral of Hexham and Newcastle, Holy Trinity War Memorial, Guildhall (1658) Moot Hall (1810), Exchange (1860), Central Public Library and Laing Art Gallery and Museum, Wood Memorial Hall (1870), and the Custom House. The beauty of Jesmond Dene (gift of Lord Armstrong) is much appreciated by visitors, as well as the Town Moor, a tract of over 900 acres of open grassland. The city is connected with the south bank of the Tyne by six bridges.

The pre-Norman borough of Monkchester was re-named Newcastle in the 11th century when the castle was erected as a defence against the Scots. In 1400 it was made a county and in 1589 was incorporated. The City Corporation now comprises a Lord Mayor (1966), 20 Aldermen and 60 Councillors.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1962-63), G. Jacobson.

Recorder, A. B. Boyle, C.B.E., Q.C. (1961).

Town Clerk and Clerk of the Peace, J. Atkinson (1937).

NOTTINGHAM

NOTTINGHAM (Nottinghamshire) stands on the River Trent, 124 miles N.N.W. of London in one of the most valuable coalfields of the country with excellent railway, water (being connected by canal with the Atlantic and the North Sea), and road facilities. The municipal area is 18,370 acres and population (1961 Census, preliminary), 311,645.

The principal industries are nosery, lace, bleaching, dyeing and spinning, tanning, engineering and cycle works, brewing, the manufacture of tobacco, chemicals, furniture, typewriters and mechanical products.

Most public services are owned by the municipality. The amenities of the city include numerous public baths, libraries and parks, an art gallery and two museums. Approximately 30,480 houses have been built by Nottingham Corporation. The famous Nottingham Goose Fair is held in October each year.

The chief buildings are the 11th century Nottingham Castle (restored in 1878, and now the City Museum and Gallery of Art), Wollaton Hall (1580-88) owned by the Corporation and now a Natural History Museum, St. Mary's, St. Peter's, and St. Nicholas's Churches, the Roman Catholic Cathedral (Pugin, 1842-4), the Council House (1929), the Guildhall and Court House (1888), Shire Hall, Albert Hall, the University and Newstead Abbey, home of Lord Byron.

Snotengaham or Notingeham, "the home of the sons of Snod" (the Wise), is the Anglo-Saxon name for the Celtic Tuigogobauc, "Cave Homes." The city possesses a Charter of Henry II., and was created a city in 1897. The Corporation consists of 17 Aldermen and 51 Councillors (including the Lord Mayor).

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1962-63), S. P. Hill.

Recorder, M. A. L. Cripps, D.S.O., T.D., Q.C. (1961).

Town Clerk, T. J. Owen.

Clerk of the Peace, G. A. Wharton, M.B.E., T.D.

BRADFORD

BRADFORD (Yorkshire, West Riding), 192 miles N.N.W. of London and 8 miles W. of Leeds, in the coal and iron district, is a centre of the woollen and worsted trade. The city is connected with the Mersey in the west and with the Humber in the east by canals, and is an important railway centre. The municipal area is 25,525 acres (about 40 square miles), with a population (1961 Census, preliminary) of 295,768.

The principal textile industries are worsteds, woollens, silks and cottons, and there are also important engineering and iron works and quarries of freestone.

The chief public buildings, in addition to the 15th century Cathedral (formerly the Parish Church) and Bolling Hall (14th century), are the Town Hall (1873), the tower of which contains a clock with dials, chimes and a carillon, Exchange (1867), Cartwright Memorial Hall (1904) commemorating the inventor of the power loom, the Windsor Baths and Public Halls (1905), Grammar School (Charter, 1662), St. George's Hall (Concert Hall, 1853), Technical College (1882), the Mechanics' Institute (1832), Exchange (1867), Kirkgate Market Hall (1872), and Britannia House (1933).

The Saxon township was created a parliamentary borough in 1832, a borough in 1847, a county borough in 1889, and a city in 1897. The title of Lord Mayor was conferred on the Chief Magistrate in 1907. The Corporation consists of a Lord Mayor, 20 Aldermen and 60 Councillors.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1962-63), H. K. Watson.
Recorder, B. B. Gillis, Q.C. (1958).
Town Clerk, H. Patten (1960).
Clerk of the Peace, P. Denny.

OXFORD

OXFORD is a University City, an important industrial centre, and a county, assize, and market town.

It has been a City from time immemorial and a County Borough since 1889. It has an area of 8,785 acres, a population (1961 Census, preliminary) of 106,124 and a rateable value of £2,265,697. Oxford is a parliamentary constituency returning one member and is governed by a Council of 68 members of whom 12 are, by special enactment, elected by the University.

The University (see also pp. 503-5) has 27 Colleges, 5 Private Halls, 3 New Foundations and 1 Society.

Industry, consisting of printing and bookbinding, and the making of agricultural implements and marmalade, played a minor part in Oxford until the motor industry was established in 1912. To-day this and the adjoining pressed steel works employ about 15,000.

The City has filled a notable place in the story of the nation, first entering real history in A.D. 912 when, according to the Old English Chronicle, possession of it was taken by King Edward the Elder. It had a Mayor by 1122. It was a favourite residence of the Plantagenets, who gave the City its earliest charters and who built Beaumont Palace where Richard Cœur de Lion was born in 1157. The origins of the University are obscure, but it seems clear that it was already in existence in 1187, and by 1212 had a Chancellor. Colleges began to come into existence during the thirteenth century, the earliest being University, Balliol and Merton Colleges. The University became sufficiently powerful to secure the aid of the monarchy to establish an ascendancy over the Corporation, the outward forms of which were observed until 1825.

It is for its architecture that Oxford is of most interest to the visitor, its oldest specimens being the reputed Saxon tower of St. Michael's church, the remains of the Norman castle and city walls and the Norman church at Iffley. It is chiefly famous however, for its Gothic buildings, such as the Divinity Schools, the Old Library at Merton College, William of Wykeham's New College, Magdalen College and Christ Church and many other college buildings. Later centuries are not represented by so many examples, but mention can be made of the exquisite Tudor quadrangle at St. John's College, the renaissance Sheldonian Theatre by Wren, Trinity College chapel, and All Saints Church; Hawksmoor's mock-Gothic at All Souls College, and the superb example of eighteenth century architecture afforded by Queen's College. In addition to individual buildings, High Street and Radcliffe Square, just off it, both form architectural compositions of great beauty. Most of the Colleges have gardens, those of Magdalen, New College, St. John's (designed by "Capability" Brown) and Worcester being the largest.

The visitor will always find some of the college chapels, halls and gardens open for public inspection between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Principal City Officers.

Mayor (1962-63), E. O. Roberts.
Recorder, J. G. Foster, Q.C., M.P. (1956).
Town Clerk and Clerk of the Peace, Harry Plowman, C.B.E.

CAMBRIDGE

CAMBRIDGE, a settlement far older than its ancient University, lies on the Cam or Granta, 51 miles north of London and 65 miles south-west of Norwich. Its population in 1951, when it was raised to the dignity of a City, was 81,463 (1961 Census, 94,810). Its area is 10,060 acres.

The city is a parliamentary and quarter sessions borough, county town and regional headquarters. Its industries, which include radio and electronics, flour milling, cement making and the manufacture of scientific instruments, are extensive but nowhere obtrusive. Among its open spaces are Jesus Green, Sheep's Green, Coe Fen, Parker's Piece, Christ's Pieces, the University Botanic Garden, and the Backs, or lawns and gardens through which the Cam winds behind the principal line of college buildings. East of the Cam, King's Parade, upon which stand Great St. Mary's Church, Gibbs' Senate House and King's College Chapel with Wilkins' screen, joins Trumpington Street to form one of the most beautiful thoroughfares in Europe.

University and College buildings provide the outstanding features of Cambridge architecture but several churches (especially St. Benet's, the oldest building in the City, and St. Sepulchre's, the Round Church) also make notable contributions. The modern Guildhall (1939) stands on a site of which at least part has held municipal buildings since 1224.

The City Council consists of a Mayor, 14 Aldermen and 42 Councillors. Four of the Councillors are elected by the Colleges and Halls and two by Grace of the Senate of the University. Two of the Aldermen are elected by the Council from the University and College representatives.

Principal City Officers.

Mayor (1962-63), G. F. Hickson.
Recorder, S. Chapman, Q.C. (1961).
Town Clerk, P. Viuc.
Clerk of the Peace, C. H. Parker.

CANTERBURY

CANTERBURY, the Metropolitan City of the Anglican Communion, has an unbroken history going back to prehistoric times. It was the Roman Durovernum and the Saxon Cantwarburg (stronghold of the men of Kent). Here in 597 St. Augustine began the conversion of the English race to Christianity, when Ethelbert, King of Kent, was baptized. In 1170 the rivalry of Church and State culminated in the murder in Canterbury Cathedral, by Henry II.'s knights, of Archbishop Thomas Becket, whose shrine became a great centre of pilgrimage as described by Chaucer in his Canterbury Tales. After the Reformation pilgrimages ceased, but the prosperity of the City was strengthened by an influx of Huguenot refugees, who introduced weaving. In the first Elizabethan era Christopher Marlowe, the poetic genius and precursor of Shakespeare, was born and reared in Canterbury, and there are literary associations also with Defoe, Dickens and Barham, author of the Inglodsbay Legends. In the last war the City received severe damage from air attacks, particularly in the great "Baedeker" raid of June 1, 1942. Fortunately the Cathedral (apart from the modern Library) was not severely harmed. Great progress has been made in re-building, before which the opportunity has been taken to excavate archaeologically the main areas of damage. As a result part of the street plan of Roman Canterbury has been recovered and many Roman holdings, including a large theatre, identified.

The Cathedral, with its glorious architecture ranging from the eleventh to the fifteenth centuries, is world-famous. Modern pilgrims are attracted particularly to the Martyrdom, the Black Prince's Tomb and other historic monuments, the Warriors' Chapel and the many examples of mediæval stained glass.

Of the Benedictine St. Augustine's Abbey, hural place of the Jutish Kings of Kent (whose capital Canterbury was) only extensive ruins remain. St. Martin's Church, on the eastern outskirts of the City, is stated by Bede to have been the place of worship of Queen Bertha, the Christian wife of King Ethelbert, before the advent of St. Augustine.

The mediæval City Walls are built on Roman foundations and the fourteenth century West Gate is one of the finest buildings of its kind in the country.

The city is a county borough and county of itself, with an area of 4,810 acres and a population (1961 Registrar-General's estimate) of 30,790. Before the institution of the Mayoralty in 1448 it was governed by bailiffs and earlier still by prefects or provosts.

Principal City Officers.

Mayor (1962-63), Rev. C. F. Pare.
Recorder, G. Lawrence, Q.C. (1952).
Sheriff (1962-63), E. C. F. Brown.
Town Clerk and Clerk of the Peace, J. Boyle.

YORK

YORK is a county borough, an archiepiscopal seat, the county town of Yorkshire and a county in its own right, its correct designation being "The City and County of the City of York", and it stands at the junction of the three Ridings. York has an area of 6,933 acres, and a population (1961 Registrar-General's estimate) of 104,570. The city returns one member to Parliament and is governed by a Lord Mayor, who has the title of "Right Honourable," 13 Aldermen and 39 Councillors. The City Sheriff, who is the Sovereign's representative, is elected annually with the Lord Mayor.

The recorded history of York dates from A.D. 71, when the Roman Ninth Legion established a base which later became the fortress of Eboracum. Here Constantine the Great was proclaimed Emperor in A.D. 306. Under Edwin, in the 7th century, York became the capital of the Kingdom of Northumbria. Under the Danes it became a trading centre but suffered severely at the Norman Conquest. It is mentioned in the Domesday Book. By the 14th century the city had become prosperous and was used as the chief base against the Scots. It became a great mercantile centre, chiefly owing to its control of the wool trade, but under the Tudors its fortunes declined, though Henry VIII made it the headquarters of the Council of the North, so preserving its status as the Northern capital. During the Civil War York suffered heavily in the Royalist cause, but in the 18th century it became a social centre for the northern nobility and gentry.

With its development as a railway centre in the 19th century the commercial life of York expanded and it is now a flourishing modern city. Chief industries are the manufacture of cocoa, chocolate and confectionery, railway carriage and wagon repair, scientific instrument making, printing and light engineering.

The city is rich in examples of architecture of all periods, but its finest features are the Minster with its stained glass, and the mediæval city walls and gateways, guildhalls and churches. There are many examples of domestic architecture of the Tudor and Stuart periods, but perhaps more notable are the Georgian mansions of The Mount, Micklegate and Bootham. Its museums are world-famous, and its Art Gallery is now greatly enriched by the Lycett Green collection of Old Masters.

Principal Officers.

Lord Mayor (1962-63), R. A. Cattle.
Recorder, H. C. Scott, O.C. (1961).
Sheriff, W. E. Hargrave.
Town Clerk and Clerk of the Peace, T. C. Benfield.

WINCHESTER

WINCHESTER, the ancient capital of England, is situated on the River Itchen 65 miles S.W. of London and 12 miles north of Southampton. The City has an area of 3,288 acres and a population (1961 Registrar-General's estimate) of 28,920; it is a parliamentary and quarter session borough, an assize town and the county town of Hampshire.

Occupation of the city area can be traced back to 1800 B.C. but organized settlements appeared later, as at St. Catherine's Hill which was an Iron-Age settlement from the 6th to 2nd century B.C. Winchester was known as Caer Gwent to the Celts and Venta Belgarum to the Romans; to the latter it was an important centre as the five roads radiating from the city testified. Saxon history is somewhat obscure but Winchester became the capital of Wessex and in the 9th century capital of all England. Alfred the Great made Winchester a centre of education. In the Saxon Cathedral there took place the coronation of Edward the Confessor. William the Conqueror was crowned in the city and made it his capital. It remained so for many years, its decline as a capital beginning during the civil war between Stephen and Matilda; and with the loss of Normandy in 1204, and the sack of Southampton in 1338 Winchester had lost its favourable position. Further damage to the city occurred in the Civil War. In the latter half of the 18th century many of the city's historic buildings, including four of the six gates and much of the city wall, were destroyed. Winchester is rich in architecture of all types but the Cathedral takes first place. The longest Gothic cathedral in the world, it was rebuilt in 1079-1093 and exhibits splendid examples of Norman, Early English and Perpendicular styles. Winchester College, founded in 1393, is one of the most famous public schools, the original building remaining almost unaltered. The Hospital of St. Cross, founded in 1136 by Henry de Blois, is a fine mediæval almshouse. The Great Hall, completed in 1235, is a part of the ancient castle built by William the Conqueror.

It is not certain when Winchester was first designated a city but it is probable that the term was applied between 650 and 700. Winchester is one of the oldest corporations in the country; the first written record of a Mayor occurs in 1200.

Principal Officers.

Mayor (1962-63), J. T. S. Hutchins.
Recorder, D. P. Groom-Johnson, D.S.C., Q.C. (1962).
Town Clerk and Clerk of the Peace, R. H. McCall.

MUNICIPAL DIRECTORY OF ENGLAND

A list of all CITIES (in SMALL CAPITALS) and Boroughs (in ordinary type), and of Urban Districts with a population exceeding 20,000 (in italics); the County Boroughs named in the First Schedule of the Local Government Act, 1933, are distinguished by having § prefixed. The first figures in parentheses show the County in which the City, Borough or U.D.C. is situated (see p. 632). The second figures in parentheses given in the case of cities and boroughs, show the date of the first recorded Charter of Incorporation.

THE PRINCIPALITY OF WALES AND MONMOUTHSHIRE

Position and Extent.—Wales and Monmouthshire occupy the extreme west of the central southern portion of the island of Great Britain, with a total area of 8,006 sq. miles (5,130,107 acres); they are bounded on the N. by the Irish Sea, on the S. by the Bristol Channel, on the E. by the English counties of Cheshire, Salop, and Hereford, and on the W. by St. George's Channel. Across the Menai Straits is the Welsh island-county of Anglesey or Môn (276 sq. miles), communication with which is facilitated by the Menai Suspension Bridge (1,000 ft. long), built by Telford in 1826 (freed from toll as from Jan. 1, 1941) and by the tubular railway bridge (1,100 ft. long) of the former L.M. & S. Railway, built by Stephenson in 1850. Holyhead harbor, on Holy Isle (N.W. of Anglesey), provides accommodation for a fast steam packet service to Kingstown and Dublin (70 miles).

Population.—The population at the Census of 1961 was 2,640,362 (preliminary figures) (inclusive of Monmouthshire).

Relief.—Wales is generally mountainous, the chief systems being those of North Wales (Snowdon 3,560 ft., Carnedd Llywelyn 3,484 ft., Carnedd Dafydd 3,426 ft.); Berwyn (Aran-mawddwy 2,970 ft.); Powys (Plinlimmon 2,468 ft., Drygan Fawr 2,115 ft., Radnor 2,163 ft.); and the Black Mountain, Brecknock Beacons and Black Forest ranges (Carmarthen Van 2,632 ft., Brecon Beacon 2,906 ft., Pen-y-gawr fawr 2,660 ft.).

Hydrography.—The principal river of those rising in Wales is the Severn (see England), which flows from the slopes of Plinlimmon to the English border, dividing Montgomeryshire on its way. The Wye (130 miles) also rises in the slopes of Plinlimmon, and flows between Radnor and Brecon on its course to England. The Usk (56 miles) flows into the Bristol Channel, through Monmouthshire. The Dee (70 miles) rises in Bala lake and flows through the Vale of Llangollen, where an aqueduct (built by Telford in 1805) carries the Pontcysyllte branch of the Shropshire Union Canal across the valley. The estuary of the Dee is the navigable portion, 14 miles in length and about 5 miles in breadth, and the tide rushes in with dangerous speed over the "Sands of Dee." The Towy (68 miles), Teifi (50 miles), Taff (40 miles), Dovey (30 miles), Taf (25 miles), and Conway (24 miles), the last named broad and navigable, are wholly Welsh rivers.

The largest natural lake in Wales is Bala (Llyn Tegid) in Merionethshire, 4 miles long and about 1 mile wide; Lake Vyrnwy is an artificial reservoir, about the size of Bala, and forms the water supply of Liverpool, while Birmingham is supplied from a chain of reservoirs in the Elan and Clacwen valleys.

The Welsh Language.—Statistics published on Sept. 11, 1962, show that only 656,000, persons (of three years and over) in Wales and Monmouthshire were able to speak Welsh at the time of the 1961 Census, compared with 715,000 at the 1951 Census. One per cent. of the population could speak Welsh only, compared with 4 per cent. in 1931. The proportion of people speaking Welsh fell from 28.9 per cent. in 1951 to 26 per cent in 1961. As in 1951, the Western Counties, Anglesey, Caernarvon, Merioneth (75.9 per cent.), Cardigan and Carmarthen had the highest proportion of Welsh speakers.

Flag.—A red dragon on a green and white field (per fess argent and vert a dragon passant gules). The flag was augmented in 1953 by a royal badge on a shield encircled with a riband bearing the words Ddraig Goch Ddyry Cychwyn and imperially crowned. Only the unaugmented flag is flown on Government offices in Wales and, where appropriate, in London. Both flags continue to be used elsewhere.

EARLY HISTORY

Celts and Romans.—The earliest inhabitants of whom there is any record appear to have been subdued or exterminated by the Goidels (a people of Celtic race) in the Bronze Age, and a further invasion of Celtic Brythons and Belgae followed in the ensuing Iron Age. The Roman conquest of South Britain and Wales was for some time successfully opposed by Caratacus (Caractacus or Caradog), Chief of the Catuvellauni and son of Cynobelinus (Cymbeline) King of the Trinobantes. In A.D. 78 the conquest of Wales was completed under Julius Frontinus, and communications were opened up by the construction of military roads from Chester to Carleon-on-Usk and Caerwent, and from Chester to Conway (and thence to Carmarthen and Neath). Christianity was introduced (during the Roman occupation) in the 4th century.

The Anglo-Saxon Attacks.—The Anglo-Saxon invaders of South Britain drove the Celtic Goidels and Brythons into the mountain fastnesses of Wales, and into Strathclyde (Cumberland and S.W. Scotland) and Cornwall, giving them the name of Waelisc, or Welsh (= Foreign). The West Saxons' victory of Deorham (577) isolated Wales from Cornwall, while the battle of Chester (613) cut off communication with Strathclyde. In the 8th century the boundaries of the Welsh were further restricted by the annexations of Offa, King of Mercia, and counter-attacks were largely prevented by the construction of an artificial boundary from the Dee to the Wye (Offa's Dike). In the 9th century Rhodri Mawr united the country against further incursions of the Saxons by land and against the raids of Norse and Danish pirates by sea, but at his death his three provinces of Gwynedd (N.), Powys (Mid.) and Dehenbarth (S.) were divided among his three sons—Anarawd, Mervyn and Cadell—the son of the last named being Howel Dda who codified the laws of the country, while Lewelyn ap Seissyllt (husband of the heiress of Gwynedd) again united the provinces and reigned as Prince from 1015–1022.

The Norman Conquest.—After the Norman conquest of England, William I. created Palatine counties along the Welsh frontier, and Robert FitzHamon, the Norman Earl of Gloucester, raided South Wales and erected fortresses from the Wye to Milford Haven. Henry I. introduced Flemish settlers into South Wales, but after his death the Welsh rose under the leadership of Griffith ap Rhys and routed the Norman-Flemish forces at the fords of the Teifi (Cardigan) in 1136. From the early years of the 13th century the house Gwynedd, in the north, gained an ascendancy over the whole of Wales, and Llywelyn ap Iorwerth was in constant strife with England for recognition as an independent sovereign. Llywelyn ap Gruffydd (grandson of Llywelyn ap Iorwerth), the last native prince, was killed in 1282 during hostilities between the Welsh and English. On Feb. 7, 1301, Edward of Caernarvon, son of Edward I., was created Prince of Wales.

The Welsh are a distinct nationality, with a language and literature of their own, and the national bardic festival (Eisteddfod), instituted by Prince Rhys ap Griffith in 1176, is annually maintained. These Eisteddfodau (sessions) form part of the Gorsedd (assembly), which is believed to date from the time of Prydian, a ruling prince in an age many centuries before the Christian era.

CARDIFF

CARDIFF (Glamorgan), at the mouth of the rivers Taff (Caer Taff), Rhymney and Ely, the capital of Wales and the port of the South Wales coalfields, has an area of 15,085 acres, and a population (1961 Census, preliminary) of 256,270. Within the city there is a great variety of industry including iron and steel works, rolling mills and foundries, patent fuel works, engine wagon works, flour mills, breweries, jam, vinegar and ice factories, enamel-ware and hollow-ware, paint works, furniture and bedding, clothing and foot-ware, sweets and confectionery, tobacco, electrical goods and appliances, food products and building materials.

The principal buildings are Cardiff Castle, built in the 11th century, the National Museum of Wales, Public Library, the University College of South Wales and Monmouthshire, the Registry of the University of Wales, the Welsh College of Advanced Technology, City Hall, Law Courts, Glamorgan County Hall, Offices of Government Departments, and "The Temple of Peace and Health." The city returns 3 members to Parliament.

The Lord Mayor (1962-63), C. A. Bence.
Stipendiary Magistrate, P. G. D. Sixsmith (1948).
Recorder, F. Elwyn Jones, Q.C., M.P. (1960).
Town Clerk and Clerk of Peace, S. Tapper-Jones.

SWANSEA

SWANSEA (in Welsh, Abertawe), a seaport of Glamorgan, is a County Borough, at the mouth of the River Tawe. It is the chief centre of the copper, tinsplate and spelter industry of Wales and of the United Kingdom. The trade of the port also includes coal, patent fuel, ores, and the import and export of oil. There is also a large ship-repairing industry. The municipal airport is situated at Fairwood Common, Gower, a few miles away from the town. The municipal area is 21,600 acres, with a population (1961 Census, preliminary) of 166,740.

The principal buildings are the Norman Castle (rebuilt in 1330), the Royal Institution of South Wales, founded in 1835 (containing Museum and Library), the University College at Singleton and the Guildhall, containing Brangwyn panels. Swansea was chartered by the Earl of Warwick, circa 1158-1184, and further charters were granted by King John, Henry III., Edward II., Edward III., and James II., 2 from Cromwell and 1 Lord Marcher. The borough returns 2 members to Parliament.

Mayor (1962-63), Mrs. R. Cross.
Stipendiary Magistrate, H. Ll. Williams, Q.C. (1952).
Recorder, E. R. Bowen, Q.C., M.P. (1960).
Town Clerk, I. J. Watkins.

THE KINGDOM OF SCOTLAND

Position and Extent.—The Kingdom of Scotland occupies the northern portion of the main island of Great Britain and includes the Inner and Outer Hebrides, and the Orkney, Shetland, and many other islands. The Kingdom lies between $60^{\circ} 51' 30''$ and $54^{\circ} 38' N.$ latitude and between $1^{\circ} 45' 32''$ and $6^{\circ} 14' W.$ longitude, its southern neighbour being the Kingdom of England, with the Atlantic Ocean on the N. and W., and the North Sea on the E. The greatest length of the mainland (Cape Wrath to the Mull of Galloway) is 274 miles, and the greatest breadth (Buchan Ness to Applecross) is 154 miles. The total area of the Kingdom is 29,795 square miles (or 19,068,724 acres) exclusive of inland water, tidal water and foreshore. The population (1961 Census, preliminary) was 5,178,490, an increase of 82,075 or 1.6 per cent. since the census of 1951. (The inter-censal increase 1931-51 had been 5.2 per cent.). The average density of the population was 174 persons per square mile, compared with 171 persons per sq. mile in 1951.

Land's End to John o' Groat's.—The customary measurement of the Island of Great Britain is from the site of John o' Groat's house, near Duncansby Head, Caithness (at the N.E. extremity of the island) to Land's End, Cornwall (at the S.W. extremity), a total distance of 603 miles in a straight line and (approximately) 900 by road. But the site of the house of John de Groot (with its 8 doors and octagonal table, to solve the question of precedence between John and his 7 brothers) is about 4 miles S.W. of Duncansby Head, while Dunnet Head (also in Caithness) extends farther N. than Duncansby. John de Groot is believed to have obtained permission to settle in Caithness (from the Netherlands) in the reign of James IV. (1488-1513).

Relief.—There are three natural orographic divisions of Scotland. The Southern Uplands have their highest points in Merrick (2,764 feet), Rinn of Kells (2,668 feet), and Cairnsmuir of Carsphairn (2,612 feet), in Kirkcudbright; Hartfell (2,651 feet) in Dumfriesshire; and Broad Law (2,754 feet) in Peebles. The Central Lowlands include the valleys of the Tay, Forth and Clyde, and the cities of Edinburgh, the capital of the Kingdom, and Glasgow, its principal seaport. The heather-clad Northern Highlands extend almost from the extreme north of the mainland to the central lowlands, and are divided into a northern and southern system by the Great Glen; they contain, in the central Grampian Hills, Ben Nevis (4,406 feet), the highest point in the British Isles, and Ben Muich Dhui (4,296 feet). The Cheviot Hills form a natural boundary between Scotland and England, their highest point being The Cheviot (2,676 feet).

Hydrography.—The principal river of Scotland is the Clyde (106 miles), one of the most important rivers in the world, with the greatest commercial estuary in Scotland. The Clyde is formed by the junction of Daer and Portraill water, and flows through the city and port of Glasgow to the Firth of Clyde. During its course it passes over the picturesque Falls of Clyde, Bonnington Linn (30 feet), Corra Linn (84 feet), Dundaff Linn (10 feet), and Stonebyres Linn (30 feet), above and below Lanark. The Tweed (96 miles) has important woollen industries ("Tweeds") in its valley. The Tay, noted for its salmon, and the longest river in Scotland (117 miles), flows into the North Sea, with Dundee (the centre of the jute industry) on the estuary, which is spanned by the Tay Bridge (2 miles 73 yards), opened in 1887 to replace that destroyed by a gale (Dec. 28, 1879). The Dee (90 miles), a noted salmon river, flows through scenery of unequalled beauty to the North Sea at Aberdeen. The Spey (110 miles), the swiftest flowing river in the British Isles, and also noted for its salmon and its scenery, flows into the Moray Firth. The Forth (66 miles), navigable to Stirling, is spanned by the Forth (Railway) Bridge, constructed 1882-9 at a cost of £3,000,000, with a length of 5,330 ft. (with approaches 8,295 ft.).

The Falls of Glomach in Ross-shire, with a drop of 370 feet, are the highest in the British Isles; the Grey Mare's Tail (Dumfriesshire) is 200 feet.

The lochs are the principal hydrographic feature of the Kingdom, both on the mainland and in many of the Islands. The largest in the Kingdom and in Great Britain is Loch Lomond (24 miles long), with Lochs Awe, Tay, Rannoch and Erich in the Grampian valleys; Loch Ness (24 miles long and 800 feet deep), with Lochs Oich and Lochy, in the Great Glen; and Lochs Shin (20 miles) and Maree in the northern Highlands.

Climate.—The general climatic values for Scotland are given below, together with the corresponding values for England and Wales within brackets—mean air temperature reduced to sea level $47.1^{\circ} F.$ (49.7); rainfall, 50.3 inches (35.2); number of days with rain 217 (188); mean hours per day of bright sunshine, 3.36 (3.96).

Gaelic Language.—The preliminary report on the 1961 Census of Scotland showed that 76,587 persons were Gaelic speakers, compared with 95,447 in 1951. 1,079 persons spoke Gaelic only and not English (compared with 2,178 in 1951), though it was considered from experience that this figure would be reduced after full examination of the Census returns. The majority of Gaelic speakers lived in the counties of Ross and Cromarty (38.29 per cent.) and Inverness (24.44 per cent.). 75,508 persons spoke both Gaelic and English, compared with 93,269 in 1951.

Commerce.—The principal exports are machinery, ships and vehicles, iron and steel manufactures, non-ferrous metals, woollen and worsted yarns and products, food and drink and textile materials. Whisky continues to be the leading export to dollar countries.

THE SCOTTISH ISLANDS

There were 147 inhabited islands in the Kingdom at the time of the 1951 Census, with a total population of 141,972, the number of inhabited islands having fallen by 18 since the census of 1931. Preliminary indications from the 1961 Census were of relatively large decreases in the populations of the islands since 1951. Among the islands showing a decline in population were Islay 3,866 (9.5 per cent. decrease); Mull (including Iona, etc.), 1,674 (14.6); Coli and Tiree, 1,143 (20.0); Harris Group, 3,285 (17.7); Skye, Raasay, etc., 7,765 (10.0); Barra Group, 1,467 (22.1); N. Ulst Group, 1,921 (13.5).

Orkney.—About 6 miles N. of the Caithness coast, separated from the mainland by the Pentland Firth, is the island county of Orkney, a group of 90 islands and islets ("holms" and "skerries"), of which one-third are inhabited. The total area of the group is $375\frac{1}{2}$ square miles, with a population (1961) of 18,743, a decrease of 11.8 per cent. compared with 1951. Kirkwall, in Mainland, the largest island of the group, is the capital of the county. Many of the Orkney (and Shetland) Islands contain brochs (Pictish towers) and other Pictish and Scandinavian remains. Scapa Flow, between Mainland and Hoy, was the war station of the Grand Fleet from 1914-19 and the scene of the scuttling of the surrendered German High Seas Fleet (June 21, 1919).

Zetland.—About 50 miles N. of Orkney (with the detached Fair Isle at 25 miles N.) is the island county of Zetland or Shetland, a group of about 100 islands and islets, of which one-fifth are inhabited. The total area of the group is 551 square miles, with a population (1961 Census, prelim.) of 17,809. Lerwick, in Mainland (the largest and principal island), is the capital of the county. Fair Isle, the southernmost of the group, is famous for handknitted hosiery, and Unst for the finest of the Shetland woollen work, for which the country is famous. Muckle Flugga, about 1 mile N. of Unst, is the most northerly of the group and of the British Isles (60° 51' 30" N. lat.).

Western Islands.—Off the W. coast, at varying distances, and extending from Sutherland to Argyll, are over 500 islands and islets, of which 102 are inhabited. The total area of these Western Islands is 2,812 square miles, with a population of close on 80,000, but owing to the mountainous surface of the land only about 300 square miles are under cultivation. The Hebrides.—Until the closing years of the 13th century "The Hebrides" included other Scottish islands in the Firth of Clyde, the peninsula of Kintyre (Argyllshire), the Isle of Man, and the (Irish) Isle of Rathlin. The origin of the name is stated to be the Greek Eboudia, latinized as Hebudes by Pliny, and corrupted to its present form. The Norwegian name Sudreyvir (Southern Islands) was latinized as Sodoresens, a name that survives in the Anglican bishopric of "Sodor and Man." The inner Hebrides include the island of Skye (643 square miles—capital, Portree, famous as the refuge of Prince Charlie after his defeat at Culloden, Inverness-shire, in 1746), which contains the Cuillins (Sgurr Alasdair 3,309 feet), Red Hills (Ben Caillich, 2,403 feet), and many other picturesque mountains; Mull (367 square miles), containing Ben More (3,169 feet), Ben Buy (2,354 feet), and Ben Creach (2,289 feet); Jura (260 square miles), with a chain of hills culminating in the Paps of Jura (Beinn-an-Oir, 2,571 feet and Beinn Chaolais, 2,407 feet); Islay (235 square miles), and many smaller islands. The Outer Hebrides, separated from the mainland by the Minch, include Lewis with Harris (770 square miles), celebrated for its homespun "Tweed," North Uist, South Uist, Barra and other islands. Thirteen miles W. of Stornoway (the largest town of Lewis and of the Hebrides) are the "Druidical" remains of Callanish, a well-preserved series of monolithic circles, cruciform in general arrangement, but usually regarded as a heathen monument of the remote Stone Age.

EARLY HISTORY

Prehistoric Man.—The Picts, believed to be of non-Aryan origin, and stated to have been named Picti by the Romans on account of the tribal habit of painting the body, seem to have inhabited the whole of North Britain and to have spread over the north of Ireland. Picts' Houses are most frequent in the northern counties of Caithness and Sutherland and in the Orkney Islands. Celtic Goidels, Brythons and Belgae arrived from Belgic Gaul during the latter part of the Bronze Age and in the early Iron Age, and except in the extreme north of the mainland and in the islands the civilization and speech of the people were definitely Celtic at the time of the Roman Invasion of Britain.

The Roman Invasion.—In A.D. 80 Julius Agricola extended the Roman conquests in Britain by advancing into Caledonia as far as the "Grampian" Hills, but after a victory at Mons Graupius (since corrupted to "Grampius") he was recalled, and no further advance was made for about 60 years, when the Roman frontier was carried to the isthmus between the Forth and Clyde and marked by the Wall of Pius, towards which ran military roads from the Cheviots. The Roman occupation of Southern Caledonia was not so effective as that of South Britain, and before the close of the second century the northern limit of Roman Britain had receded to Hadrian's Wall (Fyne to Solway Firth).

The Scots.—During the later years of the Roman occupation the garrison was continually harassed by Pictish tribes north of the Wall, aided by Scots (the Gaelic tribe then dominant in Ireland), and when the garrison was withdrawn these Picts and Scots were the principal enemies of the Celtic Brythons, who are believed to have called in the Saxons to protect them from the invasions of their neighbours. A relic of the struggle between Pict and Brython is still to be seen in the Catrail, or Picts' Work Dyke, of Roxburgh (from Torwoodle, near Galashiels, to Peel Fell in the Cheviots). Christianity was introduced into Southern Caledonia about 380 by missionaries from Romanized Britain, who penetrated to the northern districts and islands. After the withdrawal (or absorption) of the Roman garrison of Britain there were many years of tribal warfare between the Picts and Scots, the Brythonic Waelisc (Welsh) of Strathclyde (South-west Scotland and Cumberland), and the Anglo-Saxons of the Lothians. The Waelisc were isolated from their kinsmen in Wales by the victory of the West Saxons at Chester (613), and towards the close of the 9th century the Scots under Kenneth Macalpine became the dominant power in Caledonia. In the reign of Malcolm I. (943-954) the Brythons or Waelisc (Welsh) of Strathclyde were brought into subjection, the lowland kingdom of the English (Lothian) being conquered by Malcolm II. (1005-1034). From the close of the 11th century until the middle of the 16th there were constant wars between Scotland and England, the outstanding figures in the struggle being William Wallace, who defeated the English at Stirling Bridge (1297), and Robert Bruce, who won the victory of Bannockburn (1314). James IV. and many of his nobles fell at the disastrous battle of Flodden (1513), and in 1603 James VI., the Stuart King of Scotland and the heir to the Tudor line of England (his mother, Mary "Queen of Scots," was the great-granddaughter of Henry VII.), succeeded Queen Elizabeth I. on the throne, his successors reigning as Sovereigns of Great Britain. After the abdication (by flight) of James VII. and II., the crown devolved upon William III. (grandson of Charles I.) and Mary (daughter of James VII. and II.) and, their issue failing, upon Anne (second daughter of James VII. and II.). Anne's children died young, and the throne devolved upon George I. (great-grandson of James VI. and I.) in 1689. Graham of Claverhouse "roused the Highlands" on behalf of James VII. and II., but died after a military success at Killiecrankie. In 1715, armed risings led to the indecisive battle of Sheriffmuir, but the movement died down until 1745, when Prince Charles Edward defeated the Royalist troops under Sir John Cope at Prestonpans and advanced to Derby in England (1746). From Derby, the adherents of "James VIII. and III." (the title claimed for his father by Prince Charles Edward) fell back on the defensive, and the Jacobite movement was finally crushed by the Royalist troops under the Duke of Cumberland at Culloden (April 16, 1746).

The Hebrides did not become part of the Kingdom of Scotland until 1266, when they were ceded to Alexander III. by Magnus of Norway. Orkney and Shetland fell to the Scottish Crown as a pledge for the unpaid dowry of Margaret of Denmark, wife of James III., in 1468, the Danish suzerainty being formally relinquished in 1590.

Scotland is represented in the Imperial Parliament by 71 members, of whom 39 represent Counties, and 32 represent Burghs. The election in Orkney and Shetland is exempted from the rule that all polls must be held on the same day.

PRINCIPAL SCOTTISH CITIES

EDINBURGH

EDINBURGH, the Capital of the Kingdom, has a municipal area of 34,781 acres, and a population at the Census of 1961 of 474,062. The city is built on a group of hills and contains in Princes Street one of the most beautiful thoroughfares in the world. The principal buildings are St. Giles's Church (restored 1879-83), and St. Mary's (Scottish Episcopal) Cathedral (Sir Gilbert Scott), the Castle (which contains, in St. Margaret's Chapel, the oldest building in Edinburgh), the Scottish National War Memorial, Parliament House (the present seat of the judicature), the National and Signet Libraries, the University, the General Register House (Robert Adam), Royal Scottish Academy, National Portrait Gallery, and the Palace of Holyroodhouse. The city is governed by a town council of 71 Members, and sends 7 Members to Parliament.

Rt. Hon. Lord Provost, Sir John Dunbar.

City Chamberlain, A. L. Imrie, C.B.E.

GLASGOW

GLASGOW, a Royal Burgh, City and County of a City, and the principal commercial centre in Scotland, has a municipal area of 39,725 acres and a population at the 1961 Census of 1,054,913. The city occupies the north and south banks of the Clyde, one of the chief commercial estuaries in the world. The tonnage of shipping using the harbour in 1961-62 was 14,528,170. The principal industries are iron and steel works, ship-building, chemicals, leather, woollens, muslin-weaving, distilling, tobacco, cotton-mills and furniture. The chief buildings are the Early English Cathedral, built during the first half of the 13th century, and incorporating part of an earlier structure, the University (Sir Gilbert Scott), the City Chambers, the Royal Infirmary and the Western and Victoria Infirmaries, the Art Galleries and the Mitchell Library. The city is governed by a town council of 113 Members, and sends 15 Members to Parliament.

Rt. Hon. Lord Provost, Dame Jean Roberts, D.B.E.

Town Clerk, A. Rooke.

City Chamberlain, G. B. Esslemont, C.B.E.

ABERDEEN

ABERDEEN, a City and a Royal, Municipal and Parliamentary Burgh, 130 miles N.E. of Edinburgh, received its charter as a Royal Burgh from William the Lion in 1179. The municipal area is 11,034 acres, with a population (1961 Census, preliminary) of 185,379. The chief industries are tourist traffic, quarrying and granite working, white fish, salmon and herring fisheries, engineering, chemicals, ship-building, paper-making, woollen and linen manufacture. From an architectural point of view, Aberdeen is truly famous for its many beautiful buildings, including Marischal College, reputed to be the most imposing white granite building in the world, King's College (1494), St. Machar Cathedral (1378), the Auld Brig o' Balgownie (1320) and the Municipal Buildings. There is a sea beach promenade, which stretches for fully two and a half miles along golden sands, and at Hazlehead an open public park of 800 acres, of which 200 are wooded, with one of the finest public golf courses in Scotland. The climate is bracing and healthy. The city is governed by a Town Council of 37 Members, and sends 2 Members to Parliament.

The Lord Provost (May 1961–May 1964), J. M. Graham, C.B.E., D.D.

Town Clerk, J. C. Rennie.

City Chamberlain, W. G. A. McInnes.

DUNDEE

DUNDEE, a City and Royal Burgh, on the left bank of the River Tay, 42 miles N. of Edinburgh, has a municipal area of 12,229 acres, and a population (Census 1961) of 182,959. Principal buildings are Queen's College (St. Andrews University), the Institute of Art and Technology, High School, Albert Institute and the Caird Hall Buildings. There is a magnificent public park of 400 acres at Camperdown and other parks of 646 acres and an observatory at Balgay Park. The principal industries are jute manufacture in all its branches, and various forms of linen weaving, the making of preserves, ship-building, engineering, dyeing, fruit, etc., canning, linoleum manufacturing, watch and clock making, and brewing. The city is governed by a Town Council of 37 members and sends 2 Members to Parliament.

The Lord Provost (1962–63), M. McManus.

Town Clerk, R. Lyle.

City Chamberlain, J. C. Milne.

CHIEFS OF CLANS AND NAMES IN SCOTLAND

The following list of Chiefs comprises the persons officially recognized as such by inheritance of the ancestral arms "without brisur or mark of cadency" under the Act 1672 c. 47, and/or relative supporters, under decree of the Lyon Court. It does not include self-styled, or Society-selected "chiefs", but the hereditary Heads of Families who conform to the evidence that "clan and family mean exactly the same thing"; and the definitions of Sir George Mackenzie of Rosehaugh, Lord Advocate to Charles II, that the undifferenced arms denote the "Chief for so we call the Representative of the Family . . . and in the Erse (Gaelic) with us the Chief of the Family is called the Head of the Clan."—and the unanimous opinions of the Law Lords in Seaforth v. Allangrange, 1921, to the same effect that the undifferenced shield of arms denotes the Chief of the Clan; which in this hereditary familial sense of parental organization or kin, is denoted by the determination of armorial succession by decree of the Court of the Lord Lyon. These organizations were termed "Names" in the Lowlands, where all members bore the same basic surname, and "Clans" in the Border and Highland areas where surnames were a later development and evolved from complicated genealogical descriptions, the "clan name" being normally that of the chief.

MISCELLANEOUS STATISTICS

Fuel and Power

Coal.—A total of 18,435,000 tons of coal was produced in Scotland in 1961, including 912,000 tons of opencast coal and 367,000 tons of anthracite. In addition, 1,242,000 tons of coal were imported from the rest of the United Kingdom. 16,746,000 tons of coal was consumed in Scotland during the year: 3,377,000 tons by domestic users, 3,791,000 tons by industrial consumers and 6,303,000 tons by gas and electricity undertakings and by British Railways.

Electricity.—The installed capacity of the Electricity Boards in 1961 was 3,017 megawatts, 10,089 million kilowatt hours were generated and 9,663 million kWh. sent out. Imports and purchases from the U.K. Atomic Energy Authority totalled 1,602 million kWh. and sales to Boards' consumers amounted to 9,865 million kWh., valued at £64,236,000

Gas.—A total of 36,716,000 cubic feet of gas was produced at gasworks in 1961, using 1,595,000 tons of coal, 45,000 tons of coke (1960-61) and 16,000 tons of oil. An average of 166.9 therms was sold to 1,073,000 consumers, total sales amounting to 179,000,000 therms (domestic users, 95,449,000; industrial users (including farms), 49,617,000; commercial users, 28,939,000).

Petroleum.—3,427,000 tons of oil were processed in Scotland in 1961. Output of refined fuel during the year included Fuel Oil, 1,342,000 tons; Aviation, motor, industrial and white spirits, 732,000 tons; Gas and Diesel oils, 692,000 tons and Kerosene, 161,000 tons. Lubricating and other oils and petroleum products totalled 500,000 tons.

Manufacturing Industries

Shipbuilding.—During the year 1961, construction of merchant vessels (100 gross tons and over) totalling 385,000 gross tons was completed, including 132,000 tons for overseas owners, and a further 377,000 gross tons laid down (overseas owners, 95,000 gross tons). Orders were received in 1961 for a total of 348,000 gross tons (overseas owners, 107,000) and at the end of the year orders were on hand for 843,000 gross tons (overseas owners, 206,000), with 470,000 gross tons under construction. Merchant ships of a gross tonnage of 198,000 were undergoing repair and conversion at the beginning of 1962.

Textiles, etc.—Manufacturers' deliveries in 1961 included: Cotton yarns, 42,098,000 lbs.; cotton cloth 32,488,000 yards; Blankets, 1,284,000 lbs.; Woollen fabrics, 18,023,000 sq. yds.; Worsted fabrics, 4,736,000 sq. yds.; Linc and union fabrics, 26,271,000 sq. yds.; Carpets and rugs, 19,851,000 sq. yds.; Jute yarn and piece goods, 181,000 tons, 2,059,000 pairs of footwear were produced in 1961.

Metal Manufactures.—Production in 1961 included: Iron and Steel: Pig iron, 1,236,000 tons; Iron Castings, 347,000 tons; Crude steel, 2,341,000 tons (including alloys, 202,000); Finished steel products—Plates, 569,000 tons; Rails and heavy rolled products, 387,000 tons; Light rolled products, 369,000 tons; Tubes, pipes and fittings, 169,000 tons; Sheets (under 3 mm. thick), 28,000 tons; Steel castings, 55,000 tons; Forgings, tyres, wheels and axles, 22,000 tons; Aluminium: Virgin aluminium, 32,000 tons; Aluminium castings, 3,700 tons.

Engineering and Electrical Goods.—Total production in 1961 was valued at £278,000,000, of which £85,000,000 was for exported goods. Production included metalworking machine tools, £3,100,000; I.C. engines and spare parts, £5,200,000; Office machinery, £26,000,000; Rotating electric machines, £2,100,000. Scientific and industrial instruments and apparatus valued at £6,700,000 and watches and clocks, £5,300,000 were also manufactured in 1961.

Chemical Products.—525,000 tons of fertilizers (Ground Phosphate, 24,000 tons; Superphosphate, 100,000 tons, and compounds, 401,000 tons), 159,000 tons of sulphuric acid (100 per cent. acid) and 4,300 tons of soap were manufactured in 1961.

EDUCATION

Statistics of education in Northern Ireland will be found in the introduction to the Education Directory, p. 502.

FINANCE

The greater part of the taxation in Northern Ireland is imposed and collected by the United Kingdom Government. After deducting the cost of collection, certain services reserved to the United Kingdom Parliament, and the Imperial Contribution, the balance is paid over to Northern Ireland's Exchequer. The Contribution so made by Northern Ireland to the cost of Imperial services, i.e. Navy, Army and Air Force, National Debt, etc., for the period from 1921 to March 31, 1961, amounted to £425,674,344. The Imperial contribution has been provisionally fixed at £8,700,000 for 1961-62 and £7,500,000 for 1962-63.

PRODUCTION

Industries.—The total value of the industrial production of Northern Ireland in 1960 was approximately £636,000,000, and employment on industrial production was given to about 221,000 persons. The textile industries, employing 54,000 persons, produced yarn, thread, twine and ropes as well as a wide variety of other textile products valued at approximately £103,000,000. The products of the engineering, ship-building and aircraft industries, which employed 57,000 persons, were valued at £91,000,000, and the food, drink and tobacco industries, giving employment to 28,000 people, produced goods valued at nearly £298,000,000. Clothing to the value of £29,000,000 was manufactured in 1960, of which some £10,800,000 represented shirts and collars, which are manufactured principally in Londonderry. Other industries of importance to the economy of Northern Ireland are furniture, toys, pottery, cardboard boxes and packing cases.

Minerals.—About 2,450 persons were employed in mining and quarrying operations in Northern Ireland in 1961, and the minerals raised were valued at some £2,745,000.

Fisheries.—The total value of sea and freshwater fish caught in 1961 was £520,000.

COMMUNICATIONS

Seaports.—The amount of shipping using the principal ports in 1961 was about 8,700,000 tons. Belfast.—Nightly passenger and freight services operate to Glasgow, Heysham and Liverpool. Regular vehicle ferry services are maintained to Preston and general cargo services operate to the major ports in Great Britain and to foreign ports. Larne.—A twice daily passenger, vehicle ferry and general cargo service to Stranraer, a regular vehicle ferry service to Preston and a cargo service to Ardrossan are operated. Londonderry.—A passenger and cargo service is maintained to Glasgow and freight services operate to Heysham, Liverpool and Preston.

Road and Rail Transport.—The Ulster Transport Authority provides all road passenger and freight services outside Belfast and Londonderry and provides all rail services. The gross receipts of the Authority in 1961 were almost £10 million. The Authority operates over 1,000 omnibuses, 1,000 lorries and 1,100 trailers. In 1961 it carried approximately 100 million passengers and 2½ million tons of freight by road and rail, and over 1 million head of livestock by road.

Airport.—Passenger and freight services are in operation between Belfast Airport and airports throughout Great Britain. During 1961 over 515,000 passengers, almost 5,000 short tons of freight and 2,120 short tons of mail were carried.

THE ARMS OF NORTHERN IRELAND

ARMS.—Argent, a Cross gules, over all on a 6-pointed Star of the field ensigned by an Imperial Crown proper, a dexter Hand couped at the wrist of the second.

BELFAST

BELFAST, a City, the seat of Government of Northern Ireland, situated at the mouth of the River Lagan at its entrance to Belfast Lough, has a municipal area of 15,357 acres, exclusive of tidal water (1,223) and a population (June, 1961) of 416,500. The city received its first charter of incorporation in 1613 and has since grown, owing to its easy access by sea to Scottish coal and iron, to be a great industrial centre. The chief industries are ship-building and the manufacture of aircraft, machinery, textiles, ropes and tobacco. Belfast is an important seaport with extensive docks.

The principal buildings are of a relatively recent date and include the Parliament Buildings at Stormont, the City Hall, the Law Courts, the Public Library and the Museum and Art Gallery. The Queen's University (previously Queen's College) was chartered in 1908.

The city returns 16 members to the Parliament of Northern Ireland and 4 members to the House of Commons at Westminster. Belfast was created a city in 1888 and the title of Lord Mayor was conferred in 1897.

Lord Mayor (1962-63), M. K. Wallace.

Town Clerk, J. Dunlop, C.B.E.

LONDONDERRY

LONDONDERRY, a City and County Borough, situated on the River Foyle, has a population (1961 Census) of 53,744 and was reputedly founded in 546 by St. Columba. Londonderry (formerly Derry) has important associations with the City of London. The Irish Society, under its royal charter of 1613, fortified the city and was for a long period closely associated with its administration.

Famous for the great siege of 1688-89, when for 105 days the town held out against the forces of James II. until relieved by sea, Londonderry was an important naval base throughout the Second World War. Interesting buildings are the Protestant Cathedral of St. Columb's (1633) and the Guildhall reconstructed in 1912 and containing a number of beautiful stained glass windows, many of which were presented by the livery companies of London. The famous Walls are still intact and form a circuit of almost a mile around the old city. The manufacture of shirts and collars is the staple industry. Other industries include motor and mechanical engineering and fancy box trading. A large part of Ulster's agricultural export trade passes through the port.

Mayor (1962-63), G. S. Glover, C.B.E., E.R.D.

Town Clerk, R. H. Henderson.

THE ISLE OF MAN (MONA)

an island in the Irish Sea, in lat. 54° 3'–54° 25' N., and long 4° 18'–4° 47' W., nearly equidistant from England, Scotland, and Ireland. The total land area is 145,325 acres (227 sq. miles), with a population (1961 Census, prelim.) of 48,151 (males, 22,060; females, 26,091). In 1959 the births numbered 641 and the deaths 760. 355 persons were returned at the Census of 1951 as able to speak the Manx language, compared with 4,657 in 1901 and 529 in 1931. The Island's main industry is catering for holidaymakers (numbering about 500,000 in the year) from all parts of the British Isles.

The land is rich in minerals, lead, blende and slate, and exports some agricultural produce. There are forty-seven miles of railway and about 25 miles of electric tram road.

Government.—The Isle of Man is governed by a Legislature, called the Tynwald, consisting of two branches—the Legislative Council and the House of Keys. The Council consists of the Lieutenant-Governor, the Bishop of Sodor and Man, the two Deemsters, the Attorney-General, 2 members appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor, and 4 members appointed by the House of Keys. The House of Keys (possibly from the Scandinavian keise=chosen) is one of the most ancient legislative assemblies in the world. It consists of 24 members, elected by the adult male and female population, 13 from the six sheadings, 7 from Douglas, 2 from Ramsey, and 1 each from Castletown and Peel. Bills after having passed both Houses are signed by the members, and then sent for the Royal Assent. After receiving the Royal Assent, a Bill does not become law unless promulgated within the ensuing twelve months, and on the first "Tynwald Day" (July 5) following it is announced in the English and Manx languages on the Tynwald Hill. On the promulgation taking place a certificate thereof is signed by the Lieutenant-Governor and the Speaker of the House of Keys.

Finance.—An annual contribution of 5 per cent. of the net "Common Purse" Receipts amounting to approximately £115,000 is made to the Imperial Government. In 1921 Tynwald accepted liability for the redemption of £250,000 War Stock, and in 1927 liability for a further sum of £500,000 of War Stock was accepted in final settlement of all responsibility to the Imperial Government in respect of the cost of the War (1914-18). The Isle of Man has made, in all, free gifts of £1,250,000 to the British Government and has lent £1,000,000 free of interest, £500,000 of the latter being converted into a free gift on June 15, 1948. The chief source of revenue is found in the customs duties, the only direct taxation being income tax. Income tax ranges from 2s. 3d. in the £ for taxable incomes over £250 to 4s. 3d. for taxable incomes of £750 and over. Surtax on incomes of £2,500 per annum, first levied in 1939-40, was abolished by decision of Tynwald on June 21, 1960. There are 31 primary, 4 secondary schools, a school of technology, arts and crafts and a domestic science college, in addition to King William's College and the Buchan School for Girls; the gross expenditure on public education in 1958-59 was £559,038. Public revenue and expenditure are roughly in balance at approximately £3,600,000.

CAPITAL, ΨDouglas. Population (1951) 20,288 ΨCastletown (1,749) is the ancient capital; the other towns are ΨPeel (2,582), and ΨRamsay (4,607).

THE CHANNEL ISLANDS

Situated off the north-west coast of France (at distances of from ten to thirty miles), are the only portions of the Dukedom of Normandy now belonging to the Crown, to which they have been attached ever since the Conquest. They consist of Jersey (28,717 acres), Guernsey (15,654 acres), Alderney (1,962 acres), Brechou (74), Great Sark (1,035), Little Sark (239), Herm (320), Jethou (44), and Lihou (38), a total of 48,083 acres, or 75 square miles. At the 1961 census the population of Jersey was 57,200, and of Guernsey, etc. 47,198 (Guernsey, 45,150; Alderney, 1,449; Sark, 560).

The climate is mild, and the soil exceptionally productive. The land under cultivation in 1961 was 40,252 vergées (2½ vergées=1 acre) in Jersey, and about 16,500 vergées (2½ vergées=1 acre) in Guernsey, the principal product of the soil of Jersey being potatoes and tomatoes, and of Guernsey tomatoes, flowers and grapes. The famous Jersey and Guernsey breeds of cows have earned a well-deserved celebrity. The Lieutenant-Governors and Commanders-in-Chief of Jersey and Guernsey are the Personal Representatives of the Sovereign and the channel of communication between H.M. Government and the Insular Governments. The Bailiffs of Jersey and Guernsey, appointed by the Crown, are Presidents both of the Assembly of the States (the Insular Legislature) and of the Royal Court in their respective Bailiwicks.

The official language is English and a Norman-French patois is also in use (except in Alderney). The principal imports are coal and coke, building material and groceries and provisions, and the chief exports potatoes, tomatoes, grapes, flowers, granite and cattle. The chief town of Jersey is St. Heller, on the south coast; the principal town of Guernsey is St. Peter Port, on the east coast, and of Alderney is St. Anne's. A telephone exchange was opened on Alderney in May, 1949 and there is one in Sark. Herm is also connected to Guernsey by telephone.

The British Commonwealth of Nations

AREA AND POPULATION.—The total area of the British Commonwealth is estimated to be about 14 million square miles. Details of the areas and populations of the member states and dependencies appear in the following pages and are also tabulated on pp. 195-9. The total population of the British Commonwealth was estimated in 1962 at 723,000,000.

GOVERNMENT.—The Commonwealth is a free association of sovereign independent states, the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Ceylon, the Federation of Malaya, the Federation of Nigeria, Sierra Leone, Tanganyika, Jamaica, Trinidad and Tobago, Uganda and the Republics of India, Pakistan, Ghana and Cyprus, together with their dependencies.

The Commonwealth has no written constitution but its members are bound together by a community of ideals and interest which springs from a common historical background and a common political heritage which in spite of diversities of race and tradition has given rise to a broadly common pattern of institutions, legislative, executive and judicial. Most members of the Commonwealth have certain constitutional features in common. They are parliamentary democracies, their laws being made with the consent of a freely elected parliament after discussion in that parliament, the executive government holding office by virtue of the support of a majority in parliament. Ministers, who must be members of parliament, are collectively responsible for the actions of the executive. With the exception of New Zealand, Pakistan, Ghana, Cyprus, Sierra Leone and Tanganyika the Parliaments of the Commonwealth have two chambers, but in the case of the upper house the method of choosing members varies. Although legislation can be initiated in them, the upper houses are principally revising bodies and the lower houses, elected by secret ballot on a basis of adult suffrage, are dominant. The office of Speaker of the lower house is a feature of all Commonwealth parliaments.

At the head of each of the Parliaments of the Commonwealth (except those of the Federation of Malaya and the Republics) is the Queen, in whose name the administration is carried on. In all member countries of the Commonwealth except the Federation of Malaya and the Republics, Her Majesty is represented by the Governor-General, who in all essential respects holds the same position in relation to the administration of public affairs as is held by the Sovereign in Great Britain. The Governor-General is appointed by the Queen on the recommendation of the Government of the country concerned and is wholly independent of the Government of the United Kingdom. He is in many cases a national of the country in which he holds office. Her Majesty is Queen of the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Ceylon, the Federation of Nigeria, Sierra Leone, Jamaica, Trinidad and Tobago, and Uganda, all of whom owe common allegiance to her, and is the symbol of their free association in the Commonwealth. Those countries which are Republics with Presidents as head of the state and the Federation of Malaya which has one of the Malay Rulers as Head of State, do not owe allegiance to the Queen. All members accept her as the symbol of the free association of member nations of the Commonwealth and as such as Head of the Commonwealth.

The status of member nations was defined by the Imperial Conference of 1926 and given legal substance by the Statute of Westminster, 1931, in which the Commonwealth nations were described as "autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another, but united by a common allegiance to the Crown and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations." (See above for modifications as regards Republics and the Federation of Malaya). Other parts of the Commonwealth, such as Colonies, while they may be described as "Commonwealth countries," are not members of the Commonwealth.

PAKISTAN.—In October, 1958, the constitution of Pakistan was abrogated and presidential rule introduced. A new constitution providing for a federal unicameral legislature and a presidential form of government was introduced in 1962.

FEDERATION OF RHODESIA AND NYASALAND.—Following a conference on Central African Federation held in London in January, 1953, and a referendum held in Southern Rhodesia on April 9, the Rhodesia and Nyasaland Federation Act was passed by the United Kingdom Parliament on July 14, 1953, and the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, consisting of the self-governing Colony of Southern Rhodesia and the Protectorates of Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, established by Order in Council. Southern Rhodesia, Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland are each proportionately represented in a Federal Assembly consisting of a Speaker and 59 members, which has control of defence, overseas trade, currency, transport, postal services and other matters of Federal concern. The Prime Minister and other Ministers are appointed by the Governor-General. For a period of ten years from the inception of the constitution there will be no change in its provisions on matters on which the Federal Legislature may make laws, without the consent of all three territorial legislatures. The Federal Constitution provides for a constitutional review between 1960 and 1962. A Conference consisting of delegations from the Federation, from each of the territories and from the United Kingdom, chosen by their respective governments, was convened in London for this purpose in December, 1960; it adjourned to a date to be decided later. (See main article under DOMINIONS, COLONIES AND PROTECTORATES.)

WESTERN SAMOA.—Previously administered by New Zealand under a trusteeship agreement with the United Nations, Western Samoa became independent in January, 1962. It has been agreed that the New Zealand Government will assist Western Samoa in the conduct of its international relations. The Commonwealth Prime Ministers have agreed that the territory should be treated as a Commonwealth country pending a decision on whether it will become a member.

CONSULTATION.—Before the Second World War it was customary for an Imperial Conference, a formal gathering of delegates from the Commonwealth nations headed by their Prime Ministers, to meet every few years for discussion of a wide range of common problems. Its functions were purely advisory or consultative, and, as it had neither legislative nor executive authority, its resolutions were not binding on the participating Governments, though normally these Governments conformed to resolutions adopted unanimously. The last Imperial Conference was held in 1937. During the War informal meetings of Ministers were substituted. Imperial Conferences have now been replaced by Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Meetings. There have also been frequent Commonwealth ministerial meetings and conferences on Defence, Finance, etc.

CITIZENSHIP AND NATIONALITY.—Each member of the Commonwealth of Nations defines the citizenship and nationality of its own people and determines the status of other Commonwealth nationals within its own boundaries. The United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Pakistan, Ghana, the Federation of Malaya, the Federation of Nigeria, and Sierra Leone have not only created a local citizenship but have also conferred on their citizens the common status of Commonwealth citizen or British subject.* Ceylon has created only a single citizenship without making provision for the common status, though to some extent drawing a distinction between citizens of other Commonwealth countries and aliens. India, in addition to creating Indian citizenship, has recognized in India, on a reciprocal basis, the common status possessed by citizens of other Commonwealth countries. The Republic of Ireland, which in 1949 ceased to be a member of the Commonwealth, is not regarded by the other Commonwealth nations as a foreign country or her citizens as foreigners. Although Ambassadors instead of High Commissioners are now exchanged between the Republic of Ireland and Commonwealth countries, her relations with the United Kingdom are conducted through the Commonwealth Relations Office and not through the Foreign Office.

THE JUDICATURE.—The Supreme Judicial Authority of dependencies in the Commonwealth is the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, before which appeals may be brought (in the form of a petition to the Crown) from Consular Courts and Courts of Vice-Admiralty, and also from the Courts of certain members of the Commonwealth (Australia, New Zealand, Ceylon, the Federation of Nigeria, Sierra Leone and Tanganyika). Arrangements have been made under which appeals to the Head of the Federation of Malaya may be entertained by the Committee. The Committee consists of such members of the Privy Council as have held or are holding high judicial office, provision being made for the inclusion of representatives of other Commonwealth countries. The members of the Commonwealth have each a broadly similar judicial system, judges (except in the Republics, where they are appointed by the President) being appointed by the Governor-General on the advice of the Government concerned. In the Federation of Malaya, puisne judges are appointed by the Head of State on the recommendation of the Judicial and Legal Service Commission. The Supreme Judicial Authority for Great Britain and Northern Ireland is the House of Lords.

DEFENCE.—Each of the independent members of the Commonwealth and also the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland is completely responsible for its own defence. Although there is no central organization to co-ordinate the defence strategy and resources of the Commonwealth, there is close liaison between the responsible governments and considerable day to day practical co-operation by the Services. This includes ministerial conferences, meetings between High Commissioners and the Governments to which they are accredited, constant exchange of information and correspondence, exchange and training of Service personnel and personal contacts between Service advisers and officials. During the Second World War collaboration between Commonwealth countries was comprehensive and continuous—each of the then members (except the Republic of Ireland) entered the war in 1939.

The territories for whose defence the United Kingdom is responsible play their part and make their contribution to Commonwealth defence as far as their means allow. While the United Kingdom safeguards sea and air communications, using bases in the territories and providing some garrisons, the dependencies are responsible for the forces necessary for their own security (although in some cases the United Kingdom meets the cost).

Membership of the Commonwealth imposes no formal collective security commitment, but individual members may of course assume special international obligations for the maintenance of peace and security. All are members of the United Nations. The United Kingdom and Canada belong to N.A.T.O.; the United Kingdom and Pakistan are in C.E.N.T.O.; the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand and Pakistan are members of S.E.A.T.O.; Australia and New Zealand are signatories of the Pacific Security Treaty. The United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand co-ordinate their defence plans in South East Asia and the South West Pacific through a joint defence machinery specially devised for this purpose.

COLONIES AND PROTECTORATES.—The United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand have dependencies for which they are independently responsible. The United Kingdom is responsible, through the Colonial Office, for the following colonies, protectorates, protected states, and trust territories.

Aden—colony and protectorates. The Governor of Aden is responsible for Kamarau Island.

Bahamas—colony.

Bermuda—colony.

British Guiana—colony.

British Honduras—colony.

British Virgin Islands—colony.

Brunei—protected state.

Falkland Islands—colony with dependencies, of which the principal are South Georgia, South Orkney, South Sandwich, South Shetland and Graham Land.

Fiji—colony. The Governor of Fiji is also Governor of the Pitcairn Islands Group and responsible for relations with the protected state of Tonga.

Gambia—colony and protectorate.

Gibraltar—colony.

Hong Kong—colony and leased territories.

Kenya—colony and protectorate.

Malta—colony.

Mauritius—colony.

North Borneo—colony.

St. Helena—colony with dependencies (Ascension Island and Tristan da Cunha are the principal).

Sarawak—colony.

Seychelles—colony.

Singapore (State)—protected state.

Western Pacific High Commission—the British Solomon Islands Protectorate, the Gilbert and Ellice Islands Colony, the Central and Southern Line Islands, and the New Hebrides Condominium, which share a High Commissioner.

West Indies—The separate colonies of Antigua, Barbados, Cayman Islands, Dominica, Grenada, Montserrat, St. Christopher-Nevis and Anguilla, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, Turks and Caicos Islands.

Zanzibar—protectorate.

Basutoland, Bechuanaland Protectorate and Swaziland—three protectorates in South Africa administered by the United Kingdom, through the Commonwealth Relations Office and H.M. High Commissioner in Pretoria.

*In addition, citizens of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland have the common status of British subject.

The Maldivé Islands, a protected state, consisting of groups of coral atolls in the Indian Ocean.

Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland—Included in the Federation are Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, which are Protectorates; the Secretary of State for the Colonies retaining certain responsibilities towards them under the Federal Constitution.

Colony (or Settlement): a territory belonging by settlement, conquest or annexation to the British Crown.

Protectorate: a territory not formally annexed, but in respect of which, by treaty, grant, usage, sufferance, and other lawful means, Her Majesty has power and jurisdiction.

Protected State: a territory under a ruler which enjoys Her Majesty's protection, over whose foreign affairs she exercises control but in respect of whose internal affairs she does not exercise jurisdiction.

Trust Territory: a territory administered by the United Kingdom government under the trusteeship system of the United Nations.

Condominium: a territory over which responsibility is shared by two administering powers.

Leased Territories: this term applies only to that part of the mainland of China which was in 1893 leased to Great Britain for 99 years and is administered by the Government of Hong Kong.

Other Commonwealth Dependencies.—Australia is responsible for Papua, the trust territory of New Guinea and (jointly with U.K. and New Zealand) Nauru Island. In addition Australia and New Zealand administer a number of island territories and extensive Antarctic areas.

DEVELOPMENT AND FINANCE.—Complete financial autonomy is enjoyed by all members of the Commonwealth. Customs tariffs are generally lower for merchandise of British origin than for importations from foreign countries. There is no Imperial Debt, but certain obligations of Crown Colonies and Protectorates are met in the early stages of their development by the United Kingdom Government, and grants in aid of revenue are also made at need.

Under the Colonial Development and Welfare Act, 1940, annual sums of £5,000,000 for Development and £500,000 for Research were made available from United Kingdom Funds for 10 years from 1941. An Act passed in 1945 extended the grant period from 1951 to 1956, making £120,000,000 available in that period subject to a maximum of £17,500,000 in any one year, of which not more than £1,000,000 might be spent on research. A further Act in 1950 increased the annual amount to £25,000,000, of which not more than £2,500,000 could be drawn in any one year for research and increased the total provision to £140,000,000 over the period 1946-56. The Colonial Development and Welfare Act, 1955, extended the life of the previous Acts to March 31, 1960, and provided an additional sum of £80,000,000, which, added to unspent balances remaining, made available for expenditure nearly £120,000,000, during 1955-60. In 1959 these Acts were extended to March 31, 1964, and a further £95,000,000 was made available. With the unspent balance this provides over £140,000,000 for expenditure in 1959-64.

COMMONWEALTH SCIENTIFIC LIAISON OFFICES (LONDON)

Africa House, Kingsway, W.C.2

[Holborn: 3422]

The Commonwealth Scientific Liaison Offices exist to keep in touch with scientific developments in the United Kingdom, to deal with scientific enquiries from and to their home countries and to act as scientific advisers to the Commonwealth

High Commissioners and Governments concerned. Joint headquarters were set up in May, 1948. Liaison offices of the various countries continue to act as separate autonomous units but share common services to the cost of which the Commonwealth countries contribute in agreed proportions. B.C.S.O. (London) serves as a headquarters for Commonwealth scientists visiting the United Kingdom.

Canada was originally discovered by Cabot in 1497, but its history dates only from 1534, when the French took possession of the country. The first permanent settlement at Port Royal (now Annapolis), Nova Scotia, was founded in 1605, and Quebec was founded in 1608. In 1759 Quebec was captured by the British forces under General Wolfe, and in 1763 the whole territory of Canada became a possession of Great Britain by the Treaty of Paris of that year. Nova Scotia was ceded in 1713 by the Treaty of Utrecht, the Provinces of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island being subsequently formed out of it. British Columbia was formed into a Crown colony in 1858, having previously been a part of the Hudson Bay Territory, and was united to Vancouver Island in 1866.

Canada occupies the whole of the northern part of the North American Continent (with the exception of Alaska), from 49° North latitude to the North Pole, and from the Pacific to the Atlantic Ocean. In Eastern Canada, the southernmost point is Pelee Island in Lake Erie, at 41° 41'.

Relief.—The relief of Canada is dominated by the mountain ranges running north and south on the west side of the Continent, by the Pre-Cambrian shield on the east, with, in between, the northern extension of the North American Plain. From the physiographic point of view Canada has six main divisions. These are: (1) Appalachian-Acadian Region, (2) the Canadian Shield, (3) the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes Lowland, (4) the Interior Plains, (5) the Cordilleran Region and (6) the Arctic Archipelago. The first region occupies all that part of Canada lying southeast of the St. Lawrence. In general, the relief is an alternation of highlands and lowlands, and is hilly rather than mountainous. The lowlands area seldom rises over 600 feet above sea level. The great Canadian Shield comprises more than half of the area. The interior as a whole, is an undulating, low plateau (general level 1,000 to 1,500 feet), with the more rugged relieving along the southern border in Northern Quebec and Labrador. Throughout the whole area water or muskeg-filled depressions separate irregular hills and ridges, 150 to 200 feet in elevation. Newfoundland as an outlying portion of the shield consists of glaciated, low rolling terrain broken here and there by mountains. The flat relief of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes lowland varies from 500 feet in the east to 1,700 feet south of Georgian Bay. The whole area in the western part slopes gently to the Great Lakes. The most striking relief is provided by the eastward facing scarp of the Niagara escarpment (elevation 250 to 300 feet). The interior plains, comprising the Prairie Provinces, slope eastward and northward a few feet per mile. The descent from west to east is made from 5,000 feet to less than 1,000 feet, in three distinct levels, with each new level being marked by an eastward facing coteau or scarp. Horizontal strata and peneplanation make for slight relief of the level to rolling type. Five fairly well-developed topographic divisions mark out the Cordilleran region of western Canada. These are: (1) coastal ranges, largely above 5,000 feet with deep fiords and glaciated valleys, (2) the interior plateau, around 3,500 feet and comparatively level, (3) the Selkirk ranges, largely above 5,000 feet, (4) the Rocky Mountains with their chain of 10,000 to 12,000-foot peaks, and (5) the Peace River or Tramontane region with its rolling diversified country. The Arctic Archipelago, with its plateau-like character has an elevation between 500 and 1,000 feet, though in Baffin Land and Ellesmere Island the mountain ranges rise to nearly 7,000 feet. Two tremendous waterway systems, the St. Lawrence and the Mackenzie, providing thousands of miles of water highway, occupy a broad area of lowland with their dominant axis following the edge of the shield.

Climate.—The climate in the eastern and central portions presents greater extremes than in corresponding latitudes in Europe, but in the south-western portion of the Prairie Region and the southern portions of the Pacific slope the climate is milder. Spring, summer, and autumn are of about seven to eight months' duration, and the winter four to five months.

GOVERNMENT

The Constitution of Canada has its source in the British North America Act of 1867 which formed a Dominion, under the name of Canada, of the four provinces: Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia; to this Federation the other Provinces have subsequently been admitted. Under this Act Canada came into being on July 1, 1867 (Dominion Day), and under the Statute of Westminster, which received the royal assent on Dec. 11, 1931, Canada and the Provinces were exempted (in common with other self-governing Dominions of the Commonwealth of Nations) from the operation of the Colonial Laws Validity Act, the Statute of Westminster having removed all limitations with regard to the legislative autonomy of the Dominions. Provinces admitted since 1867 are: Manitoba (1870), British Columbia (1871), Prince Edward Island (1873), Alberta and Saskatchewan (1905) and Newfoundland (1949).

The Executive power is vested in a Governor-General appointed by the Sovereign on the advice of the Canadian Ministry, and aided by a Privy Council.

FLAG.—Red shield with coat of arms of Canada in fly; Union Jack in first quarter next to staff.

THE LEGISLATURE

Parliament consists of a Senate and a House of Commons. The Senate consists of 102 members, nominated for life by the Governor-General, distributed between the various provinces thus: 24 for Ontario, 24 for Quebec, 10 for Nova Scotia, 10 for New Brunswick, 4 for Prince Edward Island, 6 for Newfoundland, 6 for British Columbia, 6 for Manitoba, 6 for Alberta, and 6 for Saskatchewan; each Senator must be thirty years old, a resident in the province for which he is appointed, a natural-born or naturalized subject of the Queen, and the owner of a property qualification amounting to $4,000. The Speaker of the Senate is chosen by the Government of the day. The House of Commons is elected every five years at longest.

The House of Commons has 265 members. Representation by provinces is as follows: Newfoundland 7, Prince Edward Island 4, Nova Scotia 12, New Brunswick 10, Quebec 75, Ontario 85, Manitoba 14, Saskatchewan 17, Alberta 17, British Columbia 22, Yukon 1, Northwest Territories 1.

THE JUDICATURE

The Judicature.—Justice is administered, as in England, by judges, police magistrates, and justices of the peace, of whom the first-named are appointed by the Governor-General, for life, from among the foremost men at the Bar in the several provinces. The highest court is the Supreme Court of Canada, composed of a Chief Justice and eight puisne judges, and holding three sessions in the year at Ottawa. The only other Dominion Court, viz., the Exchequer Court of Canada, is presided over by separate judges, and its sittings may be held anywhere in Canada. The Provincial Courts include the Court of Chancery, Court of Queen's Bench, Court of Error and Appeal, Superior Courts, County Courts, General Sessions, and Division Courts. The duties of coroners are generally analogous to those in force in England, as are also methods of civil and criminal procedure, while trial by jury prevails.

NATIONAL DEFENCE

All matters relating to defence are the responsibility of the Minister of National Defence. Under his direction the Chiefs of Staff for the Navy, the Army and the Air Force are responsible for the control and administration of their respective Services. The Chairman of the Defence Research Board is responsible to the Minister for defence research and related matters.

Navy.—The Royal Canadian Navy is administered by Naval Headquarters in Ottawa through principal commands at Halifax, N.S., and Esquimault, B.C., and the Royal Canadian Naval Reserve through a naval command at Hamilton, Ontario.

In March, 1962, the R.C.N. had 60 ships in commission, including one light fleet carrier, 24 destroyer escorts, 18 frigates, 10 minesweepers, 2 escort maintenance ships, 3 patrol craft, one submarine and one diving depot ship. On March 31, 1962, the strength of the Regular Force was 21,456, and that of the Reserves was 3,710.

Army.—The Canadian Army comprises the Canadian Army (Regular) and the Reserves. The Canadian Army (Regular) consists of a field force of four Infantry Brigade Groups, and training, logistic support and headquarters units. One Infantry Brigade Group is stationed in Europe as part of NATO forces. Forces in Canada are organized into four Commands and ten Military Areas, with Army Headquarters at Ottawa, Ontario. The Reserves include the Canadian Army (Militia), the Regular Reserve, the Supplementary Reserve, the Canadian Officers' Training Corps, the Cadet Services of Canada and the Reserve Militia. Additional to, but not an integral part of, the Canadian Army are services colleges, officially authorised cadet corps, rifle associations and clubs. The strength of the Canadian Army (Regular), at 31 Mar, 1962, was 51,855 officers and men and that of the Canadian Army (Militia), including personnel in the Special Militia Training Programme, 82,614.

Air Force.—The Royal Canadian Air Force is administered by Air Force Headquarters at Ottawa through: Air Defence Command, St. Hubert, P.Q.; 5 Air Division, Victoria, B.C.; 1 Air Division, Metz, France; Air Transport Command, Trenton, Ont.; Air Material Command, Rockcliffe, Ont.; Maritime Air Command, Halifax, N.S.; Training Command, Winnipeg, Man. On March 31, 1961, the R.C.A.F. had 38 squadrons in service, 27 being regular and 11 auxiliary. The strength of the R.C.A.F. (Regular) was 53,119 and of the R.C.A.F. (Auxiliary) 2,398.

EDUCATION AND LANGUAGE

Education is under the control of the Provincial Governments, the cost of the publicly controlled schools being met by local taxation, aided by provincial grants. There were (1961-62) 24,646 publicly controlled schools with 4,170,267 pupils. In addition there were 176,476 pupils in private elementary, secondary and commercial schools. There are special schools for Indians with 32,510 pupils (1961-62). At December 1, 1961, there were 39 universities and about 361 other institutions of higher education with an estimated full-time university grade enrolment of 128,894.

Canada has two official languages, English and French. At the last census about 67 per cent. of the total population gave English and about 20 per cent. gave French as their native tongue. Some 2,231,000 (or 12 per cent.) are bilingual. Owing to the spread of education the percentages of illiterates is very low: 232,447 were unable to speak English or French.

The net amount of Canada Savings Bonds of all series outstanding was $4,080,000,000 on Dec. 31, 1961, compared with $3,594,000,000 on Dec. 31, 1960.

Banking.—There were 8 chartered banks on June 30, 1962. The balance of undrawn deposits in the Post Office Savings Bank on March 31, 1962 was $27,365,119. The deposits in the Quebec savings banks on March 31, 1962, were $319,379,924.

CANADIAN PRODUCTION

Agriculture.—About 8 per cent. of the total land area of Canada is classified as farm land and approximately half of this is under cultivation, the remainder being woodland or suitable only for grazing purposes. Three quarters of the land at present cultivated is found in the prairie region of Western Canada. In 1961 there were 172,551,051 acres under cultivation and 11.1 per cent. of the population of Canada were engaged in farming.

The total gross farm value of all field crops produced on 60,966,000 acres in 1961 was $1,265,115,000.

Live Stock.—On June 1, 1961, the live stock included 534,400 horses, 12,116,000 cattle, 1,706,000 sheep, 5,889,000 swine and 79,132,000 poultry; the output of creamery butter in 1961 was 351,598,000 lb., compared with 320,403,000 lb. in 1960. The cheese production was 117,934,000 lb. compared with 110,372,000 lb. in 1960.

Fur farming.—There were 2,331 fur farms in Canada in 1960, 76 of which were fox farms, and 1,616 mink farms, the remainder being divided between raccoon, marten, fisher, fitch, lynx, chinchilla, nutria, ermine and skunk. The number of pelts produced in 1960-61 was 6,237,594, valued at $28,742,458.

Fisheries.—The total value of the catch marketed in the calendar year 1960 was $198,005,100. The capital invested in the primary fisheries was $139,422,800 of which sea fisheries accounted for $123,860,500 or 88.8 per cent., and inland fisheries for $15,562,300 or 11.2 per cent.; persons employed 92,639; canning and curing establishments in operation 534.

Lumbering.—The value of primary forest production was $806,488,000 in 1960. Lumber sawn (1960) $512,262,337. The net value of products in the pulp and paper industry (1960) amounted to $811,547,000. Newsprint produced (1960) amounted to 6,689,000 tons valued at $783,364,000.

Imports.—The principal imports in 1961 were machinery (non-farm) and parts ($603,097,000); automobile parts ($304,487,000); crude petroleum ($291,170,000); electrical apparatus ($265,260,000); rolling mill products ($111,911,000); farm implements and machinery ($231,627,000); fruits ($170,609,000); tractors and parts ($135,947,000); passenger automobiles ($154,335,000); engines and boilers ($182,575,000); aircraft and parts ($216,964,000); cotton fabrics ($75,896,000); paper board, paper and products ($75,725,000); apparel (except hats) of all textiles ($71,363,000).

Exports.—The principal exports in 1961 were newsprint paper ($761,313,000); planks and boards ($354,866,000); wheat ($661,785,000); wood pulp ($346,661,000); aluminium and products ($250,727,000); nickel ($338,457,000); copper ($201,803,000); iron ore ($135,835,000); uranium ores and concentrates ($192,722,000); asbestos and products ($132,321,000); machinery, except farm ($95,604,000); whisky ($80,397,000); crude petroleum ($154,267,000); aircraft and parts ($81,488,000).

Principal Exports to the United Kingdom in 1961 were wheat ($140,026,000); aluminium, primary ($72,200,000); copper and products ($70,268,000); nickel and products ($103,767,000); newsprint paper ($59,294,000); planks and boards ($48,564,000); wood pulp ($31,089,000); wheat flour ($22,179,000); flaxseed ($21,421,000); iron ore ($20,299,000); tobacco ($24,932,000); radioactive ores and concentrates ($18,256,000); plywood ($11,459,000); asbestos and products ($9,454,000); canned salmon ($7,768,000).

Industrial Statistics.—Industrial establishments of all kinds in 1960 numbered 36,682, the gross value of factory shipments being $23,747,457,083. These industries employed 1,294,629 hands, the total pay roll for whom was $5,207,167,393.

Minerals.—Canada is the world's greatest producer of nickel, asbestos and platinum, and ranks second in uranium, gold and gypsum, third in silver and zinc, fourth in lead, fifth in copper and iron ore and seventh in petroleum. The principal minerals produced in 1961 were: petroleum, crude 220,460,562 barrels ($487,304,660); copper ($28,582,247); nickel ($357,515,337); iron ore ($180,457,020); gold ($156,851,060); zinc ($103,781,020); asbestos ($131,053,441); coal, 10,366,678 tons ($69,983,343); lead ($47,395,393); uranium ($204,138,553); silver ($30,068,733); natural gas 646,018,204 M. cu. ft. ($63,607,157). The total value of mineral output in 1961 was $2,573,782,838.

COMMUNICATIONS

Railways.—The total first main track mileage of railways in operation on Dec. 31, 1960, was 44,029 miles, the capital liability of the railways being $4,970,399,496 (1960), earnings $1,151,655,456, the operating expenses $1,109,470,426. In 1960 the passengers carried on railways numbered 19,497,233, and freight 188,374,920 tons. Passengers carried by other transit systems totalled 1,029,305,402, operating income being $140,848,593 and expenses $135,980,728.

Shipping.—The registered shipping on Dec. 31, 1961, including inland vessels, was 21,059 vessels with gross tonnage 2,630,940.

Canals.—In 1960 the vessels passing through the Canadian sections of the St. Lawrence Seaway numbered 12,040 of 20,752,661 tons of freight. In addition to the Seaway, there were seven canal systems under control of the Federal Government. During 1960, 52,946,883 tons of freight passed through all Canadian canals in 26,629 vessels.

Civil Aviation.—The number of revenue-producing passengers carried in 1961 was 5,738,963 compared with 5,451,716 in 1960. Revenue freight was 249,700,875 lb. or a decrease of 5,099,496 lb. from 1960. Mail pounds carried increased from 37,579,496 lb. in 1960 to 39,003,812 lb. in 1961.

Motor Vehicles.—Total motor vehicle registrations numbered 5,256,341 in 1960.

Post and Telegraphs.—There were 11,421 post offices on March 31, 1961. The net postal revenue was $202,003,791 in the fiscal year 1960-61. On March 31, 1961, there were 5,600 rural mail delivery routes on which were situated 617,632 boxes. The length of telegraph lines operated in 1960 was 48,159 miles; number of telegrams transmitted totalled 15,546,292.

On Dec. 31, 1960, there were 5,728,167 telephones and 25,333,802 miles of telephone wire in use.

YUKON TERRITORY

The Yukon Act, 1955, as amended, provides for the administration of the Territory by a Commissioner acting under instructions from time to time given by the Governor in Council or the Minister of Northern Affairs and National Resources. Legislative powers, analogous to those of a provincial government, are exercised by the Commissioner in Council. The Council comprises five members elected from electoral districts in the Territory. The area of the Territory is 207,076 square miles with an estimated population (1961) of 14,628, including 1,900 Indians and a few Eskimos. Mining is the chief industry, though trapping remains important and there is considerable timber production. Oil has been discovered in the Peel Plateau area.

SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, Whitehorse. Pop. (1962) 5,031.

Commissioner, Gordon R. Cameron.

NORTHWEST TERRITORIES.

Area 1,304,903 square miles; population (1961 census) 22,998, including approximately 12,000 Indians and Eskimos.

The Northwest Territories are subdivided into the districts of Mackenzie, Keewatin and Franklin.

The Northwest Territories Act, 1952, as amended, provides for the government of the Territories by a Commissioner (who is responsible to the Government through the Minister of Northern Affairs and National Resources), and a council of nine (comprising 4 members elected in the district of Mackenzie and 5 appointed members). Legislative powers, analogous to those of a provincial government, are exercised by the Commissioner in Council.

The chief industry of the Northwest Territories is mining. The value of gold production in 1961 was $14,267,435, crude petroleum $688,425; silver $71,049; uranium $2,782,000; copper $272,000; nickel $2,600,000. Fur produced in 1960-61 was valued at $1,319,748.

SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, Ottawa. The Commissioner in Council holds two sessions each year, one in Ottawa and the other in the Territories.

Commissioner, R. Gordon Robertson.

ALBERTA

Area and Population.—The Province of Alberta has an area of 255,285 square miles, including about 6,485 square miles of water, with a population (estimated March 1, 1961) of 1,313,000.

Government.—The Government is vested in a Lieutenant-Governor and Legislative Assembly composed of 65 members, elected for five years, representing 65 electoral districts into which the Province is divided. The present representation of parties is 61 Social Credit Party, 1 Liberal, 1 Progressive Conservative and 2 others. The Executive Council consists of 13 members.

Finances.—Estimated Revenue for 1962-63, $336,000,000. Estimated ordinary Expenditure $284,804,223. There is no direct debt.

Production and Industry.—The production levels of the four leading industries (as measured by value added to raw materials) were estimated for 1961 as follows: forestry, $685,000,000; mining, $181,850,000; agriculture, $133,480,000; fishing, $77,886,000. Manufacturing activity is based largely on the processing of products of the four main basic industries. The total selling value of factory shipments was estimated for 1961 at close to two billion dollars. The principal manufacturing centres are Vancouver, Trail, Victoria, Kitimat, New Westminster, North Vancouver, Port Alberni and Prince Rupert. Manufacturing activity is based largely upon the processing of the products of the four leading basic industries. Forestry and forest-based industries form the most important economic activity accounting for approximately 40 per cent. of total production. British Columbia is the leading province of Canada in the quantity and value of its timber and sawmill products. Mining, the second most important economic activity, is based on zinc, lead, iron, asbestos, copper and natural gas. Lead production is approximately 81 per cent. of the Canadian total. The most important products of agriculture are livestock, poultry, fruits, and dairy products. Salmon accounts for approximately 67 per cent. of the value of fisheries. Other species include halibut, herring, soles, cod, and crab. The climate is healthy, quite moderate on the coast and continental east of the coast mountains. The economy is dependent upon markets outside the province for the disposal of most of the products of her industry. Canadian markets receive lumber, plywood, canned salmon, zinc, and fruit. World markets receive lumber, newsprint, woodpulp, aluminium, zinc, canned salmon, lead, and fruit.

Transport.—The province has deep water harbours which are well serviced by railways and modern paved highways. Vancouver is the base for regular scheduled air routes to other parts of Canada, the United States, Europe, Mexico, South America, Hawaii, Australia, and Japan.

Principal Cities.—CAPITAL, VICTORIA. Metropolitan population (1961 census) 154,152. Vancouver (founded in 1886), the largest city in the Province, metropolitan population (1961 census) 790,165, is the western terminus of the C.P.R. and the C.N.R. (the C.N.R. also has a terminus at Prince Rupert) and the southern terminus of the P.G.E., and possesses one of the finest natural harbours in the world. Other main trading centres are Chilliwack (8,259), Nanaimo (14,135), Penticton (13,859), Prince George (13,877), Prince Rupert (11,987), Kamloops (10,076), Dawson Creek (10,946), Trail (11,580), and Kelowna (13,188).

MANITOBA

Area and Population.—Manitoba, originally the Red River settlement, is the central province of Canada. The Province has a considerable area of prairie land but is also a land of wide diversity combining 400 miles of sea-coast, large lakes and rivers covering an area of 39,225 square miles and Precambrian rock which covers about three-fifths of the Province. The total area is 251,000 square miles with a population of 921,686 (1961).

Government.—The Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor, assisted by an Executive Council of 11 Ministers, who are members of the Legislative Assembly of 57 members. Each member of the Legislative Assembly receives an annual sessional indemnity of $4,000.

AGENT-GENERAL FOR MANITOBA.—R. M. Armstrong, Bucklersbury House, 83 Cannon Street, London, E.C.4.

Finances.—The revenues of the provincial government for the year ended March 31, 1961, were $103,938,602, and the expenditure $93,650,490.

Agriculture and Live Stock.—The total land area in Manitoba is 135,536,000 acres, of which 7,694,000 acres were under field crops in 1961. The gross value of agricultural production in 1961 was estimated at $262,675,000, of which field crops represented $108,724,000. Farm animals in 1961 numbered 966,000 cattle, 453,000 pigs, 90,000 sheep, 52,000 horses and 7,545,000 poultry.

Manufactures.—The gross value of manufactured products in 1961 was estimated at $770,459,000. Manufacturing enterprises employed about 45,000 persons. The chief industrial centres are Winnipeg, St. Boniface, St. James, Brandon and Seikirk. The largest manufacturing industry is the food and beverage industry, followed by iron and steel products. Petroleum has grown into one of the most important industries in Manitoba.

Principal Cities.—CAPITAL, WINNIPEG, population (1961), 265,429. Other centres are St. Boniface (37,600), St. James (33,977), Brandon (27,787), Fortage La Prairie (12,223).

NEW BRUNSWICK

Area and Population.—NEW BRUNSWICK is situated between 45°-48° N. lat. and 63° 47'-69° W. long. and comprises an area of 27,985 square miles, with a population (estimated at March, 1961) of 608,000. It was first colonized by British subjects in 1761, and in 1783 by the inhabitants of New England, who were dispossessed of their property in consequence of their loyalty to the British Crown.

Government.—The Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor, assisted by an Executive Council, and a Legislative Assembly of 52 members elected by the people. At the General Election of June 27, 1960, 31 Liberal and 21 Conservative members were returned.

Finance. —The estimated revenue for the year ending March 31, 1963 is $108,598,113, and the ordinary expenditure $112,514,268.

Agriculture and Live Stock.—The total land area is 17,582,720 acres, of which 549,000 were under field crops in 1961. The live stock in 1960 included 12,200 horses, 143,000 cattle, 33,000 sheep, 60,000 hogs and 881,000 poultry. Settlement is encouraged and arid improved farms are obtainable at reasonable rates. The chief commercial fish are lobsters, sardines, herring, cod and salmon. The value of production of the fisheries in 1960 was $9,358,000. The cheese factories in operation produced 526,000 lb. of cheese and the creameries 8,418,000 lb. of butter in 1961.

Manufactures.—The principal manufacturing centre is Saint John. Extensive copper, lead and zinc deposits are being developed in Restigouche County. Coal is found (output, 1961, 887,903 tons, value $7,544,885), also silver, antimony, manganese, and other minerals.

Principal Cities.—CAPITAL Ψ FREDERICTON: population (1961), 19,683. Ψ Saint John (pop. 55,153) is one of the principal winter ports of Canada and is connected by C.P.R. and Canadian National Railways with Montreal (Moncton (43,810); Lancaster (13,848); Edmundston (12,791); Campbellton (9,873)).

NEWFOUNDLAND

Area and Population.—THE ISLAND OF NEWFOUNDLAND is situated between 46° 37'-51° 37' N. latitude and 52° 44'-59° 30' W. longitude, on the north-east side of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and is separated from the North American Continent by the Straits of Belle Isle on the N.W. and by Cabot Strait on the S.W. The island is about 317 miles long and 316 miles broad and is triangular in shape, with Cape Bauld (N.), Cape Race (S.E.) and Cape Ray (S.W.) at the angles. It comprises an area of 156,185 sq. miles (inclusive of Labrador) with a population (estimated 1961) of 462,000.

Government.—On March 31, 1949, the island, with its dependency in Labrador, became the 10th

Province of the Dominion of Canada. The Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor, aided by an Executive Council and a Legislative Assembly of 36 members.

Speaker of the House of Assembly, Hon. J. R. Courage.

Clerk of the House of Assembly, R. Sheppard.

Finance.—The revenue in 1960-61 was $80,693,500 and the expenditure $77,674,200. The estimated revenue for 1961-62 was $82,142,100 and expenditure $80,550,800.

Production and Industry.—With the exception of Gander, Bishop's Falls, Badger, Millertown, Buchans, Howley, Deer Lake and that portion of the West Coast between St. George's and Port aux Basques the inhabitants are chiefly located on the coast-line of the shore and bays. Eleven mines are in operation: three iron ore, one limestone, one lead, zinc and copper, two fluorspar and four copper. Two pulp and paper mills are in operation with a total production of 544,892 tons of newsprint and 44,780 tons of sulphite pulp.

The value in 1960, of products of the forests was estimated at $88,000,000; fishery products were valued at $28,000,000 and the estimated value of agricultural products was $12,000,000. The value in 1960 of mineral products was $84,558,000. Lead, zinc and copper production in 1960 was 82,833 short tons, valued at $22,939,000; iron ore production was 7,493,901 tons valued at $51,762,000 and the value of fluorspar and gold production was $1,852,000 and $457,000 respectively.

Railways.—The main line of the railway extends from St. John's on the east coast to Port aux Basques on the west coast—a distance of 547 miles—with branches connecting with the ports of Argentia, Carbonar, Bonavista and Lewlspote, a total mileage of 705. There are also 56 miles of private line. Communication between various points on the coast and between Port aux Basques and North Sydney, Nova Scotia, is maintained by a fleet of 20 motor vessels and 5 steam vessels, operated by the Railway.

Posts and Telegraphs.—There were 636 post offices open in 1960. The number of telegraph and telephone offices was 677.

Civil Aviation.—Trans-Canada, British Overseas and 10 other lines (2 of them for local traffic only) operate from Gander Airport.

Shipping.—On Dec. 31, 1960, ships registered in Newfoundland consisted of 56 sailing vessels of 4,345 gross tons, 14 steam vessels of 12,457 gross tons and 727 motor vessels of 53,650 gross tons.

Principal Cities.—The Capital, Ψ St. JOHN'S (population 1961 census, 88,690) contains two cathedrals, several banks and numerous public buildings. Other towns are Corner Brook (25,004), Wabana (8,013), Grand Falls (6,569), Carbonar (4,195), Windsor (5,478), Bonavista (4,126), Stephenville (6,001) and Deer Lake (3,923).

LABRADOR

Labrador, the most northerly district in the Province of Newfoundland, forms the most easterly part of the North American continent, and extends from Blanc Sablon, at the north-east entrance to the Straits of Belle Isle, on the south, to Cape Chidley, at the eastern entrance to Hudson's Straits on the north. The territory under the jurisdiction of Newfoundland has an area estimated at 110,000 square miles, with a population (1956) of 10,975. The population of Goose Bay is 4,007. Labrador is noted for its cod fisheries. It also possesses valuable salmon, herring, trout and seal fisheries.

NOVA SCOTIA

Area and Population.—NOVA SCOTIA is a peninsula between 43° 25'–47° N. lat and 59° 40'–60° 25' W. long., and is connected with New Brunswick by a low fertile isthmus about thirteen miles wide. It comprises an area (with Cape Breton Island) of 21,068 square miles (325 miles of which consists of lakes, rivers and inlets of the sea) with a total population (estimated 1960) of 723,000.

Finance.—The revenue in 1960-61 was $92,888,043 and the expenditure $92,816,389; the funded debt (March 31, 1961) was $295,860,000.

Agriculture and Live Stock.—According to the 1961 census Nova Scotia has a total land area of 13,275,000 acres, of which 2,230,395 acres are held as farm land. At the same census, the total number of occupied farms was listed at 12,518. Of the total area in farm land, 330,000 acres are devoted to the production of principal field crops.

The Annapolis Valley section of Nova Scotia is famous for its fruit production, with an average crop of nearly 2,500,000 bushels annually.

The number of live stock is estimated (1960) as follows: horses, 12,000; cattle and calves, 160,000; sheep and lambs, 73,000; hogs, 52,000; poultry, 2,272,000.

Manufactures.—In 1960 there were 1,278 establishments employing 28,606 people. The selling value of factory shipments was $406,182,088. Iron and steel, food and beverages, wood and paper products, petroleum and coal products, and transportation equipment accounted for the larger proportion of this amount. The principal industrial centres are Sydney, Halifax, Trenton, Amherst, Truro and Yarmouth.

Fisheries.—The total landed value of the fisheries in 1960 was $26,094,400. About 17,000 people are employed in fishing and fish processing.

Minerals.—4,300,759 tons of coal were produced in 1961. Gypsum production was 3,982,837 tons, barite totalled 171,335 tons, salt output was 235,885 tons, and anhydrite 173,777 tons. Silver, lead and zinc production recommenced in 1961 after 5 years with no base metal output. Total value of mineral output was just over $60,000,000 in 1961, slightly below the five-year average.

Principal Cities.—CAPITAL, Ψ HALIFAX, population of Metropolitan area (1961) 179,000, one of the terminals of the Canadian National Railway, with a magnificent harbour, is one of the principal winter ports of Canada, and the entrepôt of a large trade with the West Indies, South America and Europe. One of the largest bridges in the British Commonwealth spans the harbour and connects the city of Dartmouth and surrounding area with the city of Halifax. A shipyard for the building of large ocean-going steamers, with a dry dock, is one of the leading industries; other cities and towns are Sydney, Glace Bay and New Waterford (see below), Dartmouth (45,276), Truro (12,098), New Glasgow (9,564), Amherst (10,569), Sydney Mines (8,948) and Yarmouth (8,455).

CAPE BRETON ISLAND.

Cape Breton Island, formerly a distinct Colony, was incorporated with Nova Scotia in 1819. It contains an area of 3,975 sq. miles, population (1961) 163,754. The chief city, Sydney (pop. 33,201), on the eastern coast, has valuable collieries in the neighbourhood and is the site of the third largest steel works in Canada. Glace Bay and New Waterford, also coal mining centres, have populations of 23,653 and 10,592 respectively. The Canadian National Railway provides service to the island. Construction of a large rail-highway causeway from mainland to island was completed in 1955.

ONTARIO

Area and Population.—The Province of Ontario contains a total area of 412,582 square miles, with a population (estimated April 1, 1962) of 6,321,000.

Government.—The Government is vested in a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislative Assembly of 98 members elected for five years. The last General Election was held in June, 1959, and the state of the parties in June, 1961, was 69 Progressive Conservatives, 23 Liberals (including 2 Liberal-Labour), 5 New Democratic Party and 1 vacancy. Lieutenant-Governor, His Honour J. K.

Forest lands cover 778,013 sq. miles, of which 220,275 sq. miles are productive, 143,428 sq. miles with merchantable softwood, mixed wood and hardwood, and 76,817 sq. miles with young growth. In 1959, 3,819,000 tons of paper were manufactured, valued at $485,337,000. The total area under cultivation in 1961 was 5,181,500 acres, the value of field crops being $173,763,000; 6,363,000 tons of hay and alfalfa were produced. In 1961 there were 122,000 horses, 2,115,000 cattle, 225,000 sheep, 1,116,000 swine and 12,000,000 poultry. In 1961 the production of factory cheese was 45,925,000 lb. (valued at $14,926,000) and creamery butter 138,789,000 lb. (valued at $86,743,000).

The mineral production was valued at $447,400,000 in 1961, including gold 1,052,000 fine oz. ($37,300,000).

Principal Cities.—CAPITAL, Ψ QUEBEC (1961 population, 171,979), historic city visited annually by thousands of tourists, and one of the great seaport towns of Canada; and Ψ Montreal (population, 1,191,062), the commercial metropolis, and the principal centre of the Canadian grain export trade, founded by the French at the confluence of the Ottawa and St. Lawrence Rivers, May 16, 1642. Other important cities are Verdun (78,317), Hull (56,929), Sherbrooke (66,554), Trois Rivières (53,477), Outremont (30,753), Westmount (25,012) and Lachine (38,630).

SASKATCHEWAN

Area and Population.—The Province of Saskatchewan lies between Manitoba on the east and Alberta on the west and has an area of 251,700 square miles, the population (1961 census) was 913,000. Saskatchewan extends along the Canada-U.S.A. boundary for 393 miles and northwards for 761 miles.

PHYSICAL FEATURES

Australia was separated from the other great land surfaces at a remote period, and exhibits therefore some very archaic types of fauna and flora. It may be regarded as the largest island or the smallest continent, being surrounded by the following waters:—North, the Timor and Arafura Seas and Torres Strait; East, Pacific Ocean; South, Bass Strait (which separates Tasmania from the Continent) and Southern Ocean; and West, Indian Ocean. The total area of the country is 2,944,866 English square miles, the island of Tasmania having an area of 26,215 square miles, and making a total area for the Commonwealth of 2,971,081 square miles. The coast-line of Australia is approximately 12,210 miles (including Tasmania, 900 miles), and its geographical position is between $10^{\circ} 41' 39'' 8'$ ($43^{\circ} 39'$, including Tasmania) South latitude and $113^{\circ} 9' 153'' 39'$ East longitude; the greatest length East to West is 2,400 miles, and from North to South 1,971 miles. Its nearest distance from England is about 11,000 miles.

From a physical standpoint the continent of Australia is divisible into an eastern and a western area, the former containing a regular coast-line with a good harbourage, roadsteads, rivers, and inland waterways, and a greater development of fauna and flora; the latter a broken coast-line with estuaries rather than rivers, and but little inland water communication. The whole continent is, roughly speaking, a vast, irregular, and undulating plateau, part of which is below the level of the sea, surrounded by a mountainous coast-line, with frequent intervals of low and sandy shore on the north, west and south. The Great Barrier Reef extends parallel with the East coast of Queensland for 1,200 miles, at a distance of about 60 miles from the mainland. A large part of the interior, particularly in the west, consists of sandy and stony desert, covered with spinifex, and containing numerous salt-marshes, though reaches of grass-land occur here and there. The geological formation of Australia is remarkable for its simplicity and regularity; the strike of the rocks is, with a single exception, coincident with the direction of the mountain-chains, from N. to S.; and the tertiary formation to be found in the N., S., and W. develops in the S.E. into a gigantic tertiary plain, watered by the Darling and the Murray Rivers. Nearly all round the coast, however, and in eastern and south-eastern Australia, stretching far inland from the coastal range, is a fertile area devoted partly to agriculture, partly to dairying, while the inland districts particularly are admirably adapted to the rearing of sheep. The most extensive mountain system takes its rise near the S.E. point, and includes a number of ranges known by different names in different places, none of them being of any great height. The highest peak, Mount Kosciusko, in New South Wales, reaches an elevation of 7,328 feet. The principal rivers are the Murray, which debouches on the south coast, after receiving the waters of its tributaries the Murrumbidgee, Lachlan, and Darling, in the S.E. part of the continent; on the east coast, the Hawkesbury, Hunter, Clarence, Richmond, Brisbane, Mary, Burnett, Fitzroy, and Burdekin; on the west, the Swan, Murchison, Gascoyne, Ashburton, Fortescue, De Grey, and Fitzroy; on the north, the Drysdale, Ord, Victoria, and Daly; and the Roper, the Flinders, and Mitchell, which debouch into the Gulf of Carpentaria. The scarcity of the natural water supply in the inland has been, however, mitigated by successful borings and by the construction of large dams. The work of conserving the vast quantities of water which run to waste in the wet season is being vigorously prosecuted by a system of locks and weirs on some of the rivers. A major development work in progress is the use of the waters of the Snowy River in south-eastern New South Wales for hydro-electricity generation and irrigation. Minerals comprise bauxite, coal, copper, gold, gypsum, iron, lead, limestone, mineral sand, pyrite, silver, uranium, and zinc in large quantities, antimony, asbestos, barite, beryllium, chromite, dolomite, felspar, magnesite, manganese, mica, salt, silica, talc, tantalite-columbium, tin, tungsten, &c., and there are abundant supplies of building stones, clays, &c. The potentialities of the country in regard to its supplies of metals and minerals have not yet been fully tested. Traces of oil have been discovered in several places, but the commercial possibilities of these have yet to be proved.

Climate.—The seasons are: summer, December to February; autumn, March to May; winter, June to August; spring, September to November. The climate generally is extremely dry, but, except in the tropical coast-land of the north, the continent is everywhere highly beneficial to Europeans, the range of temperature being smaller than that of the countries similarly situated.

GOVERNMENT

The Commonwealth of Australia was constituted by an Act of the Imperial Parliament dated July 9, 1900, and was inaugurated Jan. 1, 1901. The Government is that of a Federal Commonwealth within the British Commonwealth of Nations, the executive power being vested in the Sovereign (through the Governor-General), assisted by a Federal Ministry of twenty-two Ministers of State. Under the Constitution the Federal Government has acquired and may acquire certain defined powers as surrendered by the States, residuary legislative power remaining with the States. Trade and customs passed under Federal control immediately on the establishment of the Commonwealth; posts, telegraphs and telephones, naval and military defence, lighthouses and quarantine on proclaimed dates. The Federal Government also controls such matters as social services, patents and copyrights, naturalization, navigation, &c. The right of a State to legislate is not abrogated except in connection with matters exclusively under Federal controls but where a State law is inconsistent with a law of the Commonwealth the latter prevails to the extent of the inconsistency.

FLAG.—Blue ground, with Union Jack in top corner of hoist above large seven pointed star; Southern Constellation on fly.

Ambassador, Tran Van Lam.

THE LEGISLATURE

The Parliament of the Commonwealth of Australia consists of the Queen, a Senate and a House of Representatives. An Act, assented to on May 18, 1948, provided for an increase in the number of members of the Senate from thirty-six to sixty, and for the number of members of the House of Representatives to be increased from seventy-four to as nearly as practicable twice the number of Senators. There are now 124 members in the House of Representatives, including the two members, with restricted voting powers, representing the two internal territories. Members of the Senate are elected for six years by universal suffrage, half the members retiring every third year and each of the six States returning an equal number. The House of Representatives, similarly elected for a maximum of three years, contains members proportionate to the population, with a minimum of five members for each State. The present state of parties in the House of Representatives (excluding two Labour members for the internal territories) is Liberal 45, Country Party 17 and Labour 60. Members of both Houses receive £A2,750 per annum, with allowances and free air and rail travel on parliamentary business.

President of the Senate, Senator Hon. Sir Alistair McMullin, K.C.M.G.

Clerk of the Senate, R. H. C. Loof, C.B.E. £5,025

Speaker, House of Representatives, Hon. Sir John McLeay, K.C.M.G., M.M.

DEFENCE

Subject to the authority of Cabinet the Minister and Department of Defence are responsible for the formulation and general application of a unified defence policy relating to the Defence Forces and their requirements. Separate Ministers and Departments of the Navy, Army and Air are responsible for the administration of their respective Services in accordance with defence policy. The Minister and Department of Supply are responsible for the supply, manufacture and overhaul of services and goods, including munitions, for the Defence Forces and for defence research and development, in accordance with approved policy.

Royal Australian Navy

Under the Naval Defence Acts, 1910-52, the naval forces of the Commonwealth are administered by a Naval Board of Administration responsible to the Minister of the Navy.

The Royal Australian Navy consists of an aircraft carrier, a fast troop transport, 4 destroyers, 5 anti-submarine frigates, 5 frigates, 4 auxiliary vessels and a variety of support craft. A fleet replenishment ship and 6 coastal minesweepers, which had been refitting in the United Kingdom, were due to arrive in Australia in Dec., 1962. In addition, 3 submarines are on loan from the Royal Navy for anti-submarine training. In reserve there are 2 destroyers, 1 frigate, 4 boom working vessels, 1 fleet tug and several support craft.

Two anti-submarine frigates are completing in Australian dockyards.

The strength of the Royal Australian Navy on June 1, 1962, was 1,301 officers and 9,846 ratings.

Army

The Military Forces of the Commonwealth are administered by a Military Board, with the Minister for the Army as President and 7 members. There are three elements—the Australian Regular Army, the Citizen Military Forces and the Cadet Corps.

For the financial year 1961-62, the authorized strength of the Australian Regular Army was 21,000 soldiers and 5,100 civilians. This includes a Field Force, Regular Army cadres for duty with the Citizen Military Forces, administrative staff for schools, training installations and headquarters and maintenance units, in addition to the Pacific Islands Regiment comprising European officers and non-commissioned officers and native troops. The Women's Royal Australian Army Corps forms part of the Australian Regular Army, being employed in direct substitution for male soldiers in mainland units. The Royal Australian Army Nursing Corps is also an important element of the Regular Army.

The strength of the Australian Regular Army on April 30, 1962, was 21,417 all ranks, of whom 2,467 were serving outside Australia.

The strength of the Citizen Military Forces on April 30, 1962, was 30,153. The two Women's Services are also represented in the Citizen Military Forces, the strength at April 30, 1962, being 689.

The Australian Cadet Corps, composed of students at educational establishments, had a strength of 37,025 on March 31, 1962.

Air

The total strength of the R.A.A.F. on May 1, 1962, was 15,754. There were 14 flying squadrons, one ground squadron (surface air missile), 5 maintainance squadrons, 21 training units, 5 auxiliary squadrons, 6 university squadrons and 7 A.T.C. squadrons. 4 flying squadrons and one maintenance squadron were serving outside Australia.

War Losses

Australian battle casualties in the 1939-45 War:—

The Trans-Australia (Government) Railway, 4 ft. 8½ in. gauge, connects Kalgoorlie, W.A., with Port Pirie, S.A. (1,108 miles) and so forms a link (including Kalgoorlie-Perth 372 miles) between Perth and Brisbane, Q., a total length of 3,308 miles.

The gross earnings of all Government lines in 1960-61 were £208,223,467, working expenses £200,343,165, and net profit £7,880,302. In 1960-61 passenger journeys numbered 444,861,644 and 55,362,261 tons of goods and live stock were carried. There are 233 miles of electrified line in New South Wales and 262 miles in Victoria.

Tramways, Trolley-buses and Omnibuses.—The total route mileage on June 30, 1961, under Government and semi-Government control was 238 for trams, 92 for trolley-buses and 5,556 for omnibuses.

Shipping.—The entrances and clearances (one entrance and one clearance per voyage, irrespective of the number of ports visited) of vessels engaged in overseas trade at the various Australian ports in 1960-61 were: entered 3,382 (17,269,000 tons); cleared 3,396 (17,048,000 tons). Of the vessels entered, 1,736 of 8,635,000 tons were under the British flag and 1,646 of 8,634,000 tons under foreign flags.

The total, including local shipping, entering the ports of the capital cities during 1960-61 was: Sydney 4,689 vessels of 14,627,000 tons, Melbourne 3,016 (11,855,000), Brisbane 1,453 (4,998,000), Adelaide 2,727 (5,882,000), Fremantle 1,476 (8,047,000) and Hobart 481 (1,303,000). At December 31, 1961, there were 1,633 vessels of a total net tonnage of 321,407 on the shipping registers of the several States.

Posts and Telegraphs.—In the year ended June 30, 1961, there were 8,072 post offices dealing with 1,700,544,000 letters, 318,614,000 packets and newspapers, 12,935,000 registered articles and 15,976,000 parcels. 18,874,000 internal telegrams were despatched and 2,892,000 international telegrams received and despatched. At June 30, 1961, there were 7,161 telephone exchanges with 1,631,000 services and 2,266,000 instruments.

Broadcasting.—On June 30, 1961, the National Broadcasting and Television Service operated 75 stations, including 15 short-wave stations. Privately owned commercial broadcasting stations totalled 110. On June 30, 1961, there were in force in Australia 2,255,842 listeners' licences. Television transmissions commenced in September, 1956. On June 30, 1961, 16 television stations were in operation (Melbourne, 3; Sydney, 3; Brisbane, 3; Adelaide, 3; Perth, 2; Hobart, 2). Television licences in force at June 30, 1961, numbered 1,217,286.

Motor Vehicles.—At June 30, 1961, there were 3,001,903 motor vehicles registered in the several States. These comprised 2,064,871 cars, 93,382 motor cycles, and 843,650 commercial vehicles; revenue derived from motor registration fees and motor tax, &c., in 1960-61 was £50,061,000.

Civil Aviation.—At June 30, 1961, there were 483 recognized landing grounds, including 351 licensed public aerodromes, in the various States and Territories, and 13 flying boat bases and alighting areas. Aircraft on the Australian Register at Dec. 31, 1961, numbered 1,502. Mileage flown on regular internal air services in 1960-61 was 42,301,000 and on overseas services owned or partly-owned by Australia, 20,068,900.

CAPITAL

CANBERRA, the Capital of the Australian Commonwealth, is 203 miles by rail (153 by air) from Sydney, N.S.W. and was acquired in 1911 from the State of N.S.W. for the Australian Capital. The original area was 911 sq. miles, increased in 1917 by the acquisition of 28 sq. miles at Jervis Bay. Canberra contains the Australian (1914-18 and 1939-45) War Memorial, Parliament House, Commonwealth Offices, and the Australian National University, and is connected with the N.S.W. railway system by a line (5 miles) to Queanbeyan and by good roads to Melbourne and Sydney. Frequent air services also link it with the State capitals. The population of Canberra city area at June 30, 1961, was 56,449. Total population of the Australian Capital Territory (census, June 30, 1961) 58,828.

THE NORTHERN TERRITORY

The Northern Territory has a total area of 523,620 square miles, and lies between 129°-138° East longitude and 11°-26° South latitude. The administration was taken over by the Commonwealth on January 1, 1911, from the government of the State of South Australia. The headquarters of the Administrator are at Darwin. The Commonwealth Parliament in May, 1959, amended the Northern Territory (Administration) Act in order to enlarge the membership of the Council. The new Council consists of six official members, three non-official members and eight elected members. The official and non-official members are appointed by the Governor-General on the recommendation of the Administrator, and the elected members are elected by adult franchise. Under the amending legislation, procedures in connection with assent were changed. Ordinances passed by the Council must be presented to the Administrator who may declare his assent, withhold his assent or reserve the ordinance for the Governor-General's pleasure. The Administrator may return an ordinance to the Legislative Council with recommended amendments; but the ordinance with or without amendments must be again presented to the Administrator for assent. Certain ordinances must be reserved for the Governor-General's pleasure. The Governor-General may return an ordinance with recommended amendments and this ordinance with or without amendments shall again be presented to the Administrator, who shall reserve it for the Governor-General's pleasure. Ordinances assented to by the Administrator may be disallowed by the Governor-General, and the Governor-General may recommend to the Administrator amendments to laws of the Territory. The new Act also sets up an Administrator's Council to advise the Administrator. The Council consists of the Administrator, two official members of the Legislative Council and three other members of the Legislative Council not being official members, and of whom at least two shall be elected members.

The population of the Northern Territory (excluding full-blooded aborigines) at June 30, 1961, was estimated to be:—males 16,206, females 10,889, total 27,095. The number of full-blooded aborigines was estimated (June 30, 1961) at 17,300.

Beef cattle raising is the chief pastoral activity, and the staple industry of the Territory. On June 30, 1961, there were 1,116,827 cattle, 37,925 horses and 14,582 sheep in the Territory. Imports of livestock for the year ending June 30, 1961, were: bulls 1,314, other cattle 10,541, horses 672, sheep 3,620. 169,102 cattle were exported during the same period. The Territory is capable under improved conditions of carrying successfully and profitably a great expansion of the beef cattle industry. Hides and skins exported from the Northern Territory during the year ended June 30, 1961, were as follows:—cattle 7,398, sheep 2,207, crocodile 5,270 and buffalo 451.

Agriculture in the Northern Territory hitherto has been confined to small farm settlements in the Darwin, Katherine, Daly River, Alice Springs, Adelaide River and Pine Creek areas. Principal crops grown are peanuts, grain sorghum, vegetables and fruit (pineapples, paw-paws, bananas and citrus). However, extensive experiments are being carried out particularly in the area between Darwin and Katherine to determine what crops can be successfully grown in the Northern Territory on a commercial scale. Experimental work on pastures is also being undertaken. In recent years interest has been shown in the possibility of rice production on the sub-coastal plains areas of the Territory. Experiments are continuing.

Out of a total of about 335,117,000 acres in the Northern Territory, 376,000 acres are freehold, 147,331,000 acres are held in various forms of leasehold tenure, 31,718,000 acres are under annual licence, 59,590,000 acres are aboriginal and other reserves and 96,102,000 acres are unoccupied and unreserved.

The mineral industry has always contributed largely to the income of the Northern Territory and the value of mineral production exceeds that of the beef cattle industry. The principal minerals produced are copper, gold, uranium, manganese, mica and wolfram. In 1961, the total value of minerals produced (excluding uranium) was £4,240,469. In addition, building materials valued at £513,103 were quarried.

The chief rivers of the Territory are Victoria, Adelaide, Daly, Roper, South Alligator, McArthur, Liverpool, and Goyder. The first six are navigable, from 40 to 100 miles from their entrance, for boats drawing 4 feet. Mother-of-pearl fishing is carried on round the coast, the shell being of good quality.

The railway extends from Darwin to Larrimah (316 miles) and Alice Springs is connected by rail with Adelaide. A good bitumen road links Darwin with Alice Springs (954 miles). The Commonwealth Government is carrying out a five-year plan to maintain and improve this highway and the Barkly highway to the Queensland border. As part of a special programme for the development of North Australia, four roads in the Northern Territory are being reconstructed to a higher standard to facilitate the movement of beef cattle by large road trains.

Ψ Darwin occupies an elevated site 97 feet above sea level, overlooking Port Darwin. Alice Springs is situated in the MacDonnell Ranges. Climate of the Northern Territory ranges from dry in the south to wet-monsoonal in the north.

TERRITORY OF PAPUA AND NEW GUINEA

The Papua and New Guinea Act, 1949, which came into force on July 1, 1949, approved the placing of the Territory of New Guinea under the International Trusteeship system and provides for the Government of the Territory of Papua and the Territory of New Guinea in an Administrative Union.

The composition of the present Legislative Council, which was reconstituted late in 1960, is as follows:—

The Administrator, as President.

14 officers of the Territory Administration, known as official members, appointed by the Governor-General of Australia on the nomination of the Administrator; 12 elected members, of whom six are elected by the electors of the Territory, and six by the indigenous population. 10 persons known as appointed members, appointed by the Governor-General of Australia on the nomination of the Administrator, not less than five to be residents of the Territory of New Guinea, and not less than five to be indigenous members. In the present Council there are six indigenous appointed members.

The Administrator's Council, replacing the former Executive Council, consists of the Administrator, 3 official members of the Legislative Council, and 3 other members of the Legislative Council, none of whom may be an official member, and at least two must be elected members.

The Territory of Papua, which was placed under the authority of the Commonwealth of Australia in 1906, comprises the south eastern portion of the island of New Guinea, together with the Trobriands, Woodlark, D'Entrecasteaux and Louisiade groups of islands and is separated from Australia by Torres Straits. The Territory lies wholly within the Tropics, between the 141st and the 15th meridians of east longitude and the 5th and 12th parallels of south latitude. The total area is 90,540 sq. miles, of which 87,540 are on the mainland. The non-indigenous population of Papua and New Guinea is 25,330; the indigenous population is estimated at 1,947,031. Owing to heavy rainfall Papua is well watered in most parts and possesses a large number of streams. The best-known rivers are the Fly (730 miles long, including its tributary, the Strickland and navigable by vessels with a draught of up to 6 ft. for 580 miles) and the Purari. The climate is favourable to the cultivation of tropical products.

The German possessions on the mainland of New Guinea and certain adjacent islands were occupied by Australian forces on Sept. 12, 1914, and on Dec. 17, 1920, a mandate of the Supreme Council of the Allies entrusted the administration to the Australian Government which established its administration on May 9, 1921.

The Trust Territory includes (1) North-Eastern New Guinea, the northern section of east New Guinea between 2° 35'–8° S. lat., and 141°–148° E. long., with a total area of 69,700 sq. miles. This includes adjacent islands (Manam, Karkar, Long, Bagabag, Schouten and D'Urville or Kairiru Island). The chief centres are Lae, Bulolo, Finschhafen, Wau, Madang, Wewak, Goroka and Mount Hagen. (2) Bismarck Archipelago (19,200 sq. miles), including New Britain, New Ireland, and islands adjacent to both, and (3) Admiralty Islands (chief town, Lorengau, in Manus Island); and (4) the two northernmost Solomon Islands (4,100 sq. miles) (Bougainville and Buka with adjacent islands). The total estimated area is thus 93,000 square miles.

The principal river in N.E. New Guinea is the Sepik, 690 miles long, and navigable for 580 miles by vessels with a draught of up to 6 ft.

A road to the coast over rugged country serves the areas of the Lower Watut, Sunshine, Bulolo, Wau and Edie Creek, and a farming, timber and gold district at Wau, and another road system has been extended from Lae to Goroka and other centres in the Highlands, where a thriving coffee industry is established.

Trans-Australian Airlines and Ansett-A.N.A. operate regular air services from Australia to Papua and New Guinea. There are also fortnightly T.A.A. and K.L.M. services from Lae to Hollandia, Netherlands New Guinea, and internal services run by T.A.A., Ansett Mandated Airlines and other companies.

Overseas vessels call at various ports and a regular service is maintained with Australia.

The climate is hot and moist along the coast, with a steady drop as the higher altitudes are reached. It is suitable to the growth of all tropical products. The major output of gold is still from the Morobe District, but the yield is decreasing. In the Bulolo valley a new plywood industry has been developed with an annual output of more than £A1,250,000 in value.

Trusteeship.—The Commonwealth Government has placed the Territory of New Guinea under the Trusteeship system established under the United Nations Charter and the agreement under which Australia became the sole administering authority was approved by the General Assembly of the United Nations on Dec. 13, 1946.

SEAT OF ADMINISTRATION.—Administrative Headquarters of the combined territories of Papua and New Guinea is Ψ Port Moresby, the principal port and town of Papua. Ψ Rabaul (in New Britain), is the largest port in the combined territories and second town, while Ψ Lae (in Morobe District) is the third port and town of the combined territories, being the outlet for the Morobe plywood and gold mining district and for the Highlands region, and one of the principal air centres in the territories.

Port Moresby is distant from Sydney, N.S.W., 1,800 miles.

NORFOLK ISLAND

This island is about 930 miles from Sydney and 400 miles from New Zealand. It is about five miles in length by three in breadth, and was discovered by Capt. Cook in 1774. Its area is 8,523 acres and circumference 20 miles. The climate is mild, with a mean temperature of 68° and an annual rainfall of 53 inches. The descendants of the mutineers of the Bounty were brought here from Pitcairn Island in 1856. A modern whaling station was established on the island in 1955. The estimated population on June 30, 1961, was 1,844.

Seat of Government and Administration Offices, Kingston. Local government was established in June, 1960, by the creation of the Norfolk Island Council with power to control roads, electricity, lighterage and other municipal services.

The construction of an airfield was completed in 1943, and weekly air services are now in operation from Australia and New Zealand.

Administrator, Maj.-Gen. R. H. Wordsworth, C.B., C.B.E.

President, Norfolk Island Council, F. J. Needham.

NAURU ISLAND

This island, situated in 166° 55' East longitude and 32 minutes south of the Equator, was discovered by Capt. Fearn, R.N., in 1798, and was annexed by Germany in 1888. It surrendered to H.M.A.S. Melbourne in November, 1914, and is now administered by Britain, Australia and New Zealand. Under an international trusteeship agreement approved by the General Assembly of U.N. on Nov. 1, 1947, this agreement supercedes the League of Nations' Mandate, but Australia continues to be responsible for the administration of the Island on behalf of the grantor Governments. The island has an area of approximately 8 square miles, with a population (June 30, 1961) of 4,599, of whom 2,469 were Nauruans, 1,094 other Pacific Islanders, 712 Chinese, and 324 Europeans. Administrative and legislative powers of government are vested in the Administrator. The Judiciary consists of a District Court, a Central Court and an Appeal Court. Expenses of the Administration so far as they exceed revenue are met by the British Phosphate Commissioners under an agreement made between the three administering Governments. There are valuable deposits of phosphates on the island, which were purchased from the Pacific Phosphate Company in 1919 by the Governments of Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand for £3,500,000, and vested in the British Phosphate Commissioners.

Nauru was occupied by the Japanese from Aug. 26, 1942, to Sept. 13, 1945. Since re-occupation the buildings and plant of the Administration and the British Phosphate Commissioners have been restored. Services provided by the Administration for the Nauruan people include medical and dental services, hospitalization, maternity and infant welfare, and education services up to fourth year secondary school standard, beyond which overseas scholarships and public service cadships are available. Exports of phosphates for the 12 months ended June 30, 1961, totalled 1,338,681 tons. Administrator, R. S. Leydin, O.B.E.

COCOS (KEELING) ISLANDS

The Cocos (Keeling) Islands were declared a British possession in 1857, and in 1878 were placed under the control of the Governor of Ceylon and were later annexed to the Straits Settlements and incorporated with the Settlement (now the Colony) of Singapore. On Nov. 23, 1955, their administration was transferred to the Commonwealth of Australia. They are two separate atolls comprising some 27 small coral islands with a total area of about five square miles, situated in the Indian Ocean in latitude $12^{\circ} 5'$ South and longitude $96^{\circ} 53'$ East. The main islands are West Island (the largest, about 6 miles from north to south) on which is the aerodrome and the administrative centre, and most of the European community; Home Island, the headquarters of the Clunies Ross Estate; Direction Island, on which is situated the Cable and Wireless Station and the Department of Civil Aviation's marine base; and Horsburgh. North Keeling Island, which forms part of the Territory, lies about 15 miles to the north of the group and has no inhabitants. The climate is equable and pleasant, being usually under the influence of the south-east trade winds for about three-quarters of the year. The population (June 30, 1961) was 601.

CHRISTMAS ISLAND

Until the end of 1957 a part of the Colony of Singapore, Christmas Island was administered as a separate colony until October 1, 1958, when it became Australian territory by Order in Council. It is situated in the Indian Ocean about 190 miles S. of Java Head and 529 miles E. of the Cocos (Keeling) Islds. Area, 64 sq. miles. Population (June 30, 1961), 3,099. The island is densely wooded and contains extensive deposits of phosphate of lime.

THE ANTARCTIC CONTINENT

The area of the Antarctic Continent is estimated at approximately 5 million square miles. The greater part of the coastline has been charted with varying degrees of accuracy, but considerable portions of the interior have not been visited, or at best have been seen only from the air.

The question of territorial rights is complicated and there is no general international agreement thereon. Argentina has 3 Antarctic bases in the zone claimed as "Argentine Territory," one being on Deception Island in the South Shetlands, which is part of the British Falkland Islands; another in Scotia Bay, and a third on Gamma Island, in the Melchior Archipelago.

The Australian Antarctic Territory was established by an Order in Council, dated February 7, 1933, and the Australian Antarctic Territory Acceptance Act of June 13, 1933, which placed under the government of the Commonwealth of Australia all the islands and territories, other than Adélie Land, which are situated south of the latitude 60° S. and lying between the 160th and 45th meridians of East longitude.

The exception of Adélie Land from the Order in Council is due to French claims based on rights of discovery and occupation.

The area administered by the Commonwealth of Australia is estimated at 2,472,000 square miles. It adjoins that belonging to New Zealand. There is an Australian research station on Macquarie Island (north of the Antarctic Convergence and sub-Antarctic), which is about 1,000 miles south-east of Hobart and has been a dependency of Tasmania since the nineteenth century.

Heard Island, about 2,500 miles south-west of Fremantle, was transferred from United Kingdom to Australian control on December 26, 1947.

In February, 1954, a base known as Mawson, was established on the coast of the Antarctic continent at lat. $67^{\circ} 36'$ S. and long. $62^{\circ} 53'$ E. Meteorological and other research is being conducted at this station. A second base, named Davis, was established in Jan. 1957 at $68^{\circ} 35'$ S., $77^{\circ} 59'$ E., and in February, 1959, Australia took over the United States base at Wilkes (lat. $66^{\circ} 15'$ S., long. $110^{\circ} 33'$ E.).

For other British dependencies in the Antarctic see p. 737.

STATES OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA

NEW SOUTH WALES

The State of New South Wales is situated almost entirely between the 29th and 36th parallels of S. lat. and 141st and 154th meridians of E. long., and comprises an area of 309,433 square miles (exclusive of 939 square miles of Australian Commonwealth Territory which lies within its borders).

POPULATION.—The estimated population at December 31, 1961, was: Males, 1,986,467; Females, 1,967,169. Total, 3,953,636.

Births, Deaths and Marriages.

Year	Births	Deaths	Marriages
1958	80,045	32,350	28,554
1959	80,866	35,249	28,201
1960	81,983	35,030	29,328
1961	86,392	35,048	29,773

Vital Statistics.—Annual rate per 1,000 of mean population in 1961:—Births, 22.06; Deaths, 8.95; Marriages, 7.60. Deaths under 1 year per 1,000 live births, 20.84.

Religions.

The members of the Church of England in New South Wales, according to the Census of 1954, number 1,466,571, Roman Catholic 844,453, Presbyterian 302,984, Methodist 275,188, Congregational 21,280, Baptist 40,283, Greek Orthodox 29,133, Lutheran 17,033, Salvation Army 12,825, and Hebrew 19,583. The religion of 301,203 persons was not stated in the census schedules.

PHYSIOGRAPHY.

Natural features divide the State into four strips of territory extending from north to south, viz., the Coastal Divisions; the Tablelands, which form the Great Dividing Range between the coastal districts and the plains; the Western Slopes of the Dividing Range; and the Western Plains. The highest points are Mount Kosciusko, 7,328 feet, and Townsend, 7,266 feet. The coastal district is well watered by numerous rivers flowing from the ranges into fertile flats which form their lower basins. The western portion of the country is watered by the rivers of the Murray-Darling system and immense reservoirs have been constructed for irrigation purposes, and there are many artesian bores. The Darling, 1,702 miles, and the Murrumbidgee, 981 miles, are both tributaries of the Murray, part of which forms the boundary between the States of New South Wales and Victoria. Other inland rivers are: Lachlan, Bogan, Macquarie, Castlereagh, Namoi and Gwydir.

Climate.—New South Wales is situated entirely in the Temperate Zone. The climate is equable and very healthy. At the capital (Sydney) the average mean shade temperature is 63.7° . The mean temperature in the shade for the north coast is 66° to 69° , south coast 60° to 63° , northern tableland 56° to 60° , southern tableland 44° to 57° ; in the north-western slope, the mean annual temperature ranges from 62° to 68° ; in the central western slope 57° to 64° , south western slope 60° to 62° , and in the Western Plains and Riverina Division from 61° to 69° .

GOVERNMENT.

New South Wales was first colonized as a British possession in 1788, and after progressive settlement a partly elective legislature was established in 1843. In 1855 Responsible Government was granted, the present Constitution being founded on the Constitution Act of 1902. New South Wales federated with the other States of Australia in 1901. The executive authority of the State is vested in a Governor (appointed by the Crown), assisted by a Council of Ministers.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The Legislature consists of the Sovereign and the two Houses of Parliament (the Legislative Council and the Legislative Assembly). The Legislative Council consists of 60 members, elected jointly by both Houses of Parliament. Membership is for 12 years, 15 members retiring in rotation triennially. Members receive an annual allowance of £500 and three guineas a day attendance allowance for members living outside the metropolitan area. The Legislative Assembly consists of 94 members. Each member of the Legislative Assembly receives £2,350 per annum, plus an electoral allowance (£650 to £950, according to location of electorate). The Women's Legal Status Act, 1918, removed disqualification regarding the election of women to be members of the Legislative Assembly. A provident fund for members of the Legislative Assembly was established in 1946; a pension is payable to those who on ceasing to be members have served in three parliaments. Natural-born or naturalized persons 21 years of age, who have resided 6 months in the Commonwealth, 3 months in the State and 1 month in the electoral district are entitled to the franchise. Voting is compulsory. At the State General Elections in March, 1962, there were 1,060,658 men and 1,113,110 women electors, making a total of 2,173,768 enrolled; in contested electorates 94 per cent. of the eligible electors voted.

PRODUCTION AND INDUSTRY.

Value of Production.—In 1960-61 the net value of production of the primary and manufacturing industries was £1,371,087,000—primary £406,131,000 and manufacturing £964,956,000. The values for the principal primary industries were: pastoral £159,960,000, agricultural £98,548,000, dairying and farmyard, £63,911,000 and mining and quarrying, £62,975,000.

Agriculture.—During the year to Mar. 31, 1961, 7,672,588 acres were under cultivation.

The total area under wheat was 4,276,599 acres, of which 4,076,110 acres were harvested for grain, and 101,002 acres for hay. The production of wheat was 84,656,700 bushels of grain and 153,654 tons of hay. Other important crops in 1960-61 were 2,227,008 bushels of maize, 21,466,032 bushels of oats, 6,001,067 bushels of rice, besides other kinds of grain, 85,182 tons of potatoes, and 31,590 cwt. of dried leaf tobacco. Sugar-cane to the extent of 480,147 tons was crushed; while 4,188,297 bushels of bananas were obtained; almost every kind of fruit and vegetable is grown. There were 16,988 acres of vineyards, of which 15,557 acres were bearing.

Land Tenure.—The total extent of land alienated and in process of alienation from the Crown on June 30, 1961, was 66,550,748 acres, while the area of land under lease, &c., from the Crown was 113,057,383 acres, and the balance 18,428,989 acres, consisted of reserve and other lands neither alienated nor leased; the total area of the State, exclusive of the Australian Capital Territory, is 198,037,120 acres.

Pastoral, &c.—The country is admirably adapted for sheep farming, the principal breed of sheep being the celebrated merino, which was introduced in 1797. On Mar. 31, 1961, there were 192,254 horses, 4,241,860 cattle, 68,087,000 sheep and lambs, 455,345 pigs. In 1960-61, 664,276,000 lb. (stated as in the grease) of wool were produced, 79,251,935 lb. of butter, 11,862,788 lb. of cheese, and 25,375,120 lb. of bacon and ham.

Forests.—The estimated forest area is 19,107,000 acres, of which State forests cover 6,582,000 acres and 1,406,000 have been set aside as timber reserves.

Mining Industry.—The principal minerals are coal, silver, lead, zinc, zircon and rutile. The total value of minerals won in 1961 was £78,500,000; the value of output of the coal-mining industry was £44,700,000, and of the silver-lead-zinc industry, £17,700,000. The mining industry gave employment to 22,451 miners during 1960. In 1961, 19,021,000 tons of coal were produced.

Factories.—In 1960-61 there were 23,585 factories. The average number of persons employed during the year was 472,061. The value of production, i.e. value added to raw materials, was £964,956,000. Large iron and steel works with subsidiary factories are in operation at Newcastle and Port Kembla in proximity to the coalfields. The products include iron and steel of various grades, pipes, boilers, steel wire and wire netting, copper wire, copper and brass cables and tin-plate. The production (1960-61) of pig-iron was 2,754,000 tons, and of steel ingots 3,750,000 tons.

1961	479,484,226	282,124,534

The chief exports in 1960-61 were foodstuffs, wool, hides and skins, minerals, metals, machinery, leather, and drugs and chemicals. Chief imports were tea, tobacco, yarns, textiles and apparel, petrol, metals, motor vehicles, aircraft and parts, machinery, timber, paper, rubber, drugs and chemicals, and plastic materials.

TRANSPORT AND COMMUNICATIONS.

Shipping.—Excluding coastal trade, 3,822 vessels entered ports of N.S.W. during the year ended June 30, 1961, the net tonnage being 15,434,000. The shipping entries at Sydney, including coastal, were 4,452 vessels of 12,648,000 net tonnage.

Roads and Bridges.—There are 130,000 miles of roads and streets in New South Wales, including 38,000 miles of natural surface and cleared only. The total expenditure by the Government and the local councils on roads, bridges, &c., in 1959-60 was £47,059,000. The construction of an arch bridge of Sydney Harbour was completed and the bridge opened for traffic in March, 1932. This bridge carries eight lanes of roadway with a total width of 84 ft., two footways each 10 ft. wide, and two lines of railway. At mean high water there is a headway of 172½ ft.

Motor Vehicles.—At March 31, 1962, there were 1,040,995 registered motor vehicles (cars, 690,490).

Railways.—The railways of New South Wales are controlled by the State, which also operates omnibus services. Tramway services ceased in February, 1961. At June 30, 1961, the mileage of the State railways open for traffic was 6,062, earnings in the year 1960-61 being £89,751,000.

Aviation.—The principal overseas routes from Sydney are to the United Kingdom, New Zealand, U.S.A. and South Africa. Aircraft on an Australian register operating regular overseas services with terminals in New South Wales flew 4,584,000 miles and performed 200,682,000 paying passenger miles, 6,952,000 freight ton miles and 2,692,000 mail ton miles in 1960-61.

Posts, Telegraphs and Telephones.—The postal telegraphic, telephonic and radio services are administered by the Commonwealth Government. At June 30, 1961, there were 2,515 post offices in New South Wales. The postal matter carried during 1960-61 included 589,838,000 letters and registered articles and 118,988,000 newspapers and parcels posted for delivery in Australia. The overseas mails consisted of 30,457,000 letters and 10,767,000 newspapers and parcels despatched, 52,836,000 letters and 31,264,000 newspapers and parcels received. During the year 6,996,000 telegrams were despatched to places within Australia and 706,000 cablegrams were despatched and 753,000 received. Transit time between Sydney and London is approximately 2½ days for airborne mail and between 4 and 6 weeks for seaborne mail. The telephone services in operation numbered 631,296.

Radio and Television.—In June, 1961, there were 19 National Broadcasting Stations in New South Wales and 38 commercial stations operating under licence. The number of broadcast listeners' licences was 825,528. Regular transmission of television programmes in New South Wales began in September, 1956. At June 30, 1961, there were 3 television stations (one national, two commercial) in operation and the number of viewers' annual licences was 486,516.

TOWNS.

Ψ SYDNEY, the chief city and capital, stands on the shores of Port Jackson, with a water frontage of 15½ miles; the depth of water at the Heads is not less than 80 feet, and at the wharves up to 40 ft. There are extensive facilities for handling cargo, and for storing and loading grain in bulk or bags; also for replenishing coal and oil bunkers. For 20 miles Sydney Harbour extends inland, the finest harbour in the world, and is surrounded by scenery of surpassing beauty. The principal wharves are situated in close proximity to the business centre of the city. The total area of water in the harbour is 13,600 acres, or about 2½ square miles, of which approximately one-half has a depth of not less than 30 ft.; the rise and fall of the tide is from 3 to 6 ft. The metropolis contains approximately 671 square miles, with a population of 2,183,388 (estimated, June 30, 1961).

The parks in or adjacent to the metropolitan area include the National Park which measures 37,000 acres, Kuring-gai Chase 38,263 acres, Kurnell 248 acres, Cutennial Park 474 acres, and Parramatta Park 252 acres.

Other cities and towns over 12,000 are Ψ Newcastle (urban area) 208,630; Wollongong (Greater) 131,756; Broken Hill 31,267; Blue Mountains 28,119; Maitland 27,353; Goulburn 20,544; Wagga Wagga 22,092; Penrith 31,969; Lismore 18,925; Lithgow 14,229; Albury 18,621; Orange 18,977; Cessnock (Greater) 35,281; Tamworth 18,984;

LORD HOWE ISLAND (436 miles north-east of Sydney). Lat. 31° 33' 4" S., Long. 159° 4' 26" E. Area 3,200 acres. Pop. June 30, 1961, 249. The island is of volcanic origin and Mount Gower reaches an altitude of 2,840 ft. The affairs of the Island and the supervision of the Kentia palm seed industry are controlled by an elected Island Committee and a Board at Sydney. Office, Chief Secretary's Department, Sydney.

QUEENSLAND

This State, situated in lat. 10° 40'–29° S. and long. 138°–153° 30' E., comprises the whole north-eastern portion of the Australian continent.

Queensland possesses an area of 667,000 square miles (i.e., equal to more than 5½ times the area of the British Isles).

POPULATION.—At June 30, 1961, the population numbered 1,518,828 persons (774,579 males and 744,249 females).

The total number of aborigines (estimated June 30, 1961) was 10,325 full blood and 7,944 half-caste, exclusive of Torres Strait Islanders.

Religion.

At the Census of 1954 there were 454,095 Church of England, 316,962 Roman Catholics, 151,586 Presbyterians, 146,456 Methodists, 28,612 Lutherans, 20,113 Baptists, 9,086 Congregationalists, 56,775 other Christians, and 1,340 Hebrews.

PHYSIOGRAPHY.

The Great Dividing Range on the eastern coast of the continent produces a similar formation to that of New South Wales, the eastern side having a narrow slope to the coast and the western a long and gradual slope to the central plains, where the Selwyn and Kirby Ranges divide the land into a northern and southern watershed. The Brisbane, Burnett, Fitzroy, and Burdekin rise in the eastern ranges and flow into the Pacific, the Flinders, Mitchell, and Leichhardt into the Gulf of Carpentaria, and the Barcoo and Warrego rise in the central ranges and flow southwards.

Climate.—At Brisbane the mean temperature for 1961 was 68.5°, the maximum and minimum shade temperatures being 93.0° and 38.9°; mean barometer, 30.04 inches. The coastal regions are warm and moist, but the rainfall decreases away from the coast and is scanty in the far west. The rainfall in Brisbane during 1961 was 42.3 inches, compared with average rainfall of 40.1 inches.

GOVERNMENT.

Queensland was constituted a separate colony with Responsible Government in 1859, having previously formed part of New South Wales. The executive authority is vested in a Governor (appointed by the Crown), aided by an Executive Council of 11 members.

Banking.—Advances made by Trading Banks (including the Commonwealth Trading Bank of Australia) at June 30, 1961, totalled £153,850,000. The deposits at the same date amounted to £238,336,000. Depositors' balances in Queensland savings banks at June 30, 1961, £187,131,000, averaged £123 for each inhabitant. There were 1,187,000 operative accounts.

PRODUCTION AND INDUSTRY.

The gross value of primary production in 1960-61 was £308,261,000 (agriculture £101,721,000, dairying £32,177,000, pastoral £114,007,000, poultry and bee-keeping £4,201,000, mining £44,560,000, forestry, £9,670,000, fisheries £1,588,000, hunting and trapping £337,000), and net value of manufacturing £170,627,000.

Agriculture and Live Stock.—Of the total area of 426,880,000 acres the Government has parted with the fee simple of 26,031,735 acres, and 2,084,354 acres more were in process of alienation at Dec. 31, 1961.

The total area under crop in 1960-61 was 3,046,882 acres. The most important crop was sugar-cane, under which there were 449,524 acres, producing 1,319,633 tons of raw sugar, 692,596 acres were under wheat (yielding 10,998,615 bushels), 132,382 under maize (3,846,567 bushels), and 219,407 under barley (4,392,474 bushels). English and sweet potatoes are cultivated, as also are sorghum, tomatoes, peanuts, cotton, tobacco, linseed, sunflower seed, arrowroot, various citrus fruits, pineapples, bananas, grapes, mangoes, custard apples, papaws, apples, peaches, plums, and other English fruits. The live stock on March 31, 1961, included 7,004,051 cattle, 1,213,391 being dairy cattle, 22,134,935 sheep, 224,006 horses, and 448,279 pigs.

Forestry.—There are about 17,920,000 acres of commercial timberland in Queensland, of which there have been reserved for forestry purposes 8,189,000 acres.

Minerals.—There are rich deposits of bauxite, copper, lead, silver, uranium and zinc, and deposits of gold, tin, limestone, ironstone, wolfram and mineral sands. Coal is mined in the Ipswich (near Brisbane) and some northern districts, and there is extensive production by open-cut method in Central Queensland. The output in 1960 included gold, £1,189,000; coal, £8,003,000; copper, £26,003,000; tin, £788,000; silver, £1,954,000; lead, £5,101,000; zinc, £2,707,000; uranium, £6,510,000.

Communications.—The State is served by 6,321 miles of railways, practically all 3 ft. 6 in. in gauge. During 1960-61, 28,876,000 passengers and 8,053,000 tons of goods and live stock were carried. At June 30, 1961, there were 71,424 miles of formed roads and 49,972 miles of unconstructed roads in the State, and 421,736 motor vehicles were on the register.

Aviation.—Regular services operate between Brisbane, the main Queensland coastal and inland towns and the southern capitals, connecting at Sydney with services to oversea countries. Brisbane is also a port of call on a service to and from London.

Radio and Television.—On June 30, 1961, 15 national and 21 commercial stations were broadcasting in Queensland, and 1 national and 2 commercial television stations operated in Brisbane.

The chief overseas exports are wool, meat, sugar, minerals and butter.

TOWNS.

CAPITAL. Ψ BRISBANE, is situated on the Brisbane River, which is navigable by large vessels to the city, over 10 miles from Moreton Bay. The City Hall is a notable building, and there are fine Government and private buildings. The population of the Metropolitan Area at the 1961 census was 621,550. Of the 474 square miles in the Metropolitan Area, 385 square miles are under the control of the City Council presided over by a Lord Mayor.

Ψ The main ports in their order along the coast are Brisbane, Maryborough (19,126), Bundaberg (22,799), Gladstone (7,181), Rockhampton (14,128), Mackay (21,411), Bowen (5,160), Townsville (51,143), Lucinda Point, Mourilyan, Cairns (25,204) and Thursday Island.

Other towns are Ipswich (48,679), Gold Coast (33,716), Gympie (11,094), Nambour (5,336) and Kingaroy (4,914) in the south-east; Toowoomba (50,134), Warwick (9,843) and Dalby (7,400) on the Darling Downs; Roma (5,571) and Charleville (5,154) in the south-west; Mt. Morgan (4,000), In Central Queensland; Ayr (8,010), Innisfail (6,917), Charters Towers (7,633) and Ingham (4,790) in the north-east; and Mount Isa (13,358) in the north-west.

Transmission of mails from London to Brisbane, by air, 2 days; by sea (approximate), 30 days.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA

The State of South Australia is situated between 26° and 38° S. lat. and 129° and 141° E. long., the total area being 380,070 sq. miles POPULATION.—At the Census of June 30, 1961, the population numbered 969,340 (490,225 males and 479,113 females), excluding full-blooded aboriginals, estimated at fewer than 3,000.

Increase of the People.

Year	Births	Deaths	Marriages
1958	20,047	7,743	6,505
1959	20,372	7,043	6,614
1960	20,565	7,804	6,607
1961	22,399	7,815	6,804

Religion.

Religion is free and receives no State aid. At the Census, 1961, the persons belonging to the principal religious denominations were as follows: Church of England, 255,054; Methodists, 216,770; Congregationalists, 17,867; Baptists, 21,032; Lutherans, 53,947; Roman Catholics, 183,053; Presbyterians, 37,911; and Churches of Christ, 23,905.

PHYSIOGRAPHY.

The most important physical features of South Australia are broad plains, divided longitudinally by four great secondary features, which form barriers to east-west movement, and which have thus largely determined the direction of roads and railways, the sites of towns and villages and the manner of distribution of the population. These four barriers are Spencer Gulf, St. Vincent Gulf, the Mt. Lofty-Flinders Ranges and the River Murray. The long, deeply-indented coastline, which provides a few major, and a multitude of lesser harbours, trends generally south-eastward. Pleasant weather conditions and good rainfall are experienced in most coastal areas.

The north-western portion of the State is mostly desert, while north of latitude 32°S. the country is unpromising by comparison with the fertile land which surrounds the hill country of the east. The Murray, which flows for some 400 miles through the south-eastern corner, is the only river of importance.

The lack of rivers and fresh-water lakes in the settled areas has necessitated the building of a number of reservoirs, which have been supplemented since 1941 by the construction of pipelines from the River Murray.

Climate.—The mean annual temperature at Adelaide is 63°, the winter temperature (July-August) averaging 54°, and the summer (November-March) 71°. During the summer months the maximum temperature at times exceeds 100°, but owing to the purity and dryness of the atmosphere the inconvenience is comparatively slight. The average annual rainfall at Adelaide, derived from over 100 years' record is 21 inches. This total is rather higher than the approximate average annual rainfall over the whole of the agricultural areas. In the Mount Lofty Ranges the mean yearly rainfall in places exceeds 40 inches, while in Adelaide the precipitation has fallen as low as 11.32 inches.

GOVERNMENT.

South Australia was proclaimed a British Province in 1836, and in 1851 a partially elective legislature was established. The present Constitution rests upon a Law of Oct. 24, 1856, the executive authority being vested in a Governor appointed by the Crown, aided by a Council of 3 Ministers.

EDUCATION.

Public Education (Primary, Secondary and Technical) is provided by the State, and controlled by a responsible Minister; it is secular, compulsory, and free. In 1960 there were 680 State schools, with 191,380 scholars; State expenditure in 1960-61 was £17,235,304, including grants to University, Libraries, &c. The Government grants Exhibitions and Scholarships, carrying the holders to higher schools and the University. Private schools number 171 with 41,418 scholars. There is an endowed University at Adelaide, founded in 1874, with 3,987 full-time students in 1962. A State Institute of Technology has also been established, and there are technical schools at 16 country centres and also special trade schools for apprentices and domestic art centres. The public library, museum, art gallery and local institutes are supported or assisted by the State.

STATE FINANCE.

(For years ended June 30)

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Debt
	£A	£A	£A
1958	70,642,000	71,042,000	296,814,000
1959	72,680,000	73,707,000	317,702,000
1960	80,277,000	80,589,000	339,105,000
1961	86,279,000	85,091,000	361,019,000

Banking.—There are 9 trading banks in Adelaide, including the Commonwealth Government Bank and the State Bank of South Australia, with about 650 branches and agencies, having total average deposits of £136,270,000 in December quarter, 1961. The five savings banks, with about 1,700 branches and agencies, had deposits of £170,526,000 at Dec. 31, 1961.

PRODUCTION AND INDUSTRY

The gross value of primary production in 1960-1961 was: crops £78,910,000, pastoral £47,226,000, dairying £15,046,000, fisheries, game and poultry, and forestry £9,735,000.

Land Tenure.—Of the total area of the State (243,000,000 acres), 16,200,000 acres have been sold or are in the process of alienation by the Crown under systems of deferred payment; 123,200,000 acres are held under pastoral leases and 23,600,000 under other miscellaneous leases.

Agriculture.—The total area cultivated is 10,609,000 acres—under wheat, 1960-61, 1,969,000 acres, hay 393,000, oats 512,000, barley 1,556,000. Wheat harvest 1960-61, 46,396,000 bushels; barley, 42,233,000 bushels. Oranges, lemons, apples, apricots, peaches, and all stone fruits and olives are successfully grown, and fruit drying is profitable. In 1960-61, there were 57,000 acres of vines with a production of 25,061,000 gallons of wine, 91,000 cwt. of dried currants and 135,000 cwt. of sultanas and raisins. Considerable quantities of fruits (fresh and dried), wine and brandy, are annually sent to overseas countries, principally the United Kingdom, and to other Australian States. Some areas of the State, particularly near Adelaide, are also very suitable for growing all kinds of root crops and vegetables.

Live Stock (March 31, 1961).—There were 14,952,000 sheep, 561,000 cattle, 27,000 horses, 144,000 pigs. Wool production (1960-61), 177,413,000 lb.

Minerals.—Iron, pyrite, gypsum, salt, coal, limestone, clay, &c., are found. The total mineral output was valued at £A25,435,000 in 1960, including iron ore valued by the South Australian Director of Mines at £17,887,970.

Manufactures.—In 1960-61 there were 5,042 factories, employing 99,955 hands, the gross value of the output being £A03,717,000. Plant machinery, land and buildings were valued at £200,829,000.

Transport and Communications.—There were (1961) 3,801 miles of railway in South Australia, 138 miles of tram and bus routes and 56,000 miles of roads. The railway mileage includes the South Australian part of the Transcontinental Railway from Port Pirie (South Australia) to Kalgoorlie (Western Australia) which forms a link in the system from Brisbane to Fremantle; and also part of the Commonwealth line from Port Augusta to the Northern Territory. There are a number of excellent harbours, of which Port Adelaide is the most important. In 1960-61, 1,950 vessels with net tonnage of 7,613,096 entered South Australian ports direct from overseas or interstate. Nationality of these vessels was—Australia 837, United Kingdom, 492, other Commonwealth 119 and foreign 502. There are 913 post offices in the State.

Civil Aviation.—There are 28 Government or licensed aerodromes, and 452,358 passengers and 9,297 tons of freight were carried in 1960-61.

Motor Vehicles.—The registrations in December, 1961, were 319,422, equal to 1 per 3.1 persons.

Wireless and Television (1961)—Broadcasting stations 16; listeners' licences 246,036. Television stations 3; viewers' licences 124,808.

TASMANIA

Tasmania is an island in the South Pacific Ocean off the southern extremity of Australia, from which it is separated by Bass Strait, about 140 miles wide, in which are situated the Furneaux Group and King Island, included within the State. It lies between 40° 33'–43° 39' S. lat. and 144° 39'–148° 23' E. long., and contains an area of 26,215 square miles.

POPULATION.—At the census of June 30, 1961, the estimated population numbered 350,340 (177,622 males and 172,710 females).

Year	Births	Deaths	Marriages
1958	8,568	2,708	2,475
1959	8,625	2,780	2,567
1960	8,853	2,670	2,713
1961	8,982	2,789	2,677

The birth rate in 1961 was 25.40, death rate 7.89, marriage rate 7.57 per 1,000. Infant mortality (1961) 16.8 per 1,000 births.

Religion.

In 1961 there were 159,101 members of the Church of England, 63,993 Roman Catholics, 42,236 Methodists, 16,757 Presbyterians, 4,193 Congregationalists and Independents, and 7,227 Baptists.

PHYSIOGRAPHY.

The surface of the country is generally hilly and timbered, with mountains from 1,500 to 5,000 ft. in height, and expanses of level, open plains. There are numerous streams, the Derwent and the Tamar being the largest. The climate is fine and salubrious, and well suited to European constitutions; the hot winds of Australia do not reach the island. At Hobart the mean annual temperature averages 53.9°, the mean temperature for Dec., Jan., and Feb. being 60.2°, and that of June, July and Aug. 47.1°. The western side of the island is very wet, the eastern side having a rainfall similar to that of eastern England; the average rainfall varies from 20 inches to 100 inches in different parts.

GOVERNMENT.

The island was first settled by the British in 1803 as an appendage to New South Wales, from which it was separated in 1825. In 1851 a partly elective legislature was inaugurated, and in 1856 Responsible Government was established. In 1901 Tasmania became a State of the Australian Commonwealth. The State executive authority is vested in a Governor (appointed by the Crown), aided by an Executive Council of Ministers responsible to the Legislature.

GOVERNOR.

Governor of Tasmania, His Excellency The Lord Rowallan, K.T., K.B.E., M.C., apptd. May 29, 1959. A.D.C., Capt. R. N. R. Cross.

THE MINISTRY.

Premier, Treasurer and Minister for Mines, Hon. E. E. Reece.

Deputy Premier and Attorney-General, Hon. R. F. Fagan.

Lands and Works, Hon. D. A. Cashion.

Chief Secretary, Hon. J. B. Connolly.

Agriculture, Hon. A. C. Atkins.

Education, Hon. W. A. Neilson.

Housing, Hon. S. V. Ward.

Health, Hon. W. D. McNeil.

AGENT-GENERAL IN LONDON.

Agent-General for Tasmania, Hon. A. J. White. Address, 457 Strand, Charing Cross, W.C.2.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Parliament consists of two Houses, a Legislative Council of 19 members, elected for six years (3 retiring annually, in rotation, except in every sixth year, when four retire) and a House of Assembly of 35 members, elected by proportional representation for five years, the electors for the latter being all adult Tasmanians who have resided continuously in the State for 6 months; the electorate for the Council is smaller, having a property or educational qualification for both sexes, but war service is a qualification for enrolment. The General Election for the House of Assembly in May, 1959, resulted in the return of 17 Labour, 16 Liberal and 2 Independent members.

President of the Legislative Council, Hon. Sir Henry Baker, K.C.M.G., D.S.O.

Clerk of the Council, E. C. Briggs.

Speaker of the House of Assembly, Hon. C. B. Aylett.

Clerk of the House, C. K. Murphy, C.B.E.

THE JUDICATURE.

The Supreme Court of Tasmania, with civil, criminal, ecclesiastical, admiralty and matrimonial jurisdiction, was established by Royal Charter on October 13, 1823.

Chief Justice, Hon. Sir Stanley Burbury, K.B.E.

Puisne Judges, Hon. M. G. Gibson; Hon. M. P. Crisp; Hon. G. H. Crawford; Hon. W. E. Cox.

Local Courts established under the Local Courts Acts, 1896, are held before Commissioners who are legal practitioners, with a jurisdiction up to £250. Courts of General Sessions, constituted by a chairman who is a Justice of the Peace and at least one other Justice, are established in the municipalities for the recovery of debts and demands not exceeding £50. Courts of Petty Sessions are established under the Justices Act, 1959, constituted by Police Magistrates sitting alone, or any two or more justices. A single justice may hear and determine certain matters.

EDUCATION.

State schools are divided into Primary, Area, High and Technical High Schools, with a net enrolment of 66,850 scholars in 1960. There were 60 private schools with an enrolment of 12,716. The University of Tasmania at Hobart, established 1890, had 789 full-time students in 1962; there are technical schools at Hobart, Launceston, Burnie, Devonport, Queenstown, Rosebery, Ulverston, Smithton and Zeehan.

FINANCE.

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Debt
	£A	£A	£A
1958-59	21,851,053	22,759,190	153,824,754
1959-60	24,296,249	25,328,254	165,522,348
1960-61	26,883,193	27,083,666	177,279,340

Banking.—The average weekly deposits of cheque-paying banks during December, 1961 were £39,266,000; the savings bank deposits, December 31, 1961, were £49,114,000 or £134 17s. 8d. per head of population.

PRODUCTION AND INDUSTRY.

The net value of production in 1960-61 was £98,328,000—agriculture and pastoral £17,342,000, mines and quarries £5,571,000, other primary industries £13,969,000 and manufactures £61,446,000.

Agriculture and Live Stock.—Of the total area of 16,778,000 acres there were, in 1960-61, 379,000 acres under crops. The principal crops are potatoes, apples and other fruit, hay, hops, oats, peas, turnips, barley and wheat. The live stock included (March 31, 1961) 394,000 cattle, 3,439,000 sheep, 71,000 pigs and 9,000 horses. The wool production (1960-61) was 31,834,000 lb.

Electrical Energy.—The Hydro-Electric Commission of Tasmania has effected important water-power developments at the Great Lake (Waddamana and Shannon), Lake St. Clair—River Derwent (Tarraleah and Butler's Gorge), Nive River (Tungatinah and Wayatinah) and at Trevallyn. In June, 1962, the total installed capacity of the 11 hydro-electric power stations was: turbines, 867,700 h.p.; generators, 617,050 K.W. The network extends to practically all parts of the State and the advantages of cheap electric power exercise continued attraction for new establishment of manufacturing industries.

Forestry.—State forest areas in 1960-61; 2,126,744 acres. The quantity of timber (excluding firewood) of various species cut on Crown Land forests in 1960-61 was 312,186,000 super feet, including 77,090,000 super feet for wood-pulp.

Minerals.—The chief ores mined are those containing copper, zinc, tin, silver and lead. The value of output of all mines and quarries in 1960 was £8,162,000.

Manufactures.—The chief manufactures for export are: refined metals, preserved fruit and vegetables, butter, woollen manufactures, paper, confectionery and sawn timber; the net value of production in 1960-61 was £61,446,000, the value of land, buildings, plant and machinery for the 1,766 establishments being £129,865,000.

CAPITAL. Ψ HOBART, which was founded in 1804. Population (June 30, 1961) (with suburbs) 115,932.

Other towns (with population at June 30, 1961) are Ψ Launceston and suburbs (pop. 56,721), Ψ Devonport (13,068), Burnie (14,201), Ulverstone (5,962), New Norfolk (5,445) and Queenstown (4,601).

Transmission of mails, 34 days by sea; 5 days by air.

VICTORIA

The State of Victoria comprises the south-east corner of Australia, at that part where its mainland territory projects farthest into the southern latitudes; it lies between the 34th and 39th parallels of South latitude, and the 141st and 150th meridians of East longitude. Its extreme length from east to west is about 493 miles, its greatest breadth is about 290 miles, and its extent of coast-line is about 980 geographical miles, including the length around Port Phillip Bay, Western Port and Corner Inlet, the entire area being 87,884 square miles.

Population.—The population at Dec. 31, 1961 was 2,949,848 (1,482,449 males and 1,467,399 females).

Increase of the People.

Year	Births	Deaths	Marriages
1958	61,269	23,625	20,649
1959	62,245	25,078	20,456
1960	64,025	24,547	20,617
1961	65,886	24,500	21,264

Vital Statistics.—Annual rate per 1,000 of population in 1961:—births, 22.57; Deaths, 8.39; Marriages, 7.28. Deaths under 1 year per 1,000 births, 17.80.

Religion.

Members of the Church of England at the date of the census in 1954 numbered 832,473, Roman Catholics 564,654, Presbyterians 326,422, Methodists 252,802, Baptists 34,316, Church of Christ 33,608 and Hebrew 24,016. The number of persons who did not state their religion was 243,555.

PHYSIOGRAPHY.

The Australian Alps and the Great Dividing Range pass through the centre of the State, and divide it into a northern and southern watershed, the latter sloping down to the ocean and containing, especially in the south-east, well-wooded valleys. The length of the Murray River, which forms part of the northern boundary of Victoria, is about 1,200 miles along the Victorian bank. Melbourne, the capital city, stands upon the Yarra-Yarra, which rises in the southern slopes of the Dividing Range.

Climate.—The climate of Victoria is characterized by warm summers, rather cold winters, and rain in all months with a maximum in winter or spring. Prevailing winds are southerly from November to February inclusive, with a moderate percentage of northerlies often associated with high temperatures. Northerly or westerly winds predominate from March to October inclusive. Rain on an average falls in Melbourne on 143 days per year, the annual average being 25.91 inches.

GOVERNMENT.

Victoria was originally known as the Port Phillip District of New South Wales, and was created a separate colony in 1851, with a partially elective legislature. In 1855 Responsible Government was conferred. The executive authority is vested in a Governor, appointed by the Crown, aided by an Executive Council of Ministers.

Governor of the State of Victoria, His Excellency General Sir Dallas Brooks, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., K.C.V.O., D.S.O., born Aug. 22, 1896, appointed 1949, term extended for 3 years from Oct. 19, 1954 and for further 5 years from Oct. 1957... £7,500

EDUCATION.

Primary Education is compulsory, secular and free between the ages of 6 and 14. At December 31, 1960, there were 1,929 Primary Schools (including one Correspondence School) attended by 293,453 pupils; 279 Secondary Schools (including one Correspondence School) with an enrolment of 93,259; and 70 Technical Schools (64 of which possess a junior section with 34,130 pupils in attendance) with a roll call of 53,916 senior students.

During 1960, 160,575 pupils attended 551 independent schools, 439 of which are Roman Catholic, as the Roman Catholic Church in the State maintains an independent scholastic organization.

There are two State-aided Universities. Melbourne University has seven affiliated colleges—Trinity and Janet Clarke Hall (Anglican), Ormond (Presbyterian), Queen's (Methodist), Newman (Roman Catholic), St. Hilda's (Presbyterian and Methodist), and the University Women's College, which is not a Church foundation. Application has also been granted for a college to be instituted by the Baptist Church. The University had 7,476 full-time students in 1962. The Monash University, recently established in the eastern suburbs of Melbourne to provide for the increasing numbers of university students, at present accepts only a limited number of students of specified faculties (715 full-time students in 1962).

FINANCE

The revenue and expenditure of the Consolidated Revenue Fund and the State Debt for those years are given as follows:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Debt
	£A	£A	£A
1958-59	151,243,662	153,796,203	555,011,819
1959-60	168,310,347	167,996,810	594,122,016
1960-61	185,101,402	184,931,572	633,803,956

Banking, &c.—The state savings bank deposits at June 30, 1961, amounted to £303,306,000; in addition, deposits in the Commonwealth savings bank (in the State of Victoria) amounted to £113,672,000 and in other savings banks, £75,552,000.

Insurance (other than Life).—There were 203 companies or other bodies transacting business in Victoria during the year 1960-61. Total revenue amounted to £65,295,311, made up of premium income £62,424,025 and other income £2,871,286. Expenditure totalled £58,774,345, comprising claims £38,680,118, commission and agents' charges £6,154,215 and other expenditure £13,940,012.

PRODUCTION AND INDUSTRY.

The gross value of primary production in 1960-61 was £409,427,000—agricultural £132,918,000, pastoral £139,414,000, dairying £72,004,000, poultry and bee keeping £27,290,000, trapping £3,156,000, forestry £16,314,000, mining and quarries £16,267,000, fisheries £2,064,000. The net value of production of primary industries was £321,174,000. Wool, wheat, flour, butter, live stock, fruits, milk and cream, meats, poultry and eggs are staple products.

Agriculture.—Of the 6,723,000 acres under cultivation in 1960-61, 2,672,000 were wheat crops and 835,000 oats and 1,286,000 acres were cut for hay. In 1960-61, 3,021,000 gallons of wine were produced.

Live Stock.—There were in March, 1961, 26,620,000 sheep, 1,717,000 dairy cattle, 1,147,000 beef cattle, 319,000 pigs and 64,000 horses. The quantity of wool produced in 1960-61 was 322,011,000 lb., valued at £69,265,000.

Minerals.—Production of gold in 1961 was 27,580 ozs. Other minerals raised consisted principally of coal (black and brown), limestone, kaolin, tin, gypsum, antimony concentrates and bauxite. Production of brown coal in 1961 amounted to 16,274,000 tons.

Motor Vehicle Registrations.—The number of vehicles on the register at Dec. 31, 1961, was: private cars, 702,617; commercial, 107,649; hire 5,456; primary producers, 68,266; omnibuses, 805 and motor cycles, 17,793.

Victoria State Railways.—At June 30, 1961, there were 4,291 miles of railway open for traffic. The revenue and expenditure for the year ended June 30, 1961, were £42,997,581 and £41,627,330 respectively, and interest charges, exchange, etc., amounted to £4,179,417. Total traffic mileage was 18,231,555 and passenger journeys numbered 149,928,735. The tonnage of goods and live stock carried was 10,976,508.

Shipping.—During the year ended June 30, 1961, 3,404 vessels with net tonnage 14,342,866 entered Victorian ports and 3,412 vessels with total net tonnage of 14,416,807 cleared.

Trade and Industry.—In 1960-61 there were 279,675 males and 107,755 females (including working proprietors) employed in Victorian factories. Salaries and wages paid totalled £387,221,000. The total cost of materials used, containers, tools replaced and repairs to plant was £896,393,000 and of power, fuel and light, lubricants and water £49,548,000. Gross value of output was £1,646,452,000 and added value (net value of production) £700,511,000. The export trade (excluding inter-state trade) consists largely of agricultural and pastoral products. The principal overseas imports of the State are textiles, manufactured fibres, machines and machinery, electrical machinery and appliances, metals and metal manufactures, rubber and rubber manufactures, crude petroleum, paper, drugs and chemicals, and foodstuffs of vegetable origin.

CITIES AND TOWNS.

Ψ MELBOURNE, the capital city, which is an episcopal see, was originally laid out in the year 1837 with wisdom and foresight; its wide streets, park lands, public gardens, university, public library, museum and large churches are the principal features of the city. Melbourne and suburbs cover an area of 519,791 acres and contained on June 30, 1961, a population of 1,911,895. Other cities and towns are Ψ Geelong, 91,777; Ballarat, 54,883; Bendigo, 40,327; Ψ Warrnambool, 15,702; Mildura, 12,279; Hamilton, 9,495; Shepparton, 13,580; Maryborough, 7,235; Colac, 9,252; Horsham, 9,240; Castlemaine, 7,216; Ararat, 7,924; Wangaratta, 13,784; Echuca, 6,443; Sale, 7,899; Swan Hill, 6,186; Benalla, 8,260; Moe, 15,463 and Portland 6,014.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA

Includes all that portion of the continent west of 129° E. long., the most westerly point being in 112° 52' E. long., and from 13° 30' to 35° 8' S. lat. Its extreme length is 1,500 miles, and 1,000 miles from east to west; total area 975,920 sq. miles.

POPULATION.—At December 31, 1961, the population was 746,169 (380,420 males and 365,749 females).

The estimated number of full-blood aboriginals on June 30, 1961, was 10,000.

Religions.—Census of 1951—289,863 Church of England, 130,184 Roman Catholics, 70,465 Methodists, and 40,573 Presbyterians.

Physical Features.—Large areas of the State, for some hundreds of miles inland, are hilly and even mountainous, although the altitude, so far as ascertained, rises nowhere above that of Mount Bruce (4,024 ft.) in the north-west division or that of Bluff Knoll (3,640 ft.) in the Stirling Range in the south-west. The coastal regions are undulating, with an interior slope to the unsettled central portion of Australia. The Darling and Hamersley ranges of the west have a seaward slope to the Indian Ocean, into which flow many streams, notably the Preston, Colle, Murray, Swan, Murchison, Gascoyne, Ashburton, Fortescue, and De Grey. In the north the Fitzroy flows from the King Leopold ranges into the Indian Ocean, and the Drysdale and Ord into the Timor Sea. The greater portion of the State may be described as an immense tableland, with an altitude of from 1,000 to 2,000 ft. above sea-level, the surface of which varies from stretches of clayey soils to the sand dunes of the far interior. The climate is one of the most temperate in the world. The total rainfall at Perth during 1961 was 32.27 inches, the average for the past 85 years 34.81. Of the total area two-thirds is suitable for pastoral purposes.

GOVERNMENT.

Western Australia was first settled by the British in 1829, and in 1870 it was granted a partially elective legislature. In 1890 responsible government was granted, and the Administration vested in a Governor, a Legislative Council, and a Legislative Assembly. The present constitution rests upon an Amending Act of 1899, further amended by the Constitution Acts Amendment Acts of 1911, 1934 and 1955; the Executive is vested in a Governor appointed by the Crown and aided by a Council of responsible Ministers.

The Legislative Assembly (elected March, 1962) is composed of Labour Party 24, Liberal and Country League 18, Country Party 8.

GOVERNOR.

Governor of Western Australia, His Excellency Lieut.-General Sir Charles Gairdner, K.C.M.G., K.C.V.O., K.B.E., C.B., appointed 1951, term extended for 5 years from Nov. 6, 1956 and for a further 2½ years from Nov. 6, 1961 . . . £5,250

EDUCATION.

Education.—In 1961 there were 526 government schools and 336 non-government schools with 122,259 and 38,667 pupils respectively. The total amount expended on education (from Revenue) during the year ended June 30, 1961, was £11,372,992, including grants of £823,835 to the University of Western Australia (2,154 full-time students in 1962).

PRODUCTION AND INDUSTRY.

The gross value of primary production in 1960-61 was: agricultural £69,972,953; pastoral and trapping £50,814,759; dairying, poultry farming and bee-keeping £12,945,923; forestry £5,541,144; fisheries £4,284,324; mining £23,551,424.

Crops and Live Stock.—Of the total area under crop (6,756,637 acres), 4,021,225 acres were under wheat for grain, the 1960-61 production being 63,900,000 bushels. On March 31, 1961, the livestock included 1,100,430 cattle, 17,153,384 sheep, 175,675 pigs and 40,397 horses. In 1960-61 there were 8,864 acres of vineyards and 23,516 acres of orchards. The wool clip in 1960-61 was 178,600,000 lb. in the grease.

Manufacturing Industries.—There were in the year ending June 30, 1961, a total of 4,334 industrial establishments in the State employing either machinery or at least four hands. The average number of persons employed in them during the year was 50,666.

Forestry.—The forests contain some of the very finest hardwoods in the world. The total quantity

PHYSIOGRAPHY

New Zealand consists of a number of islands of varying size in the South Pacific Ocean, and has also administrative responsibility for a large tract in the Antarctic Ocean. The two larger and most important islands, the North and South Islands of New Zealand, are separated by only a relatively narrow strait. The remaining islands are very much smaller and, in general, are widely dispersed over a considerable expanse of ocean. The boundaries, inclusive of the most outlying islands and dependencies, range from 8° South latitude to South of 60° South latitude, and from 160° East longitude to 150° West longitude.

Geographical Features.—The two principal islands have a total length of 1,040 miles, and a combined area of 102,374 square miles. A large portion of the surface is mountainous in character. The principal range is that of the Southern Alps, extending over the entire length of the South Island and having its culminating point in Mount Cook (12,349 ft.). The North Island mountains include several volcanoes, two of which are active, others being dormant or extinct. Mt. Ruapehu (9,175 ft.) and Mt. Ngauruhoe (7,515 ft.) are the most important. Of the numerous glaciers in the South Island, the Tasman (18 miles long by 1½ wide), the Franz Josef and the Fox are the best known. The North Island is noted for its hot springs and geysers. For the most part the rivers are too short and rapid for use in navigation. The more important include the Waikato (270 miles in length); Wanganui (180), and Clutha (210). Lakes (Taupo, 238 sq. miles in area; Wakatipu, 112; and Te Anau, 132) are abundant, many of them of great beauty.

Climate.—New Zealand has a moist-temperate marine climate, but with abundant sunshine. A very important feature is the small annual range of temperature which permits of some growth of vegetation, including pasture, all the year round. Very little snow falls on the low levels even in the South Island. The mean temperature ranges from 59° F. in the North to about 49° F. in the South. Rainfall over the more settled areas in the North Island ranges from 35 to 70 inches and in the South Island from 25 to 45 inches. The total range is from approximately 13 to over 250 inches. The number of rainy days is generally in the neighbourhood of 160 to 180 in the North Island and between 110 and 140 in the South, except in the southern portion of the west coast. The amount of sunshine is generally over 2,000 hours per annum and ranges between 1,600 and 2,500 hours.

GOVERNMENT

The west coast of the South Island of New Zealand was discovered by Abel Janszoon Tasman, the navigator (voyaging under the direction of the Netherlands' East India Company), on December 13, 1642.

The islands were visited, and charted, in 1769 by Captain Cook, who returned to them in 1773, 1774 and 1777. From 1800 onwards sealers and whalers settled along the coasts, and trade in timber and flax followed. Christianity was introduced in 1814, and in 1832 a British Resident was appointed. In 1840 British sovereignty was proclaimed, and on May 3, 1841, New Zealand was, by letters patent, created a separate colony distinct from New South Wales. Organized colonization on a large scale commenced in 1840 with the New Zealand Company's settlement at Wellington. On Sept. 26, 1907, the designation was changed to The Dominion of New Zealand. The Constitution rests upon the Imperial Act of 1852, and on the New Zealand Constitution (Amendment) Act of Dec. 10, 1947. The Statute of Westminster was formally adopted by New Zealand in 1947. The executive authority is entrusted to a Governor-General appointed by the Crown and aided by an Executive Council, within a Legislature consisting of one chamber, the House of Representatives.

THE LEGISLATURE

Parliament consists of a House of Representatives consisting of 80 members elected for 3 years. The General Election of November, 1960, returned 46 National Party members and 34 Labour. Four of the members are Maoris elected by the Maori electors. Women have been entitled to vote since 1893, and to be elected Members of the House of Representatives since the passing of the Women's Parliamentary Rights Act, 1919. There are at present 4 women members. Members of the House receive £1,550 per annum, with an allowance of £370-675 per annum for expenses, depending on size of electorate. The Leader of the Opposition receives £2,600 per annum and £550 per annum for expenses, plus travelling allowance of £215. Speaker of the House of Representatives, Hon.

POLICE

On March 31, 1962, the strength of the Police Force was 2,478 of all ranks, equivalent to 1 for every 986 of the population. The total cost of police protection in 1961-62 was £3,540,241.

PASSPORTS

With certain exceptions, no person over 16 years of age is permitted to land unless in possession of a passport or some other document satisfactorily establishing his or her nationality and identity.

DEFENCE

Navy.

The Royal New Zealand Navy was greatly expanded during the Second World War and a number of small vessels were built in New Zealand. The naval forces include the Women's Royal New Zealand Naval Service, and Volunteer Reserve forces in four divisions. The strength is 1 cruiser, 4 frigates, 1 survey ship, 1 Antarctic support ship and 9 other vessels in commission; 2 frigates, and 4 ocean minesweepers in reserve. Active naval personnel numbers 298 officers and 2,440 ratings. A cruiser or a frigate is normally attached to the Far East Station.

Naval expenditure in 1961-62 amounted to £7,075,695.

Army.

The New Zealand Army consists of the Regular Force, the Territorial Force, the Army Reserve and the Cadet Corps. The establishment of the Regular Force is 6,250 and of the Territorial Force 10,000, and recruiting is in progress to raise the strength of the Army to this figure.

In 1962 selective national service was introduced to build the Territorial Force up to 10,000. The Army is now organized on the basis of one Regular Brigade Group, supported by three Territorial Brigade Groups. One battalion of the Regular Brigade Group is stationed as part of the Commonwealth Far East Strategic Reserve in Malaya.

Army expenditure for the year 1961-62 was

Air.

The Royal New Zealand Air Force was constituted as a separate defence service in 1937. The Air Force now consists of the Regular Air Force, the Air Force Reserve, the Women's Royal New Zealand Air Force and the Air Training Corps. Two Air Force units are based outside New Zealand, one in Singapore and the other in the Fiji Islands. The strength of the Regular Force at March 31, 1962, was 4,290.

Air Force Expenditure in 1961-62 was £10,122,030.

FINANCE

Figures of the Consolidated Fund shown in this table are quoted on a gross basis, i.e. credits have not been deducted from departmental expenditure, but have been included as receipts. The Finance Act, 1959, provided for payment into the Social Security Fund of an annual amount from the money received as income tax. This amount is computed at 1s. 6d. in the £ of the national private income for the preceding year.

Year ended March 31	Revenue	Expenditure
	£(N.Z.)	£(N.Z.)
1958	193,580,000	193,736,000
1959	241,310,000	240,888,000
1960	317,174,000	316,543,000
1961	284,354,000	283,958,000
1962	300,637,000	300,313,000*

* Includes £128,963,000 for the social services, £21,283,000 for development of primary and secondary industries and £22,180,000 for defence.

Revenue from taxation in 1961-62 amounted to £277,826,000, of which £254,174,000 was receipts into the Consolidated Fund, £23,652,000 receipts into the National Roads Fund and £80,378,000 was paid as social security income tax.

DEBT.

The gross Public Debt amounted on March 31, 1962, to £903,844,000, of which £127,013,000 was domiciled in London. The amount domiciled in London excludes £26,191,000 in respect of which interest payments have been suspended since 1931 by agreement with the Imperial Government.

BANKING.

There are five trading banks (with numerous branches) doing business, two of which are predominantly New Zealand banks. Of these the Bank of New Zealand is owned by the State. At April 25, 1962, total assets of all trading banks in New Zealand amounted to £351,677,000; liabilities, £354,538,000; and the value of notes in circulation amounted to £67,486,000. The Reserve Bank of New Zealand commenced business on August 1, 1934. The note-issuing powers of other banks have since been withdrawn and the Reserve Bank notes are legal tender. Net overseas assets of banks (on account of New Zealand business only) at April 25, 1962, amounted to £62,890,000, of which £27,290,000 and £16,442,000 represented the Reserve Bank's holdings of sterling exchange and overseas investments respectively. Trading banks' advances, including discounts, at the end of March, 1962, totalled £217,203,000, compared with £233,284,000 in the previous year. Deposits with trading banks at the end of March, 1962, amounted to £313,597,000. At the corresponding date in 1961 they were £331,530,000.

Post-office and trustee savings banks had, at the close of the year 1961-62, 2,408,000 depositors having £399,000,000 to their credit. This amount does not include National Savings Accounts in which depositors had £55,570,000 to their credit at March 31, 1962.

As from Aug. 20, 1948, New Zealand restored her currency to parity with sterling, in place of the depreciated rate of £N.Z.125=£100 adopted in 1933.

EDUCATION

The State system of education is free, secular, and compulsory. The school-leaving age was raised to 15 years as from Feb. 1, 1944. In 1961 there were 2,054 public primary schools, with 364,330 scholars; there were also 336 registered private primary schools with 53,983 scholars, 3 secondary schools with lower departments with 66 scholars and 154 Maori primary schools with 12,663 scholars, of whom 11,606 were Maoris. There were also 32,962 Maori children attending public primary schools. The secondary education of boys and girls in the cities and large towns is carried on in 160 state secondary schools, 95 state secondary departments of district high schools, 99 private secondary schools and 11 Maori private secondary schools. The total number of pupils receiving full-time secondary education in July 1961 was 130,383 and in addition there were 51,779 part-time students attending technical classes, 1,975 receiving part-time tuition from the Correspondence School and 5,861 from the Technical Correspondence School. The university system consists of the University of Auckland, Victoria University of Wellington, the University of Canterbury and the University of Otago. Two university colleges of agriculture (Massey and Lincoln) are associated with the Universities. The 6 Colleges had a total of 9,380 full-time students in 1962.

The total expenditure on Education out of public funds in 1961-62 was £46,829,000.

Agriculture and Forestry.—The total area of New Zealand (excluding its Island Territories) is 66,390,700 acres, of this, approximately 43,000,000 acres are in holdings of one acre or more. The greater part of this is pasture land, about 53 per cent. being unimproved land used for pasturage, and an additional 39 per cent. sown pasture. The output of sawn timber for 1961-62 was 692,600,000 board feet, of which 381,500,000 board feet represented exotic varieties, mainly pine.

Live Stock.—Cattle at January 31, 1960, numbered 5,002,000, including 1,887,000 dairy cows in milk; pigs 660,000, including 88,000 breeding sows. At June 30, 1961, sheep numbered 48,462,000, including 33,092,000 breeding ewes.

Manufactures.—Statistics of factory production show (1960-61) 8,734 factories in operation, employing 181,346 persons. Salaries and wages amounted to £150,475,407; cost of materials used, £469,702,860. Total value of output, £756,800,157.

Minerals.—Coal output in 1961 was 2,924,725 tons. Gold-mining was formerly an important industry, but production has declined greatly in recent years, gold produced in 1961 totalling 28,294 oz. Other minerals produced on a relatively small scale are silver, iron ore, manganese ore, tungsten and asbestos.

New Zealand produce exported to the U.K. in 1961 was valued at £N.Z.143,837,000 and included butter, 3,079,000 cwt., valued at £N.Z.36,277,000, cheese, 1,554,000 cwt. (£N.Z.17,884,000); frozen and chilled beef, 191,000 cwt. (£N.Z.1,342,000); frozen lamb, 5,181,000 cwt. (£N.Z.38,122,000); frozen mutton, 1,736,000 cwt. (£N.Z.2,286,000); canned meats, 39,000 cwt. (£N.Z.751,000); milk (dried) 521,000 cwt. (£N.Z.1,937,000) and wool 171,743,000 lb. (£N.Z.31,364,000).

Railways.—In March, 1962, there were 3,332 route miles of Government railway in operation. The number of passengers carried on Government lines in 1961-62, including season-ticket holders, was 26,324,000, while the Department's road motor services carried 22,280,000. Goods railed amounted to 10,822,000 tons. Railway total revenue and expenditure were £36,639,000 and £36,801,000 in 1961-62.

Motor Vehicles.—On March 31, 1962, there were 561,888 cars, and 355,319 other motor vehicles licensed, in addition to 44,469 motor cycles and power cycles.

Shipping.—During 1961 the vessels entered from overseas ports numbered 1,038 (net tonnage 4,954,000) and those cleared for overseas 1,031 (net tonnage 4,923,000).

Post Office Statistics.—(1961-62):—229,128,000 letters, letter cards and postcards, 263,018,000 printed and commercial papers, and newspapers, 7,099,000 packets and 7,922,000 parcels. Inland telegrams, 7,241,000; telephones 800,000.

Civil Aviation.—In 1960-61 domestic scheduled services flew 9,174,000 miles and carried 745,300 passengers. Freight carried amounted to 63,700 tons. International services to and from New Zealand carried 124,800 passengers, 1,285 tons of freight and 626 tons of mail.

THE ISLANDS OF NEW ZEALAND

In addition to North, South, Stewart and Chatham Islands:—

The Three Kings (discovered by Tasman on the Feast of the Epiphany), in 34° 9' S. lat. and 172° 8' 8" E. long. (uninhabited). Auckland Islands, about 290 miles south of Bluff Harbour, in 50° 32' S. lat. and 166° 13' E. long. The islands contain several good harbours, but are uninhabited. Campbell Island (population 9 at April 18, 1961). Antipodes Group (40° 41' 15" S. lat. and 178° 43' E. long.) uninhabited. Bounty Islands (47° 4' 43" S. lat., 170° 0' 30" E. long.). Snares Islands and Solander (uninhabited).

The Kermadec Group (population 10 at 1961 Census), between 29° 10' to 31° 30' S. lat., and 177° 45' to 179° W. long., includes Raoul or Sunday, Macaulay, Curtis Islands, L'Esperance, and some islets.

Cook and other Islands, included in the boundaries of New Zealand since June, 1901, consist of the islands of Rarotonga (8,676), Aitutaki (2,582), Mangaia (1,877), Atiu (1,266), Mauke (785), Mitiaro (307), Manuae (18), Takutea (uninhabited), Palmerston (86), Penrhyn or Tongareva (628), Manihiki (1,006), Rakahanga (319), Pukapuka or Danger (718), Suwarrow (1), Nassau (109). The population figures are from the Census of Sept. 1961, the total for the Group being 18,378 (9,454 males and 8,924 females). Niue, which is geographically part of the Cook Islands, but which is administered separately, had a population of 4,863. The chief exports are citrus fruits, fruit juice, tomatoes, pineapples, copra, pearl shell and manufactured apparel. The trade is chiefly with New Zealand and the U.S.A. The exports (1961) were valued at £N.Z.598,184, imports at £N.Z.1,021,549 for Cook Islands, and at £N.Z.35,085 and £N.Z.239,424 for Niue Island. Rarotonga is the chief island of the Cook group. Local administration is carried out by Resident Commissioners at Rarotonga and Niue, and Resident Agents on the other inhabited islands, the latter being answerable to the Resident Commissioner at Rarotonga. In their administration, commissioners and agents are assisted by the Legislative Assembly of the Cook Islands, which has an elected majority of Maori members, though ordinances may be disallowed by the Governor-General of New Zealand.

The revenue of the Cook Islands in 1961-62, exclusive of a subsidy from the New Zealand Government of £NZ627,841, was £NZ521,420, and expenditure, £NZ855,617. Revenue of Niue, exclusive of subsidy £NZ278,787, was £NZ228,014, and expenditure £NZ505,925.

Tokelau (or Union) Islands.—A group of atolls (Fakaofu, Nukunono and Atafu) (population 1,870 at the census of Sept. 1961), proclaimed part of New Zealand as from Jan. 1, 1948.

THE ROSS DEPENDENCY, ETC.

(1) The Ross Dependency, placed under the jurisdiction of New Zealand by Order in Council dated July 30, 1923, and defined as all the islands and territories between the 160th meridian of east longitude and the 150th meridian of west longitude; which are situated south of the 60th parallel of south latitude. The Ross Dependency includes Edward VII Land and portions of Victoria Land. For some years there have been permanent bases in the area, staffed by air interests.

(2) The Falkland Islands Dependencies—South Georgia and South Sandwich Islands.

South Georgia is permanently inhabited and is an important seat of the whaling industry.

So far as is known the total areas of these Dependencies have not been officially estimated.

(3) British Antarctic Territory.—Formerly part of the Falkland Islands Dependencies, the South Shetland and South Orkney Islands and Graham's Land were constituted a separate Colony on March 3, 1962 (see p. 770).

Ceylon

AREA AND POPULATION

Ceylon is an island in the Indian Ocean, off the southern tip of the peninsula of India and separated from it by a narrow strip of shallow water, the Palk Strait. Situated between 5° 55'–9° 50' N. latitude and 76° 42'–81° 52' E. longitude, it has an area of 25,332 square miles, including 296 square miles of inland water. Its greatest length is from north to south, 270 miles; and its greatest width 140 miles, no point in Ceylon being more than 80 miles from the sea.

At the Census of 1953, the population was 8,097,895, an increase of 21.7 per cent. over the last Census in 1946.

Races and Religions

The races of Ceylon are low-country Sinhalese, Kandyan Sinhalese, Ceylon Tamils, Indian Tamils, Ceylon Moors, Indian Moors, Burghers and Eurasians, Malays and Veddahs. Generally Sinhalese who trace their descent to a low-country district are classified as low-country Sinhalese, others as Kandyan Sinhalese. The Western and Southern Provinces, the Chilaw District and the Western part of Puttalam District are low-country areas; the Central and North Central Provinces, Uva, Sabaragamuwa, Kurunegala and the Sinhalés divisions of the districts of Batticaloa, Trincomalee and Vavuniya are regarded as Kandyan districts. At the 1953 Census 42.8 per cent of the population were low-country Sinhalese, 26.6 per cent. Kandyan Sinhalese. The religion of the great majority of inhabitants is Buddhism, introduced from India, according to ancient Sinhalese chronicles, in 300 B.C. Next to Buddhism, Hinduism has a large following.

PHYSIOGRAPHY

Ceylon is a compact area, except for the Island of Mannar and an almost detached portion in the north, the Jaffna Peninsula and its satellite islands of Delft, Kayts, etc. The relief of the island includes a mountainous area in the south-central region of 3,000 to 7,000 feet above sea level, surrounded by an upland belt of about 1,000 to 3,000 feet and a narrow coastal plain broadening out to a vast tract in the north. The coastal plain continues for a distance out to sea as a continental shelf and a coral reef, for the most part submerged, lies close to the coast. On the Central Ridge of the hill country are some of the highest peaks in Ceylon, Pidurutalagala (8,291 ft.), Kirigalpotta (7,856 ft.) and Totapola (7,741 ft.) and the high plains, Nuwara Eliya (over 6,000 ft.), Elk Plains (6,000 ft.) and Horton Plains (over 7,000 ft.). The other principal peaks are Adam's Peak (7,360 ft.), Nainunukula (6,679 ft.), Knuckles (6,112 ft.) and Haycock (2,167 ft.). The Peninsula of Jaffna and the Island of Mannar are featureless level stretches.

The Mahaveli-ganga, 206 miles long, is the largest river of Ceylon. Rising on the western side of the central hilly ridge, it flows north and east to empty into the Koddiiyar Bay on the east coast. Other rivers are the Kelaniganga (90 miles), Aruvi-arū (104), Kala-ōya (97), Yam-ōya (94) and Deduru-ōya (87). Waterfalls girdle the central mountainous massif and offer some of the best scenic features in the island; Dunhinda (Badulla), Diyaluma (Koslanda), Elgin (Haton Plateau) and Perawela are among the outstanding falls. Forests, jungle and scrub cover the greater part of the island, often being intermingled. The forests, of varying species, extend from fairly near the coast right into the hill country. In areas over 2,000 feet above sea level grasslands (patanas or talawas) are found. Their total area is some 250 square miles, principally in the Province of Uva.

Climate.—The climate of Ceylon is warm throughout the year, with a high relative humidity. Temperatures average 80° F. during the year and few areas record less than 60° F. Humidity is over 75 per cent. Temperature ranges vary little between wet and dry seasons. In hilly areas, frost, mist and hail occur occasionally, but snow is completely absent. Rainfall is generally heavy, with marked regional variations; fall on the south-west slopes of the hill country (20–25 inches) being heaviest. Some cyclonic activity of the tropical variety experienced in the Bay of Bengal occurs, generally during the north-east monsoon period.

GOVERNMENT

Early in the sixteenth century the Portuguese landed in Ceylon and founded settlements, eventually conquering much of the country. Portuguese rule in Ceylon lasted 150 years during which the Roman Catholic religion was established among the Sinhalese inhabitants and to some extent Portuguese modes of living adopted. In 1658, following a twenty-year period of decline, Portuguese rule gave place to that of the Dutch East India Company which was to exploit Ceylon with varying fortunes until 1796.

The Maritime Provinces of Ceylon were ceded by the Dutch to the British on February 16, 1798, becoming a British Crown Colony in 1802 under the terms of the Treaty of Amiens. With the annexation of the Kingdom of Kandy in 1815 all Ceylon came under British rule.

On February 4, 1948, Ceylon became a self-governing Dominion of the British Commonwealth of Nations under the Ceylon Independence Act, 1947. The Parliament of Ceylon consists of (a) The Queen (represented by the Governor-General) and (b) two houses, namely, the Senate and the House of Representatives. The Executive consists of the Prime Minister and a Cabinet chosen from the party which has the majority in the House of Representatives.

FLAG.—Yellow lion of Kandy on a maroon ground; Sinhalese pinnacle on corners; yellow border; two vertical stripes at staff side.

EDUCATION

In 1960, there were 8,163 Government and Assisted schools. The Assisted schools have now been taken over by the Government. The total cost of education was Rs. 284,879,018 for 1959-60. The University of Ceylon was established on July 1, 1942, by the incorporation of the Ceylon Medical College (founded 1870) and the Ceylon University College (founded 1921) into the University, which in 1962 had 4,621 full-time students on the roll. In 1962, the Vidyalkara and Vidyodaya Universities, established in 1959, had respectively 743 and 877 full-time students. The Ceylon Technical College provides a series of full-time and part-time courses in science, engineering, commerce, etc.

COMMUNICATIONS

There are about 10,777 miles of motorable road in Ceylon, of which 7,431 miles are bitumen surfaced. On Dec. 31, 1960, there were 136,976 motor vehicles on the register (82,576 private cars and cabs, 6,243 coaches, 27,429 lorries, 4,419 tractors, 2,404 trailers, 4,325 land vehicles and 16,403 motor cycles).

In 1960, 2,617 ocean-going merchant vessels of a total net register tonnage of 9,659,026 entered the port of Colombo.

There are 1,485 money-order offices and 932 telegraph offices with 11,326 miles of telegraph wire and 22,876 telephones. A commercial wireless telegraph station has a range of 500 miles by day and about 1,000 to 1,500 miles by night and handles ship-to-shore traffic.

Air Ceylon operates an international air service from Amsterdam — London — Rome — Cairo — Bahrain — Karachi — Bombay — Colombo and Singapore-Colombo. Air Ceylon also operates regional services from Colombo to Amparai and Jaffna, with branches to Madras and Tiruchirappalli, and Colombo to Trincomalee. Other services are B.O.A.C., Indian Airlines Corporation, K.L.M. Royal Dutch Airlines, Quantas Empire Airways and T.W.A.

Malaya

THE FEDERATION OF MALAYA

The Federation of Malaya is situated at the southern end of the Kra Peninsula between latitudes 1° and 7° North and longitudes 100° and 105° East. The country is bounded by Thailand on the north, the Johore Straits and the island of Singapore on the South, the China Sea on the East and the Straits of Malacca on the West. The total area is just over 50,000 square miles of which about 70 per cent. is still under forest and undeveloped. The climate is tropical, characterized by high humidity. Average temperatures at the lower altitudes vary between approximately 70° and 90° . The annual rainfall is about 90 inches, distributed fairly evenly throughout the year.

Racial distribution: Malaysians, 3,510,088; Chinese, 2,595,303; Indians and Pakistanis, 786,475; Other races 125,677 (Total, estimated, at Dec. 31, 1960, 7,017,533).

FEDERAL CAPITAL.—Kuala Lumpur, capital of Selangor (population, 316,230).

LANGUAGE.—Malay is the national language, with English permitted for official use for a minimum of 10 years after Independence Day. RELIGION.—Islam is the religion of the Federation, each Ruler being the head of the religion in his State; the Supreme Head of the Federation is the head of the religion in Malacca and Penang. The Federation is, however, a secular State.

FLAG.—Equal horizontal stripes of red (6) and white (5); yellow star and crescent in blue canton.

GOVERNMENT

The Federation of Malaya became an independent country within the Commonwealth on August 31, 1957, as a result of an agreement between H.M. the Queen and the Rulers of the Malay States, whereby Her Majesty relinquished all powers and jurisdiction over the Malay States and over the Settlements of Penang and Malacca which then became States of the Federation.

The Constitution, which came into force on Independence Day, is designed to ensure the existence of a strong Federal Government and also a measure of autonomy for the eleven State Governments. It provides for a constitutional Supreme Head of the Federation (His Majesty the Yang di-Pertuan Agong) to be elected for a term of 5 years by the Malay Rulers from among their number, and for a Deputy Supreme Head (His Highness the Timbalan Yang di-Pertuan Agong) to be similarly elected. Save in certain instances provided in the Constitution, the Supreme Head acts in accordance with the advice of a Cabinet appointed by him from among the members of Parliament on the advice of the Prime Minister. The Supreme Head appoints as Prime Minister the person who in his judgment is likely to command the confidence of the majority of the members of the House of Representatives.

There is a Conference of Rulers consisting of the Rulers of the nine States and the Governors of Malacca and Penang, presided over by the Supreme Head of the Federation. The Conference is empowered to elect the Supreme Head and Deputy Supreme Head and has certain other powers, notably in matters of religion; it has authority to deliberate on any subject.

SUPREME HEAD OF THE FEDERATION

His Majesty Syed Putra (Raja of Perlis).

Deputy Supreme Head, His Highness Sir Ismail Nasiruddin Shah (Sultan of Trengganu).

High Commissioner, His Excellency Sir Geoffrey Tory, K.C.M.G.

Deputy High Commissioner, M. J. Moynihan, M.C.

British Council Representative, H. R. Mills, O.B.E., Victory Avenue, Kuala Lumpur.

LEGISLATURE

The Federal Parliament consists of two houses, the Senate and the House of Representatives. The Senate (Dewan Negara) consists of 38 members, under a President (Yang di-Pertua Dewan Negara), 22 elected by the Legislative Assemblies of the States (2 from each) and 16 appointed by the Yang di-Pertuan Agong from persons who have achieved distinction in major fields of activity or are representative of racial minorities, including the Aborigines. The first House of Representatives (Dewan Ra'ayat), consisting of 104 members elected on the principle of universal adult suffrage with a common electoral roll, was elected on Aug. 19, 1959, and met on Sept. 11.

Speaker, Haji Mohamad Noah bin Omar.

The Constitution provides that each State shall have a simplified version of the Federal Constitution, with the Ruler or Governor acting on the advice of an Executive Council appointed on the advice of the Mentri Besar or Chief Minister and a single chamber Legislative Assembly. Three ex officio members are to sit in the Executive Council besides these elected members. They are the State Secretary, the State Legal Adviser and the State Financial Officer. The State Constitutions provide for the Ruler or Governor to appoint as Mentri Besar or Chief Minister, to preside over the Executive Council, a member of the Legislative Assembly who in his judgment is likely to command the confidence of the majority of the members of the Assembly. The Legislative Assemblies are fully elected on the same basis as the Federal Parliament.

Legislative powers are divided into a Federal List, a State List and a Concurrent List, with residual powers vested in the State Legislatures. The Federal List comprises broadly, external affairs, defence, civil and criminal law and justice, the machinery of government, finance, commerce and industry, communications and transport, power, education, medicine and labour and social security. The State List includes land, agriculture and forestry, local government and services and the machinery of state government. In the Concurrent List are, inter alia, social welfare, wild-life, animal husbandry, town and country planning, public health and drainage and irrigation.

There is provision for formal consultation between the Federal Government and the States in a National Finance Council and a National Land Council.

JUDICATURE

The Judicial System includes a Supreme Court, composed of a Court of Appeal and a High Court, and subordinate courts consisting of Sessions Courts, Magistrates' Courts and Local Courts, called Penghulus' Courts. The Supreme Court consists of a Chief Justice and up to 15 Puisne Judges.

Chief Justice, Sir James Thomson.

DEFENCE

The Armed Forces of the Federation consist of the Army, Navy and Air Force, together with volunteer and auxiliary forces for each arm. The responsibility for command, discipline and administration, under the general authority of the Supreme Head of the Federation, rests with the Armed Forces Council under the Chairmanship of the Minister of Defence. The Council is not responsible for the operational use of the Forces. The Chief of the Armed Forces Staff is the senior military member of the Council.

An agreement exists between the Government of the United Kingdom and the Government of the Federation of Malaya on external defence and mutual assistance under which the United Kingdom has the right to maintain in the Federation such military forces, including a Commonwealth Strategic Reserve, as are agreed to be necessary for the fulfilment of Commonwealth and international obligations. The United Kingdom Government, on the other hand, has agreed to provide personnel, facilities, advice and assistance in the development of the Federation Armed Forces in addition to the financial assistance already granted towards the capital cost of their expansion.

PRODUCTION AND TRADE

The Federation of Malaya is primarily a producer of raw materials, the chief of which are rubber and tin (of which it is the world's biggest individual supplier) iron ore, palm oil and kernels, coconut oil and copra and other agricultural products. These constitute nearly four-fifths of the total export trade, the other one-fifth being entrepôt trade consisting of re-export of raw materials and produce of neighbouring countries and manufactured and industrial goods of foreign countries. Imports consist mainly of foodstuffs, beverages and tobacco, mineral fuels and lubricants, chemicals, textiles, manufactured and capital goods and raw products of neighbouring countries. The chief suppliers are the United Kingdom, Australia, the United States of America, Netherlands, W. Germany, Hong Kong, India, Japan, China, Thailand and Indonesia. Domestic rice production totalled 561,000 tons in the 1959-60 season. The balance was imported mainly from Thailand and Burma. Domestic industry includes manufacture of rubber goods, tobacco, cigarettes, pottery, cement, matches, pewter-ware, furniture, timber, bricks, tiles, soap, biscuits, aerated waters, textiles, paints, metal containers and toothpaste.

Federation of Nigeria

Area and Population.—The Federation of Nigeria is situated on the west coast of Africa. It is bounded on the south by the Gulf of Guinea, on the west and north by Dahomey and Niger and on the east by the Cameroon Republic. It has an area of 356,669 square miles and at the Census of May, 1962 had a total population of approximately 40,000,000. The population is almost entirely African. There are some 28,000 Europeans, Americans, Lebanese and others engaged in Government posts, commerce and Missionary work.

A belt of mangrove swamp forest 10-60 miles in width lies along the entire coastline. North of this there is a zone 50-100 miles wide of tropical rain forest and oil-palm bush. North of this the country rises and the vegetation changes to open woodland and savannah. In the extreme north the country is almost desert. There are few mountains, but in Northern Nigeria the central plateau rises to an average level of 4,000 feet. The Niger, Benue, and Cross are the main rivers.

The climate varies with the types of country described above, but Nigeria lies entirely within the tropics and temperatures are high. Temperatures of over 100° in the north are common while coast temperatures are seldom over 90°. The humidity at the coast, however, is much higher than in the north. The rainy season is from about May to October; rainfall varies from under 25 inches a year in the extreme north to 150 inches on the eastern coast line. During the dry season the harmattan wind blows from the desert; it is laden with fine particles of dust.

Government.—Nigeria is divided into three Regions, the Northern Region, the Eastern Region and the Western Region (with Regional Headquarters at Kaduna, Enugu and Ibadan respectively) and the Federal, Capital of Lagos. Eastern and Western Nigeria became self-governing in 1957 and Northern Nigeria in 1959. The Federation of Nigeria became fully independent on October 1, 1960, continuing as a member state of the Commonwealth.

The Federal Parliament consists of the Senate and the House of Representatives and its authority includes subjects as external affairs, aviation, banks, census, customs, defence, police, shipping, mines and minerals, posts and telegraphs, trunk roads and railways.

Each Region has an Executive Council presided over by a Premier, a House of Assembly and a House of Chiefs. The Governor of each Region acts on the advice of his ministers. Regional Governments have administrative and executive responsibility for regional legislation, development plans, health, education, local government, agriculture, justice, finance, natural resources, regional public works, communications (other than those under Federal control), regional trade, industry and production and welfare.

JUDICATURE

Chief Justice, Federal Supreme Court, Sir Adetokunbo Ademola.

Chief Justice, High Court of Lagos, Sir Maric de Lestang.

Chief Justice, Northern Region High Court, W. H. Harley.

Chief Justice, Eastern Region High Court, Sir Louis Mbanafó.

Chief Justice, Western Region High Court, S. O. Quashie-Idun.

Education.—Education is the responsibility of the Regional Governments, the Federal Government retaining responsibility for education in Lagos and for those institutions of higher learning which have Nigerian significance such as the Universities at Ibadan, Lagos, Ife and Kano, and the Man of War Training Centre. University College, Ibadan, became a full independent university on Oct. 1, 1962. The University at Nsukka, E. Region (1960), had 1,064 full-time students in 1962. The Universities of Lagos, Kano and Ife were formally established in 1962. Free and universal primary education for all children within the 6-12 year age group is now available in West and East Nigeria and in the Federal Territory of Lagos. Over 3,000,000 pupils were enrolled at primary and higher schools in 1962.

Railways.—The Nigerian railway system, which is controlled by the Nigerian Railway Corporation, is the most extensive in Africa. There are 1,870 route miles of lines. Construction of a 400-mile extension to Maiduguri, begun in Sept. 1958, has reached Bauchi. There are two major bridges, one over the Niger at Jebba and one over the Benue at Makurdi. The latter is 2,624 ft. long, and it is believed to be the second longest in Africa. The North-western main line runs from Lagos to Kano (700 miles) through the important towns of Abeokuta, Ibadan, Ilorin, Jebba, Minna, Kaduna and Zaria. From Kano the line continues for another 143 miles in a north-easterly direction to its terminus at Nguru, and there is a branch line from Zaria via Gusau to Kaura Namoda to serve north-western Nigeria. This line is also linked with Sokoto by a scheduled railway road service from Gusau. The eastern line runs from Port Harcourt deep-water quay on the Bonny river through the thickly populated oil palm area to Enugu, where it serves the collieries. It then crosses the Benue and joins the north-western line at Kaduna, 569 miles from Port Harcourt. A branch line of 63 miles from Kafanchan serves the tin mines at Jos. The railway hauled 2,724,000 tons of freight in 1960-61, and its passenger traffic totalled 9,828,000 passengers.

Roads.—There are 45,000 miles of motorable road. Most of the roads have gravelled or earth surfaces, but about 7,000 miles are tarred. An extensive programme of bituminous surfacing is now being carried out and work has begun on the construction of a road bridge over the lower Niger between Onitsha and Asaba to provide a through trunk road between East and West Nigeria.

Civil Aviation.—Trunk route services operated by Nigerian and the principal international airlines bring Nigeria within less than 12 hours of the Western European capitals and South Africa. There are also services to other parts of Africa and to the United States. A network of internal air services connects the main centres. Comprehensive radio navigational aids are installed at Kano and Lagos airports, and basic radio navigational facilities are provided at the twelve other aerodromes in regular use. Several flying strips are also in use by light aircraft. There is a network of meteorological reporting stations.

Production and Industry.—Nigeria is mainly an agricultural country. Four of the country's main agricultural products, viz. palm-oil and palm kernels, cocoa, cotton and ground nuts are of the greatest importance in Nigeria's export trade (see figures under "Trade" below). Other crops include benniseed, capsicums, cassava, coffee, copra, guinea-corn, gum arabic, kola-nuts, maize, millet, piassava, rice, rubber, tobacco and yams. There are important tin and coal-mining industries, at Jos and Enugu respectively. The coal is mainly used within the country. Nigeria is the principal source of supply of the world's requirements of columbite. Timber and hides and skins are other major exports. Industrial products include soap, cigarettes, beer, margarine, groundnut oil, meal and cake, concentrated fruit juices, soft drinks, canned food, metal containers, plywood, textiles, ceramic products, cotton cloth, rubber shoes, boat building, car and cycle assembly, plastics, concrete and cement manufacturers and printing. A steel rolling mill has begun operations.

Trade.—The principal imports (1961) were cotton piece goods (£26,435,000), unmanufactured tobacco and cigarettes (£1,490,746), jute bags and sacks (£4,322,310), artificial silk piece-goods (£7,360,000), motor-vehicles and spares (£16,902,000), bicycles and spare parts (£1,154,800), other machinery (£32,328,584), cement (£3,664,448), corrugated iron sheets (£2,690,063), stockfish (£7,564,055), and petroleum products (£11,668,000). The principal exports were cocoa (£33,746,456), groundnuts (£32,232,698), palm-kernels (£19,888,699), palm oil (£13,226,855), timber, sawn and logs (£6,721,922), hides and skins (£4,119,820), cotton (£11,120,055), columbite (£1,164,575), tin ore (£6,642,692), and rubber (£10,966,656).

Sierra Leone

Area and Population, etc.—The peninsula of Sierra Leone, situated on the West Coast of Africa, was ceded to Great Britain in 1787 by the native chiefs to be used as an asylum for the many destitute negroes then in England. At a somewhat later date the Colony was used as a settlement for Africans from North America and the West Indies, and great numbers of Africans rescued from slave ships have from time to time been liberated and settled there. The total area of Sierra Leone is about 27,925 sq. miles, and the total population was estimated in 1961 at 2,400,000. For administrative purposes, the interior portion of Sierra Leone is divided into 3 Provinces covering 12 Districts, each administered by a Resident Minister. The principal peoples are the Limbas and Korankos in the north, the Temnes in the centre, and the Mendis in the south.

Government.—Sierra Leone became a fully independent state and a member of the British Commonwealth on April 27, 1961. Under the 1961 Constitution, Her Majesty the Queen's representative is the Governor-General, who is appointed on the advice of the Prime Minister. The House of Representatives consists of a Speaker and 74 members, elected from constituencies established by an Electoral Commission. The House has full power to legislate. The Governor-General is advised by a Cabinet consisting of the Prime Minister and not less than 7 other ministers, who must be elected members of the House of Representatives. The Ministers are appointed by the Governor-General on the recommendation of the Prime Minister. Eighteen members of the Cabinet hold ministerial portfolios, and the remaining two are Ministers without portfolio.

Communications.—A railway runs inland from Freetown to Pendemhu (227½ miles) and a branch line of 83 miles extends in a north-easterly direction from Bauya to Makeni. A mining company, the Sierra Leone Development Company, owns a railway which runs for 57 miles from the iron ore deposits at Marampa to the shipping port of Pepel. There are about 3,000 miles of road in the country, of which about 200 miles are bitumen-surfaced. There is a trunk line network of 951 miles of telephone and telegraph routes connecting Freetown with most of the more important centres and towns.

The Freetown international airport is situated at Lungi, across the Sierra Leone River from Freetown. The main port is Freetown, which has one of the largest natural harbours in the world, and where a deep water quay, capable of berthing two medium-sized ships, came into operation in 1954. There are smaller ports at Pepel, Bonthé and Sulima. Inland waterways total some 493 miles, but several are only navigable for about three to four months of the year. The Sierra Leone Broadcasting Service operates a direct service, and is responsible for the Freetown Rediffusion System. Broadcasts are made daily in several of the more important indigenous languages, in addition to English.

Education.—In 1961 primary education was provided in a total of 586 schools, of which all but 23 were assisted from public funds. The total enrolment was 86,224. Primary education is neither free nor compulsory, but the rate of fee is low and equipment is provided free of charge. The percentage of children attending school is higher in the Freetown area than in the Provinces. The enrolment in the country's 37 secondary schools was 75,512. One school provides a secondary technical education; the remainder are grammar schools. Technical education is provided in the two Government Technical Institutes, situated in Freetown and Kenema, and in the technical training establishments of the two mining companies.

Teacher training is carried out in two Government and three Church/Mission training colleges in the Provinces, and in the Freetown Training College. The total number of teachers in training in 1961 was 659. The University College (Fourah Bay College) was founded by the Church Missionary Society and is affiliated to the University of Durham. It has a number of departments and faculties.

Trade.—In the Colony area, farming is largely confined to the production of cassava and garden crops, such as maize and vegetables, for local consumption. In the Protectorate, the principal agricultural product is rice, which is the staple food of the country, with cassava as a supplementary item of diet. In 1961 the most valuable exports were:

Diamonds £13,911,698; iron ore £3,396,476; palm kernels £1,766,141.

Other agricultural exports were: coffee (£577,495) cocoa (£415,799), piassava (£231,238), kola nuts (£80,290) and ginger (£80,272). The only other mineral export of importance was chrome ore (£90,362). The principal imports were food (including rice to the value of £39,930 in 1961), tobacco, drink, apparel, cotton and synthetic piece goods, hardware, machinery, motor vehicles, patent fuel and oils.

The net public debt of Sierra Leone on March 31, 1962, amounted to £9,620,152.

The unit of currency is the pound sterling.

CAPITAL.—Ψ FREETOWN (population 85,000). Freetown, which possesses the finest and most important harbour in West Africa, is 3,078 miles from Liverpool; transit, 9 days by sea; 2 days by air; there are also air connections with most of the capital cities of the world, and an internal air service between Freetown and some of the more important towns in Sierra Leone.

British Council Representative, J. Sanderson.

FLAG.—Three horizontal stripes of leaf green, white and cobalt blue.

Tanganyika

Tanganyika occupies the east central portion of the African continent, between 1°-11° 45' S. lat. and 29° 20'-40° 38' E. long. It is bounded on the N. by Kenya and Uganda; on the S.W. by Lake Nyasa, Nyasaland and N. Rhodesia; on the S. by Portuguese E. Africa; on the W. it is bounded by Ruanda, Burundi and the Congolese Republic; on the E. the boundary is the Indian Ocean. Tanganyika has a coastline of about 500 miles and an area of 362,688 sq. miles (including 20,650 sq. miles of water). The greater part of the country is occupied by the Central African plateau from which rise, among others, Mt. Kilimanjaro, the highest point on the continent of Africa (19,340 ft.) and Mt. Meru (14,979 ft.). The Serengeti National Park, which covers an area of 6,000 sq. miles in the Northern and Lake Provinces is famous for its variety and number of species of game.

The native population consists mostly of tribes of mixed Bantu race. The total population of Tanganyika is estimated at 9,403,700, including approximately 22,700 Europeans and 123,000 other non-Africans (mainly Asians). Swahili, the language of the coastal people, is understood throughout the country and has been adopted as the basic standard dialect for literature, both for educational and general purposes.

GOVERNMENT

Following a constitutional conference held in Dar es Salaam in March, 1961, Tanganyika became an independent state and a member of the British Commonwealth on December 9, 1961. There is a National Assembly consisting of 71 seats of which 50 are open to contest by all races, 11 to contest by Asians and 10 by Europeans. The first Prime Minister, Mr. Julius Nyerere, resigned on Jan. 22, 1962, and nominated Mr. R. M. Kawawa to succeed him. It was announced on May 31, 1962, that Tanganyika would become a republic on December 9, 1962, following a presidential election in October; the President to hold full executive power, being Head of State and head of the Government, with a Vice-President appointed from among members of the National Assembly to be leader of Government business in the Assembly and the President's chief executive assistant.

Tanganyika takes part on an equal basis with Kenya and Uganda in the East African Common Services Organization, to administer services in the fields of Communications, Finance, Commercial and Industrial Co-ordination, Social matters and research, under parliamentary control of a Central Legislative Assembly. This organization replaced the East Africa High Commission in 1961.

CANADA.—N. F. H. Berlis.

AUSTRALIA.—A. F. Dingle.

INDIA.—M. A. Vellodi.

GHANA.—J. F. N. Meyer.

EDUCATION.—In 1962, there were 2,733 primary schools, mostly co-educational, 369 middle schools, 12 State secondary schools and 17 voluntary secondary schools, 25 centres for the training of teachers are run by voluntary agencies and 5 by the Government. There are separate facilities for the education of Europeans and of Indians, both largely financed by non-Government sources. A technical institute in Dar es Salaam with places for 850 students provides technical and commercial education for both sexes of all races. Financial assistance for students going overseas is provided by the Government. There are also 3 mission schools mainly for Goans and one school run by the Goan community.

FINANCE.—Total revenue for 1962-63 was estimated at £31,237,000 and expenditure, £31,482,000, compared with £28,768,000 and £29,161,000 respectively in 1961-62.

PRODUCTION.—The economy is based mainly on the production and export of primary produce and the growing of foodstuffs for local consumption. The chief commercial crops are sisal, cotton, coffee and oilseeds. The most important minerals are diamonds, gold, lead and mica. Hides and skins are another valuable export. Industry is at present largely concerned with the processing of raw materials for either export or local consumption. There is also a healthy growth of secondary manufacturing industries, including factories for the manufacture of leather and rubber footwear, knitwear, razor blades, cigarettes and textiles, and a wheat flour mill.

Live Stock.—In 1960 there were about 8,000,000 cattle, 2,870,000 sheep, 4,290,000 goats, 15,600 pigs, 140,000 donkeys and 190 horses in the country.

Minerals.—The provisional value of mineral sales in 1961 was £7,976,000, mainly: diamonds, £5,780,000; gold, silver, copper and lead, £1,333,000; mica sheet, £88,000; salt, £271,000; building minerals, £293,000; tin concentrates, £152,000; other, £59,000.

TRADE.—The value of Tanganyika's principal exports in 1961 was: sisal, £14,028,000; coffee, £6,762,000; cotton, £6,794,000; diamonds, £5,762,000; oilseeds, nuts and kernels, £1,943,000; cashew nuts, £1,805,000; hides and skins, £1,759,000; meat and meat preparations, £2,054,000. Other exports include gold, metallic ores, tea, beans, peas and pulses, animal feeding stuffs, cassava flour, beeswax, papain, wood and timber, lead and unmanufactured tobacco. Total value of trade in 1961 was: Exports, £48,649,000; Imports, £39,686,000; Exports to U.K., 1961, £11,852,904; Imports from U.K., £10,364,750.

CAPITAL.—Ψ Dar es Salaam (population, Census 1957, 128,742). Other towns are Ψ Tanga (38,053); Mwanza (19,877); Tabora (15,361); and Ψ Mtwara (10,459).

FLAG.—Broad horizontal stripes of green, black and green, separated by 2 narrow stripes of gold.

British Council Representative.—W. R. Keight, M.B.E., Dar es Salaam.

India and Pakistan

The Indian Independence Act, 1947, which received the Royal Assent on July 18, 1947, brought to an end the whole structure of British Government in India and the handing over of power was completed by August 15, 1947. The Indian Empire, which extended over a territory larger than the Continent of Europe without Russia, is now represented by the Republic of India, the Republic of Pakistan, and Territories of Indian Rulers formerly under the suzerainty of the King-Emperor. Certain tracts of Tribal Territory on the North West and North East Frontiers are under the political influence, though not under the administrative rule, of the Government of Pakistan.

GEOGRAPHICAL INDIA

Physical Features.—The country may be broadly divided into three sections, viz. the Himalayan region, the northern river-plains, and the southern tableland.

The Himalayas.—The Himalayas (which lie partly beyond the frontier), with their southern offshoots, form the natural northern boundary of India. The Himalayan range runs for 1,500 miles from N.W. to S.E., with a varying breadth of 150 to 200 miles, and attains a general height of 20,000 feet above the plain, culminating in the loftiest peaks yet measured on the globe—Mount Everest, 29,002 feet, Kunchinjunga, 28,146 feet, and Dhaulagiri, 26,526 feet, near the centre of the range; and K. 2, 28,250 feet, near its junction with the Hindu Kush. The line of perpetual snow is at about 16,000 feet. The Himalayas collect and store up water for the plains below. The slopes give a representation of the tropical zone (especially on the southern slopes to the E.), the temperate zone (particularly to the S.W. of the range), and the arctic zone as the upward journey is taken from the plains. In the Himalayas are several sanatoria, including Murree, Simla, Mussoorie, Naini Tal, and Darjiling. Himalayan vegetation includes such varied species as the tree-fern, ilex, pine, oak, fir, deodar (cedar), rhododendron, barley, oats, millet, and many domestic vegetables. The fauna are as varied as the flora, and include the bison, musk-deer, yak, wild sheep and goat, bear, elephant, monkey, and tiger, with eagles, partridges, and pheasants.

The Great Plain.—The northern river-plains, lying at the foot of the Himalayas, comprise the rich alluvial plains watered by the Indus, the Ganges, the Lower Brahmaputra, and their tributaries. At no great distance from one another, four rivers take their rise in the Himalayas. The sources of two are on the north side—the Indus, which flows westward for 1,800 miles, and the Tsan-po or Brahmaputra, which flows eastward for nearly 1,500 miles. The other two, on the southern slope, are the Sutlej, which, after flowing W. and S.W. for 900 miles and collecting various other streams, joins the Indus; and the Ganges, which, during a journey S.E. and E. of about 1,550 miles, drains almost all the Bengal plain. The Brahmaputra, after flowing along the northern side as far as the eastern extremity of the Himalayas, turns sharply to the S., then to the W., and finally joins the Ganges, 75 miles from where their combined streams enter the Bay of Bengal. Thus the Himalayas supply India with the water gathered on both slopes. The Indus and Ganges, with their tributaries, are the source of an extensive system of irrigation by canals. The richest, most populous, and most historically famous part of India lies in the basins of these great rivers. Formerly the Ganges was the only great highway of Bengal; it is still the fertiliser and the water-carrier. But a close network of railways is increasingly used for transport. In Northern India there are two harvests, rabi (spring) crops being reaped in March and April, kharif (autumn) crops in October to December. In the north we find wheat, pulse, maize, millet, harley, and tea; while in the south, indigo, cotton, sugar-cane, jute, oilseeds, tobacco, opium, and spices are produced. Among the fauna are monkeys, panthers, tigers, leopards, hyenas, jackals, squirrels, elephants, deer, crocodiles, and snakes. Salt, mica, and coal are the chief minerals. The Ganges delta yields rice, bamboos, and a large variety of palms. The Aravalli range, the primeval chain of India, divides Rajputana from the Central India States. To the N.W. of the peninsula lies the mountainous, barren, and thinly populated region of Baluchistan.

The Deccan.—Just as the Himalayas on the N. and the Hindu Kush and Suleiman Mountains on the N.W. form natural barriers of defence for Hindustan, so do the Vindhya Mountains, running almost due E. from the head of the Gulf of Cambay, north of the Nerbudda River, form a firm southern boundary to the river-plains of Northern India. Southern India, or the Deccan, is a plateau of triangular shape and very old geological formation, bounded on two sides by the Malabar and Coromandel coasts, which converge at Cape Comorin, and on the third by the Vindhyas. The Eastern and Western Ghats all but complete this environing triangle of mountain ranges. In the extreme N.W., south of the Vindhyas, and parallel to them, hut north of the Western Ghats, we find the Nerbudda and the Tapti flowing westwards, their basins being sharply defined by the Satpura Mountains, which lie midway between them. As the Western Ghats lie close to the coast, and afford no exit for rivers, there are no streams on the Malabar coast south of the Tapti; all the rivers flow eastwards, through defiles in the Eastern Ghats, into the Bay of Bengal. The four chief rivers are the Mahanuddy, in the extreme N.E. (520 m.), the Godavery (900 m.), the Kistna (800 m.), and the Cauvery (472 m.), at intervals further to the south. The physical geography of Southern India has shaped its history: the S.W. coast, shut in by mountains, is very primitive and moves slowly; the S.E., open and easy of access by sea and towards the interior, has made great progress. The mountain slopes of this region, especially those of the Western Ghats, which rise to 8,000 feet in the Nilgiris, are still covered with the splendid vegetation of primeval forests. Teak, ebony, satinwood, sandalwood, palm, and bamboo abound. The jungles in the E. are very deadly. The tiger, bison, leopard, deer, and various small game afford sport. Snakes are found everywhere. In the valleys and on the higher plains many valuable crops are raised, chiefly rice, millet, cotton, oilseeds, coffee, tea, indigo, tobacco, and chinchona. The southern tableland has furnished considerable supplies of minerals. At present the minerals principally worked are coal, manganese ore, mica, monazite, and gold.

Climate.—About half of India is within the tropics, but the greatest extremes of heat and cold are in the N.W. In the Himalayas the climate is moist and cold. In Northern India it is dry, and the winters are rather cold. In tropical Southern India the climate is more equable. Calcutta, Bombay, and Madras all have an equable climate, owing to proximity to the sea. India depends for its fertility upon the monsoon rains. The S.W. monsoon brings moisture from the ocean south of the Equator, and reaches the west coast early in June and the northern provinces late in June. The mountains arrest these currents and precipitate rainfall, which averages 60 inches in the sub-Himalayan region, 39 inches in the Indo-Gangetic plain, and 30 inches in the Deccan, but is small in Sind and Rajputana. Madras benefits by the N.E. monsoon in the autumn.

Jammu and Kashmir.—The Kashmir territory, area 82,258 sq. miles, population 4,021,616 (census 1941), of whom some 880,000 are non-Moslems, may be divided physically into two areas, the north-easterly and south-western areas. The dividing line is formed by the great Himalayan chain which runs from the northern boundary of the Chamba State to where Nanga Parbat towers 26,600 feet above the Indus. The smaller, more populous south-western area may be divided geographically into three sections; the region of the outer hills, the middle mountains and the Kashmir Valley. The north-eastern section is comprised between the great central chain on the south and the Karakoram range and its continuation on the north. The chief characteristic of this region is the great altitude of the rivers and plains. The Indus near the Kashmir-Tibet boundary runs at a height of 13,800 feet above sea level. Hand made products of wool and silk are produced. Chief towns are Srinagar (Kashmir), Jammu and Leh (Ladakh).

CONSTITUTION

The Constitution of India came into force on January 26, 1950. The Constitution provides for a single and uniform citizenship for the whole of India, with the right of vote for every adult citizen.

EXECUTIVE

The executive of the Indian Union consists of the President (Rashtrapati), the Vice-President and the Council of Ministers. The President is elected for five years by an electoral college consisting of all elected members of Parliament and of the various State Legislative Assemblies. The Vice-President is also elected for five years by members of the two Houses of Parliament. As head of the State the President exercises his functions with the aid and advice of the Council of Ministers headed by the Prime Minister. The Council is collectively responsible to the House of the People.

LEGISLATURE

The Legislature of the Union is called Parliament. It consists of two Houses known as the Council of States (Rajya Sabha) and the House of the People (Lok Sabha). The Council of States consists of not more than 250 members, of whom 12 are nominated by the President and the rest are indirectly elected by the Legislative Assemblies of the various States. The Council is not subject to dissolution, one-third of its members retiring every two years. The House of the People consists of not more than 500 members directly elected from territorial constituencies in the States and on the basis of adult franchise and not more than 20 members to represent the Union Territories, chosen in such manner as Parliament provides. The House has a maximum duration of five years.

Subject to the provisions of the Constitution the Union Parliament can make laws for the whole of India and the State legislatures for their respective units. The distribution of legislative powers is governed by a system of three lists—the Union, the State and the Concurrent—under which all legislative activity has been mapped out. The Union Parliament has exclusive powers to legislate on 97 subjects of all-India importance, such as defence, foreign affairs, communications, railways, currency and banking, insurance, customs duties, etc. The State List contains 66 headings, e.g. public order and police, justice, education, public health, local government, agriculture, etc. The Concurrent List contains 47 subjects of common interest to the Union and the States.

OFFICIAL LANGUAGE

The Constitution (Art. 343) provides that the official language of the Union shall be Hindi in the Devanagari script and the form of numerals for official purposes shall be the international form of Indian numerals. English will, however, continue to be the official language for a period of 15 years from the commencement of the Constitution (January 1950).

THE JUDICATURE

The Supreme Court of India, consisting of a Chief Justice and 13 associate judges, is the highest court in respect of constitutional matters. It is also the final Court of Appeal in the country. Chief Justice, B. P. Sinha. Rs. 66,000.

Judges, J. Imam; S. K. Das; J. L. Kapur; P. B. Gajendragadkar; A. K. Sarkar; K. Subba Rao; K. N. Wanchoo; M. Hidayatullah; K. C. Das Gupta; J. C. Shah; Raghubar Dayal; N. Rajagopala Ayyangar; J. R. Mudholkar. Rs. 48,000.

PRODUCTION

About 70 per cent. of the inhabitants of India are dependent on agricultural pursuits. Most of the agricultural holdings are less than 5 acres. Food crops occupy four-fifths of the cultivated land. There are about 159,000,000 cattle, or about a quarter of the world's cattle population.

Industrial

The output of coal in 1961 was 55,800,000 tons. Production of finished steel in 1961 was 2,840,000 tons. Cement 8,200,000 tons (metric) in 1961 against 7,835,000 tons in 1960. Paper production 364,000 tons, cotton cloth 5,127 mill. yards in 1961 and yarn 1,887 mill. lbs. as compared with 5,048 mill. yards and 1,737 mill. lbs. in 1960.

In 1961 21,042 metric tons of aluminium were produced. The yield of gold in 1960 was 4,995 kgs. Manganese ores have taken an important place among the minerals produced in India.

BANKS AND BANKING

The number of scheduled banks was 84 and the number of offices of scheduled banks was 4,329

in Oct., 1961. Advances by scheduled banks totalled Rs. 12,014 mill. at April 27, 1962.

COMMUNICATIONS

Civil Aviation.—India occupies an important place in civil aviation among the nations of the world. All air lines were nationalized in 1953 and two corporations formed, Indian Airlines Corporation and Air India International (now Air India). During 1961, Indian aircraft flew about 33,100,000 miles, carrying about 1,060,000 passengers and nearly 182,200,000 lbs of cargo and mail on scheduled and non-scheduled services together. At the end of 1961, 86 aerodromes were maintained by the Civil Aviation Department of the Government.

Railways.—The railways are grouped into eight administrative zones, Southern, Central, Western, Northern, North-Eastern, North-East Frontier, Eastern and South-Eastern.

In 1960-61, passengers "originating" were 1,615,804,000, passenger mileage 48 580,975,000, goods traffic freight-ton miles 53 714 803,000.

Gross Traffic Receipts (1960-61) Rs. 4,568 million. Working expenses, Rs. 3,689 million. Net railway revenues, Rs. 879 million.

Roads.—At the end of March, 1961, it was estimated that there were 144,000 miles of surfaced roads and over 250,000 miles of unsurfaced roads. The national highway system covers about 14,880 miles.

Ports.—The chief seaports are Ψ Bombay, Calcutta, Madras, Cochin, Visakhapatnam and Kandla (Kutch). There are over 150 minor working ports with varying capacity.

Shipping.—At the end of November, 1961, 175 ships totalling 905,000 gross tons were on the Indian Register.

Postal.—In 1960-61 there were 76,862 post offices, 11,229 telegraph offices, and 481,000 telephones.

DEFENCE

The supreme command of the armed forces is vested in the President. Administrative and operational control resides in the Army, Navy and Air Headquarters under the supervision of the Ministry of Defence.

The Army has 3 Commands, Southern, Eastern and Western, with headquarters at Poona, Lucknow and Simla respectively. A Territorial Force was inaugurated in Oct. 1949. It is intended to act as a second line of defence. A National Cadet Corps, with senior, junior, and girls' division, has also been raised.

The Indian Navy consists of an aircraft-carrier, two cruisers and a number of destroyers, frigates, minesweepers and auxiliary vessels. A Naval aviation wing and a hydrographic office have also been set up. The Navy's air station is at Cochin.

The Indian Air Force is organised in four formations, the Operational Command at Palam, the Training Command at Bangalore, the Maintenance Command at Kanpur and the Eastern Air Command. It also has seven Auxiliary Squadrons.

EDUCATION

In 1959-60, there were 1,351 pre-primary schools, 320 586 primary schools, 57 863 secondary schools, 3,836 vocational and technical schools, 56,434 special education schools, 946 arts and science colleges, 728 professional colleges, 177 special education colleges, 42 research institutions and 40 universities. 62.1 per cent. of children between the ages of 6 and 11 were estimated to have been at school in 1960-61, 22.8 per cent. between 11 and 14 and 11.5 per cent. between 14 and 17.

STATES AND ADMINISTRATIONS OF THE REPUBLIC OF INDIA

MADRAS

Madras (area, 50,132 sq. miles; population 33,650,917) was not only the oldest, but the most important of the three original Presidencies before Clive's conquest of Bengal, though it was small in extent until the annexation of the Carnatic in 1801. The state has no good natural harbour, but an artificial harbour has been constructed at Madras at great expense. The state is not naturally fertile, though irrigation systems in the river deltas have enormously increased the produce of the soil, and have yielded a large profit to the State. Rice, millet, and other food grains, oilseeds, cotton, indigo, spices, tobacco, tea, etc., are cultivated. Madras is served by the Southern Railway. About 91 per cent. of the people are Hindus. The language principally spoken is Tamil, though Telugu, Malayalam and Kannada are also spoken. Madurai (424,975) and Tiruchinopoly (249,933), famous for their Hindu temples, are the chief cities after the capital.

MAHARASHTRA

The State of Maharashtra was formed on May 1, 1960 as a result of the bifurcation of the former Bombay State.

It stretches on the west coast of India between 22-1° and 16-4° north latitude and 72-6° and 80-9° east longitude. The State is bounded by the Arabian Sea on the west, Gujarat in the north-west, Madhya Pradesh in the north, Andhra Pradesh in the south-east and Mysore and Goa in the south. The region is drained by a number of rivers, large and small, most of them forming tributaries of the Tapi, Godavari, Bhima, Krishna, Wardha and Wainganga. The relief of the land shows high plateaux with plains on the western coast and along the river basins.

Maharashtra State contains 118,741 square miles with a population of 39,504,294 (provisional figures of the 1961 census). It is a predominantly urban and industrial State. According to the 1961 Census, 28.2 per cent. of the population is urban. Marathi is the principal language. 63.08 per cent. of the population are dependent on agriculture. The railway systems running through Maharashtra State are the Western Railway running from Bombay to the north, the Central Railway to the north-east and south-east and the Southern Railway running from Poona to the south and the South-East Railway. According to provisional estimates of the 1961 population census the following 12 cities in the State have a population of more than 100,000. GUJARAT

On May 1, 1960, the new state of Gujarat, consisting of the northern part of Bombay State, was set up with a temporary capital at Ahmedabad, the remainder of the former Bombay state adopting the name of Maharashtra (see above). Gujarat, consisting of the districts of Kutch, Banaskantha, Mehsana, Sabarkantha, Ahmedabad, Kaira, Panchmahal, Baroda, Broach, Surat, Rajkot, Surendranagar, Junagadh, Jamnagar, Bhavnagar, Amreli and Dangs has a total area of 72,226 square miles and a population of 20,612,283 (1961 census, preliminary).

WEST BENGAL

West Bengal has an area of 33,928 sq. miles and a population (1961 census) of 34,967,634. The old Bengal Presidency included practically all Northern and Central India, but subsequently Bengal Province consisted of part of Bengal proper with Bihar, Orissa and Chota Nagpur. This Province of Bengal ceased to exist in 1947 when it was divided, West Bengal forming part of India and East Bengal part of Pakistan. The state of Cooch Behar was merged with West Bengal on Jan. 1, 1950, and the French settlement of Chandernagore, which came under Indian administration on May 2, 1950, was merged with West Bengal on Oct. 2, 1954. On Nov. 1, 1956, certain territories of Bihar were transferred to West Bengal.

The chief products are rice, oilseeds, sugar cane, tobacco, jute, silk, tea, coal, mesta and potatoes. West Bengal is now served by three State Railways, the Eastern Railway, the South-Eastern Railway and the North-Eastern Railway. The Eastern Railway is the great artery of the Ganges Valley.

Howrah (pop. District, 1,611,373; Town, 433,630), the great jute manufacturing centre, adjoins Calcutta.

CHIEF CITY Ψ Calcutta. Population (including Howrah) 3,132,124; Calcutta proper 2,689,494. Governor, Shrimati Padmaja Naidu.

ANDAMAN AND NICOBAR ISLANDS

The Andamans are a group of 204 islands of various sizes, lying between the 6th and 14th parallels in the Bay of Bengal. The northern-most "Landfall Island" is 560 miles from the mouth of Hooghly River. The main part of the group is composed of five large islands, viz., North Andaman, Middle Andaman, South Andaman, Baratang and Rutland Islands, generally known as the Great Andamans. To the south of Great Andamans is the island of Little Andaman. The extreme length of the Great Andaman Islands is 290 miles and the extreme breadth 32 miles, the total land area being approximately 2,580 sq. miles. These islands consist mostly of a mass of hills covered with dense tropical forests and separated by three straits and several creeks; there are several very good harbours—Port Blair, Port Cornwallis, Mayabunder and Port Elphinstone.

The Nicobar Islands, numbering 19 from Car Nicobar in the North to Great Nicobar in the South, lie between Little Andaman and Sumatra. The southern island of Great Nicobar is about 100 miles from Pulo Brasse off Achin Head in Sumatra and the northern island of Car Nicobar 75 miles from Little Andaman. The extreme length of the sea space occupied by the Nicobars is 163 miles and the extreme width 26 miles. The most important harbour in the area is Nancowrie.

The total area of the Territory is 3,215 sq. miles, with a population of 63,438. Some 72 per cent. of the total area is covered by forests, from which 28,227 tons of timber were exported in 1959-60. Plywood is produced in the islands. Other important products are coconuts and rice, about 16,504 acres being under paddy cultivation in 1960-61. Budget estimates for 1960-61 were: Revenue, Rs. 15,859,000; Expenditure, Rs. 51,404,000.

The Andaman Islands are administered by the President acting through a Chief Commissioner.

CHIEF CITY, Port Blair. Population, 14,090.

Pakistan

The Republic of Pakistan consists of two geographical units of West Pakistan and East Pakistan situated respectively to the north-west and north-east of the Republic of India and separated by about 1,100 miles of Indian territory.

GOVERNMENT

Pakistan was constituted as a Dominion under the Indian Independence Act, 1947, which received the Royal Assent on July 18, 1947.

In terms of the Act the Dominion of Pakistan consisted of former territories of British India, as shown in the above table. The Punjab States of Bahawalpur and Khairpur, with a Muslim population of almost 80 per cent, and with Muslim rulers, acceded to Pakistan in October, 1947. Boundaries of the Provinces of East Bengal and of Punjab (West Punjab) were defined by a Boundary Commission presided over by Sir Cyril Radcliffe, K.B.E., Q.C. (now Viscount Radcliffe). The following States have also acceded to Pakistan: the Baluchistan States of Kalat, Mekran, Las Bela and Kharan, and the North-West Frontier States of Amb, Chitral, Dir and Swat. The States of Junagadh and Manavadar which had acceded to Pakistan, were occupied by India on November 8, 1947.

The Constitution of Pakistan was passed on February 29, 1956. Pakistan became a Republic on March 23, 1956, when the provisions of the Constitution came into force. On October 7, 1958, however, this Constitution was abrogated and Pakistan came under martial law. General (now Field Marshal) Mohammed Ayub Khan, Commander-in-Chief of the Pakistan Army, was appointed the Chief Martial Law Administrator. On October 28, 1958, General Mohammed Ayub Khan also became President of Pakistan. On March 1, 1962, the President announced a new Constitution, setting up a system of Government in which all executive authority would vest in the President. Elections for the National Assembly took place on April 28, and the new Assembly met at Rawalpindi on June 8.

THE JUDICATURE

There is a Supreme Court of Pakistan. In addition the High Court of West Pakistan sits at Lahore, Karachi and Peshawar, and the High Court of East Pakistan at Dacca.

DEFENCE

Army.—8 Infantry Regiments, 6 Armoured Corps units, 8½ Artillery Regiments and 34 Engineer units. Most infantry regiments of the Indian Army with a Moslem majority were allotted to Pakistan. In March, 1950, it was announced that the Government had decided to introduce legislation to establish a Territorial Force.

Navy.—The Navy consists of 1 cruiser, 5 destroyers, 2 frigates, 6 minesweepers, 1 survey ship, 1 salvage vessel, 1 harbour oiler, and auxiliary vessels.

EDUCATION

The latest census (1961) shows that 15.3 per cent. of the total population of Pakistan (i.e. 14,382,700 persons) is literate. On Dec. 13, 1958, the President announced the formation of a National Commission on Education, charged with a thorough scrutiny of the education system. Its Report was approved by the Cabinet on Jan. 8, 1960. Its major recommendations were incorporated in the final draft of the Second Five-Year Plan.

Apart from the three Universities of Dacca, Panjab and Sind, which were inherited at the time of partition, three more, at Peshawar, Karachi and Rajshahi (in East Pakistan), have been established.

The Panjab University, founded in 1882, is mainly an affiliating University, but also provides for post-graduate teaching and research in a few subjects. It had 15,999 full-time students in 1962.

The University of Dacca (13,176 full-time students) was established in 1921 as an unitary residential university, but had to assume, on partition, the additional functions of an affiliating University for colleges in East Pakistan.

The University of Sind (9,728 full-time students), created in 1947 and removed from Karachi to Hyderabad in May 1952, is an affiliating and examining University. Peshawar University (2,113 full-time students) was founded in 1950. It is a teaching, residential and affiliating University. The Federal University of Karachi (1,430 students) was established in 1951. It is being developed into an unitary residential university with all the colleges in Karachi as its constituent members and a number of halls of residence under its control and supervision. The Rajshahi University (17,849 full-time students) was established in East Pakistan in 1953, as a teaching and affiliating University.

The number of educational institutions in Pakistan in 1960 was: Primary Schools, 44,222; Secondary Schools, 6,030; Colleges of Arts and Science, 186; Medical Colleges, 12; Law Colleges, 10; Engineering Colleges, 6.

LANGUAGE

Urdu and Bengali are the two main languages of Pakistan. English is the official language.

IRRIGATION

Pakistan has one of the longest irrigation systems in the world. The total area irrigated is about 23,000,000 acres.

PRODUCTION

The estimated acreage (000's omitted) of principal crops in 1959-60 was: rice 22,487, wheat 12,032, hazra 2,003, jowar 1,097, sugar cane 1,302, rape and mustard 2,047, cotton 3,324, jute 1,528, maize 1,132, gram 3,154 and barley 550 acres.

FOREIGN TRADE

Year	Exports	Imports	Balance
	Mill. Rupees
1957	1,603.4	2,096.5	-493.1
1958	1,416.9	1,887.8	-470.9
1959	1,527.1	1,681.0	-153.9
1960	1,873.1	3,106.2	-1,233.1

COMMERCE

The chief exports of the country are raw jute, cotton, hides and skins, oil-seeds and tea. Industrial machinery and mill work, metals and ores, chemicals and drugs, mineral oils and hardware, instruments and spare parts are the principal imports.

FINANCE

The Pakistan rupee was revalued on Aug. 1, 1955. Exchange rates are now Rs.100 = £7.5 sterling or U.S. $21.

The State Bank, established July 1, 1948, has a capital of Rs.30,000,000, 51 per cent. of which is held by the Government. Deposits at all banks in the country on June 30, 1960 amounted to Rs. 3,082,300,000. There are 73 insurance companies operating in the country, of which 28 are Pakistani businesses. Total life insurance in force in Pakistan at the end of 1959 was Rs.941,250,000. New life insurance business during the year amounted to Rs.257,990,000.

Revenue and Expenditure since 1957-58 are as follows:—

Revenue: (1957-58) Rs. 1,525.0 million; (1958-59) (15 months) Rs. 2,070.2 million; (1959-60, Provisional) Rs. 1,887.7 million; (1960-61, revised estimate) Rs. 1,967.4 million; (1961-62, Budget Estimate) Rs. 2,155.3 million.

The chief items of revenue for 1961-62 are: Customs Rs.604.0 million; Central Excise Duties Rs.336.9 million; Income Tax and Corporation Tax Rs. 310.6 million; Sales Tax Rs.247.3 million; Defence Services Rs. 75.0 million and Debt Services Rs. 129.4 million.

The chief items of expenditure for 1961-62 are: Defence Rs.985.9 million; Civil Administration Rs.445.5 million; Debt Services Rs.219.5 million; Civil Works and Central Road Fund Rs.30.6 million.

COMMUNICATIONS

There are 7,074 miles of railway line in the country. Of this total mileage, West Pakistan has 5,362 miles of railway line and East Pakistan has 1,712 miles. The Pakistan railways comprise two independent railway systems—the Pakistan Western Railway in West Pakistan and the Pakistan Eastern Railway in East Pakistan—managed and owned by the State.

ψ The principal sea ports are Karachi and Chittagong in West and East Pakistan respectively. These two ports handled in 1959-60 over 4,500,000 tons and 2,643,000 tons of traffic respectively. The anchorage of Chalna, established in Dec. 1950, on the river Pussur in East Bengal to relieve congestion of traffic at Chittagong, now has nine moorings.

Karachi is the main air port, and being situated on the trunk air routes of the world, holds an important position. Pakistan International Airlines is the chief air transport company in Pakistan.

Post and telegraph facilities are available to every country in the world.

PROVINCES OF PAKISTAN

PROVINCES OF THE ISLAMIC REPUBLIC OF PAKISTAN

1. WEST PAKISTAN

The Establishment of West Pakistan Act, 1955, came into force on October 3, 1955, and incorporated: (1) the former Governors' Provinces of the Punjab, North-West Frontier and Sind; (2) the former Chief Commissioners' Provinces of Baluchistan and Karachi; (3) the States of Bahawalpur and Khairpur and the Baluchistan States Union; (4) the Tribal Areas of Baluchistan, the Punjab and the North-West Frontier and the States of Amb, Chitral, Dir and Swat, into the Province of West Pakistan with effect from October 14, 1955.

At the 1961 Census the total population, excluding the Federal Territory of Karachi, was 40,815,000 (preliminary figures).

West Pakistan (including the Federal Capital), has an area of 300,839 square miles; 97.1 per cent. of the population are Muslim; 0.5 per cent. Caste Hindu; 1.1 per cent. Scheduled Caste Hindu and 1.3 per cent. Christian. Running through West Pakistan are five great rivers, the Indus, and its tributaries, Jhelum, Chenab, Ravi, and Sutlej. The upper reaches of these rivers are in Kashmir and their sources are in the lofty Himalayas.

West Pakistan is one of the richest wheat-producing areas populated by a hardy peasantry with great martial traditions. Of the other crops grown, cotton, rice, gram, jowar and oil-seeds are the most important. There are large deposits of rock salt, which with cotton forms the principal exports. The Province is served by the Pakistan Western Railway.

Chief City and Headquarters of West Pakistan: Lahore (population, 1961 census preliminary, 1,297,000).

Governor, Malik Amir Mohammad Khan of Kalabagh.

2. EAST PAKISTAN

The Province of East Pakistan: area, 55,134 sq. miles, population (1961 census), 50,844,000 (of whom 76.8 per cent. are Muslim; 10 per cent. Caste Hindu; 12 per cent. Scheduled Caste Hindu; 0.3 per cent. Christian and 0.9 per cent. others), comprises the Eastern territories of the partitioned province of Bengal and Sylhet, formerly a district of Assam (excluding certain thanas in the Karimganj sub-division), and the Chittagong Hill tracts.

CHIEF CITY (and Headquarters of East Pakistan): Dacca. Population 411,000 (1951 Census).

Governor, Ghulam Faruque.

CAPITAL OF PAKISTAN

An executive order was issued on Aug. 2 1960, proclaiming Rawalpindi (240,000) as Capital of Pakistan in place of Karachi, and providing that Karachi would in future be known as the Federal Territory of Karachi. Karachi Territory had a population of 2,153,000 (preliminary figures) at the 1961 Census; Metropolitan population, 1,926,000.

Ghana

Ghana (formerly the British Colony of the Gold Coast) is situated on the Gulf of Guinea, between 3° 15' W. long. and 1° 12' E. long. It is bounded on the west by the Republic of Ivory Coast, on the east by the Republic of Togo, and on the south by the sea. It extends about 334 miles along the coast-line and inland to an average distance of 440 miles or to 11° N. lat. Although a tropical country, Ghana is cooler than many countries within similar latitudes.

Area and Population.—Ghana has a total area of 92,100 sq. miles with a total population at the Census of 1960 of 6,690,730. Distribution by Administrative regions was as follows:—

Region	Sq. miles	Population Census, 1960
Eastern.....	8,750	1,088,843
Western.....	9,494	1,348,844
Central.....	3,656	..
Ashanti.....	9,700	1,108,548
Brong Ahafo.....	14,900	588,724
Volta.....	8,000	782,547
Northern.....	27,122	1,282,164
Upper.....	10,478	..
	92,100	6,690,730

Figures for the Eastern Region exclude the population of the capital district, Accra, which with Adangbe-Shai, Tema and the Accra Rural Areas had a population in 1960 of 491,060.

GOVERNMENT

The Gold Coast region of West Africa was first visited by European traders in the fifteenth century. The Gold Coast Colony, Ashanti, the Northern Territories and Transvolta-Togoland, the constituent parts of the new State, came under British administration at various times, the original Gold Coast Colony, the coastal and Southern areas, being first constituted in 1874; Ashanti in 1901; and the Northern Territories Protectorate in 1902. The territory of Transvolta-Togoland, part of Togo, a former German colony, was mandated to Britain by the League of Nations after the First World War, and remained under British administration as a United Nations Trusteeship after the Second World War. After a plebiscite in May, 1956, under the auspices of the United Nations, the territory was integrated with the Gold Coast Colony.

The former Gold Coast Colony and associated territories became the independent state of Ghana and a member of the British Commonwealth on March 6, 1957, under the Ghana Independence Act, 1957 and adopted a Republican constitution on July 1, 1960.

UNITED KINGDOM (High Commissioner), Kwesi Armah, 13 Belgrave Square, London, S.W.1.

Ghana has High Commissioners in Canada, India and Nigeria; Commissioners in Ceylon and Sierra Leone and Ambassadors in U.S.A., U.S.S.R., France, W. Germany, Israel, Switzerland, Yugoslavia, U.A.R., Sudan, Ethiopia, Liberia, Ivory Coast, Tunisia (with Morocco and Libya); and in Japan and China.

UNITED KINGDOM HIGH COM- MISSIONER

P.O. Box 296, High Street, Accra.

High Commissioner, Sir Geoffrey de Freitas, K.C.M.G.
Deputy High Commissioner, T. W. Keeble.

British Council Representative, F. H. Cawson.

LEGISLATURE

The Republican constitution of Ghana came into effect on July 1, 1960. It provides for a parliament consisting of the President and the National Assembly of 104 members, with a maximum term of 5 years. A further 20 seats have been created for representatives of the women of Ghana. At least one session of a month's duration is held each quarter. Electoral constituencies remained as for the Legislative Assembly and voting is on a basis of adult suffrage.

Houses of Chiefs

The Constitution guarantees the office of Chief in Ghana as existing by customary law and usage and provides for the establishment of Houses of Chiefs for each Region by Act of Parliament, and for a Head for each Region; the Asantehene to be Head of Ashanti, and for each of the other Regions a head to be chosen by the House of Chiefs. Houses of Chiefs have power under the Constitution to consider any matters referred to them by a Minister or by the Regional Assembly and may at any time offer advice to any Minister.

LEGAL SYSTEM

The Supreme Court of Ghana is the final Court of Appeal and consists of the Chief Justice and four Judges. The High Court has unlimited jurisdiction in all matters—criminal and civil. Cases go from the High Court, on appeal to the Supreme Court. The High Court, to which at present nine High Court Judges are appointed, sits in various parts of Ghana for administrative convenience. One High Court Judge sitting alone may constitute the High Court. A Circuit Court sits in each of the seven Circuits into which Ghana is divided. A Circuit Judge has original jurisdiction in all criminal cases except those which attract the sentence of death or life imprisonment and has original jurisdiction in civil matters where the subject matter is of the value of £500 or less. In addition circuit courts have appellate jurisdiction in cases from District Magistrate's Courts within their Circuits.

A District Magistrate has original jurisdiction within his Magisterial District, of which there are seven in Ghana. Seventeen Magistrates are at present appointed to sit in the various districts according to the amount of work. They deal with all criminal matters of a minor nature. Cases of more serious nature and civil cases where the value of the subject matter is of £150 or less are committed to Circuit or High Courts. The District Magistrate has appellate jurisdiction in all matters dealt with by the Local Court except land and succession cases which latter cases go on appeal to the High Court.

COMMUNICATIONS

There are four aerodromes in Ghana, situated at Accra, Takoradi, Kumasi and Tamale. Accra Airport is an international airport and is the terminus for services from the United Kingdom, the Northern Region, Ashanti and the Western Province. There is a National Meteorological Service, providing forecasting, climatological and agrometeorological services.

Railway communications consist of a main line running from Takoradi to Kumasi thence to Accra, a distance of 357 miles, with branches from Kojokrom to Sekondi (3 miles), Tarkwa to Preslea (18 miles) and Achimota to Tema (16 miles). A link of 51 miles between the Huni-Valley-Kade line at Achiasi Junction and the Accra-Kumasi line at Kotoku was opened in 1956. Total route mileage is 591 miles of 3' 6" gauge track. On June 30, 1961, the mileage of all-weather roads was 4,425, comprising 2,002 miles of bitumen surface and 2,423 miles gravel surface. In addition there are 700 miles of roads at present maintained by the regional organization and local authorities.

Takoradi Harbour consists of two breakwaters enclosing a water area of 22 acres. Seven quay berths are situated on the lee breakwater—five are used for the handling of general cargo, one is leased specially for manganese exports and one is used for shallow draft colliers. The first stage is now being completed on the construction of Tema, Africa's largest artificial harbour and a prospective major port of the South Atlantic. Tema Harbour provides a sheltered water area of 500 acres, with a total length of three miles. The four-berth quay, the dock yard, oil berth, fishing harbour and slipways form part of the facilities within the harbour proper to accommodate shipping and to provide safe anchorage in a 42-foot depth. Extensive shore works include 20 miles of rail sidings, two cocoa sheds with a clear span of 170 feet, transit sheds and a 100-foot lighthouse. New harbour extensions will provide another four berths. As part of the Tema Harbour project a new town, Tema, is being built, its ultimate population now envisaged at 50,000. Many light industries are already operating there.

Cyprus

Area and Population.—Cyprus is a large island in the Mediterranean Sea, between N. lat. 34° 33' and 35° 41', and E. long. 32° 20' and 34° 35'. It is about 40 miles distant from the nearest point of Asla Minor, and 60 miles from Latakia on the Syrian coast. The distance to Port Said, at the entrance of the Suez Canal, is 238 miles. The larger part of the island is an irregular parallelogram, 100 miles long and 60 to 30 broad, from which a narrow peninsula, 5 or 6 miles wide, runs out for 40 miles towards the north-east. The area is 3,572 square miles. In 1960 the estimated population was 563,000. There are two major communities, Greek Cypriots (78.8 per cent.) and Turkish Cypriots (17.5 per cent.); and minorities of Armenians, Maronites and others.

GOVERNMENT

Cyprus was formally annexed to Great Britain on Nov. 5, 1914, on the outbreak of war with Turkey. From 1925-60 it was a crown colony administered by a Governor, assisted by an Executive Council and also for a time by a partly-elected Legislative Council. A state of emergency was declared in November, 1955, and Archbishop Makarios was deported. Further proposals for a workable constitution made in 1956 and a seven-year-plan for the government of Cyprus in association with Greece and Turkey were rejected by the Greek Government and Greek Cypriots. Archbishop Makarios was released in March, 1957, but was not allowed to return immediately to Cyprus. Following a meeting at Zürich between the Prime Ministers of Greece and Turkey, a conference was held in London and an agreement was signed on February 19, 1959, between the United Kingdom, Greece and Turkey, which provided that Cyprus would be a Republic.

Constitution.—Under the Cyprus Act, 1960, the island became an independent sovereign republic on August 16, 1960. The constitution provides for a Greek Cypriot President and a Turkish Cypriot Vice-President elected for a five-year term by the Greek and Turkish communities respectively. A Council of Ministers (7 Greek, 3 Turkish) is designated by the President and Vice-President, and a House of Representatives elected for five years by universal suffrage of each community separately, 70 per cent. by the Greek community and 30 per cent. by the Turkish. The number of representatives is fixed by agreement between the communities. The President and the Vice-President have the right of final veto on the decisions of the Council of Ministers and on any law or decision of the House of Representatives concerning foreign affairs, except participation in international organizations and alliances in which Greece and Turkey both take part. A Communal Chamber has been set up for each community with the right to levy taxes on its own community and with authority in matters of religion, education, culture and matters of purely communal character.

British Base Areas.—The United Kingdom retained full sovereignty and jurisdiction over two areas—Akrotiri-Episkopi-Paramali and Dhekelia-Pergamos-Ayios Nikolaos-Xylophagou—and use of roads and other facilities. The British Administrator of these areas is appointed by the Queen and is responsible to the Secretary of State for Air.

Commonwealth Status.—On March 13, 1961, the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference in London accepted unanimously an application by Cyprus for Commonwealth membership.

Production and Industries.—Agriculture is the industry which provides the greatest employment in Cyprus, the chief agricultural products being:—Cereals, carobs (locust beans), vine products, potatoes, onions, cheese, almonds, citrus and other fresh and dried fruit, tobacco and legumes. Various kinds of livestock are raised, donkeys and mules being the principal exports. The value of agricultural and livestock exports in 1961 was £6,176,000. By value of product the main industry of Cyprus is mining. The chief mineral extracted is pyrites. The value of minerals exported in 1961 was £8,418,000.

Education.—Each religious denomination has its own elementary schools. There are about 715 Government elementary schools and about 60 secondary schools. There are also two teachers' training colleges and a number of technical schools. There is a forestry college which accepts students from all over the world.

Communications.—Ψ Famagusta is the main seaport. In 1960 1,951 steamships (tonnage 3,783,549) and 318 sailing vessels (tonnage 16,361) engaged in the foreign trade. Air passenger traffic in, out and through Nicosia rose by 3,978 over the previous year to 137,210 and freight decreased by 96 tons to 1,181 metric tons. Nicosia Flight Information Centre controls and safeguards movements of civil aircraft through the Eastern Mediterranean.

ADEN.

(Aden Colony and Protectorate)

The area of Aden Colony is 75 sq. miles and of the Protectorate about 112,000 sq. miles. The estimated population of the Colony (1962) is over 200,000. The estimated population of the Protectorate is about 1,000,000.

The peninsula of Aden, situated on the southern coast of Arabia and lying on the Red Sea trade-route between Europe and the East, was first occupied by the British in 1839. Aden was always an important centre. Its trade decayed after the Portuguese discovery of the Cape route, but with the opening of the Suez Canal it regained more than its old importance and is now a great oil bunkering and coaling station and port of call, and an emporium for the trade of the adjacent African and Arabian coasts. Aden is a free port. The chief industries are fishing, salt, soap and cigarette manufacture, aluminium pressing of domestic utensils and dyeing and printing of cloth. The traffic in arms and ammunition is subject to special regulations. The British Government has treaty engagements with, and subsidises, the neighbouring Arab tribes, both inland and along the coast, from the Straits of Bab-al-Mandeb to Muscat territory at Ras Darbhat 'Ali.

Perim.—A small unfortified island with an area of 5 square miles was occupied in 1857 and is administratively attached to Aden. The port has been closed since November, 1936, on the withdrawal of the Perim Coal Company from the island. Population, 283.

Kamaran.—The island of Kamaran in the Red Sea about 200 miles north of Perim was taken by the British from the Turks in 1915, and is administered under the control of the Governor of Aden. It has an area of 88 square miles and a population of about 2,200. Commissioner, Kamaran, Col. R. G. W. E. Alban, O.B.E.

The Aden Protectorate to the West of approximate longitude 46° is bounded on the East by the Qara country, which is part of the dominions of the Sultan of Muscat and Oman, and by Saudi Arabia, and on the North and West by the Great Desert and the Kingdom of Yemen, whose Southern boundary was temporarily fixed by Article III of the Treaty of San'a (February, 1934) by which His Majesty's Government and the Yemen Government agreed to maintain the status quo frontier as it was on the date of the signing of the treaty. The coastline of the Aden Protectorate, which is about 750 miles long, starts in the West from Husn Murad, opposite the island of Perim, and it runs eastward to Ras Dharbat 'Ali, where it meets the Sultanate of Muscat and Oman.

The Aden Protectorate is divided into two parts, the Western Aden Protectorate and the Eastern Aden Protectorate. The former consists of 18 Sultanates, the chiefs of which are all in protective treaty relations with Her Majesty's Government.

On February 11, 1950, "The Federation of Arab Amirates of the South" (now known as the "Federation of South Arabia") was inaugurated in the West Aden Protectorate, composed of the Sultanates of Audhali, Lower Yafat, and Fadhli, the Amirates of Baihan and Dhala, and the Sheikdom of Upper Aulahi. They were joined later by five other States—Lahej, Lower Aulahi, Dathina and Aqrabi from the Western Aden Protectorate and the Wahidi Sultanate from the Eastern Aden Protectorate. The Federation, which is governed by a constitution providing for a Supreme Council and a Federal Council, is open to other States in the Protectorate. Under a related treaty with Her Majesty's Government, the Federation continues to receive advice and financial and technical assistance from Her Majesty's Government. The treaty also provides for assistance and co-operation in defence and security. The objects of the Federation include concerted resistance to repeated incursions from the Yemen and the promotion of economic development programmes. The flag adopted by the Federation consists of an Islamic crescent moon with a central star and five horizontal stripes (black, yellow, green, yellow, blue).

The Eastern Aden Protectorate comprises the Hadhramaut (consisting of the Quaiti State of Shihr and Mukalla and the Kathiri State of Seiyun), and the Mahri Sultanate of Qishn and Socotra, all of which are in protective treaty relations with Her Majesty's Government. His Highness the Sultan of Shihr and Mukalla is the premier chief of the Eastern Aden Protectorate, and the Hadhramaut is the most important and best organised of these areas. It is bounded on the west by the Wahidi Sultanates and on the east by the Mahri Sultanate.

The Mahri Sultanate of Qishn and Socotra is the most easterly area in the Aden Protectorate, for it is bounded on the East by the Sultanate of Muscat and Oman. The Sultan of Qishn and Socotra resides on the island of Socotra (area 1,400 square miles) which lies 150 miles from Cape Guardafui. The island was occupied by the East India Company in 1834 and it came under British protection in 1886 when the treaty with the Mahri Sultan was concluded. It contains about 12,000 inhabitants principally engaged in livestock husbandry.

GOVERNMENT

Aden was for many years administered by the Government of India, and in 1932 it was separated from the Bombay Presidency and formed into a Province under a Chief Commissioner under the direct control of the Government of India. It ceased to be a part of British India on April 1, 1937, and is now a Crown Colony. The Governor has an Executive Council and a Legislative Council was established in 1947. In July 1955, the Legislative Council was enlarged and for the first time an elected element was introduced. At the end of 1958 the constitution was again modified to give the Council an elected majority, the elections for which were held in January 1959. The Legislative Council as it is now constituted consists of 23 members presided over by an impartial Speaker who has no vote. Twelve of the members are elected, 6 nominated, and 5 are ex officio, including the Chief Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Financial Secretary, the Assistant Chief Secretary (Colony) and a representative of the Commander, British Forces. Four elected members of the Legislative Council and one locally nominated member have been appointed ministers in charge of certain departments of Government, with full administrative and legislative responsibilities. The 5 ministers and the 5 ex officio members of the Legislative Council are also members of the 10-member Executive Council presided over by the Governor. There is a Court of unlimited civil and criminal jurisdiction called the Supreme Court from which appeals lie to the East African Court of Appeal.

THE BAHAMAS

The Bahamas (or Lucayos) are an archipelago near the British West Indies, lying between 20° 56'—27° 22' N. lat. and 72° 40'—79° 20'; W. long., and extending from the coast of Florida on the north-west to Haiti on the south-east. The group consists of twenty-two inhabited islands, and an immense number of islets and rocks, comprising an area of about 4,403 square miles, and a population estimated (1960) at 106,677, the most part being descendants of liberated Africans. The principal islands are: New Providence (containing the capital, Nassau), Cat Island, Abaco, Grand Bahama, Long Island, Eleuthera, Exuma, Harbour Island, Inagua, Andros Island, San Salvador (at one time known as Watling's Island), Rum Cay, Long Cay, Ragged Island and Bimini. Watling's Island was the first landfall in the New World made (October 12, 1492) by Christopher Columbus, who gave it the name of San Salvador, which has been restored by an Act of the Bahamas Legislature. Originally settled by Englishmen, the Bahamas were, in 1782, surprised by the Spanish, but at the Peace of Versailles were restored to the English. The climate is salubrious and in the winter Nassau, which is outside the tropics, is frequented by many visitors from all parts of the world.

Industries.—Tomatoes and okra are cultivated in large quantities for shipment to Canada and the United States. Lumbering and salt raking are the chief national industries.

Education.—Education is compulsory between the ages of 6 and 14. There are 147 state-maintained schools with a total roll of 18,796; there are also 51 denominational and private schools with a total roll of 7,517. There are 5 Government and 5 denominational secondary schools and 1 private secondary school.

Civil Aviation.—Facilities for external traffic are provided by Pan-American Airways, B.O.A.C., Trans-Canada Air Lines, Cunard Eagle and Mackey Air Lines, while Bahamas Airways and Bahamas Air Traders provide internal schedule and charter flights to the outlying islands. There are several daily air services between Nassau, Miami, Palm Beach, Fort Lauderdale, Tampa and St. Petersburg (Florida), and a regular service between Nassau and Montego Bay, Jamaica, besides regular trunk communication with London, New York, Toronto, Montreal, Bermuda and Kingston.

Communications.—There is a General Post Office in Nassau, 4 branch offices in New Providence and 106 sub-offices in the Out Islands. In 1961, 12,050,000 letters and prints were handled. Wireless and telephone services are in operation to all parts of the world. There are 64 radio stations among the islands.

BASUTOLAND

(The Territory of Basutoland)

Basutoland is an enclave within the Republic of South Africa and is bounded north and west by the Orange Free State, east by Natal and East Griqua-land, and south by the Cape Province, with an area of 11,716 square miles. The land, which is mountainous, rising to over 11,000 ft. in places, is held in trust for the Basotho by the Paramount Chief and is not made available for settlement. Sites are granted, however, for missions, schools, trading and commercial enterprises. The figures of the April, 1956 Census showed a population of 641,674 (638,857 Africans, 1,926 Europeans, 247 Asiatics and 644 persons of mixed race).

The economy of the Territory is predominantly agrarian.

The livestock census for 1960 gave the following figures:—

Cattle, 331,203; horses, 83,910; mules, 5,022; donkeys, 48,564; sheep, 1,037,372; goats, 579,165.

During 1960, 6,786,356 lb. of wool were exported to the value of £731,513 at the coast. The total quantity of mohair exported during 1960 was 1,180,670 lb. valued at £371,618 at the coast.

Education.—In 1960 there were 1,052 primary schools and 21 secondary schools. The total enrolment of all schools was 137,947.

Communications.—There are no railways in Basutoland with the exception of 1 mile of the South African Railways which enters Basutoland at Maseru from the Orange Free State. A main road runs from Butha Buthe in Northern Basutoland to Quthing in the South. It connects all the Government Stations with the exception of Qacha's Nek and Mokhotlong. Qacha's Nek is accessible by road from Matatiele in East Griqualand and a jeep service up the Sani Pass to Mokhotlong has recently come into operation. There are 28 airstrips in the Territory, of which 5 are used by a regular internal air service, which carries mail and goods to and from otherwise inaccessible mountain regions. The remaining strips are held mainly by traders and Missions.

FINANCE

Basutoland is an extremely poor and unproductive country. The principal sources of revenue are customs and excise duty (£1,000,000), taxes (£500,000), and wool and mohair export duty (£800,000).

Total estimated revenue for 1961-62 is £2,000,000, and expenditure £2,700,000, the difference being met by a grant from the U.K. Government. There is no direct trade between the Territory and the U.K.

GOVERNMENT

Basutoland is an African territory without white settlers or landowners. It has a British administration which functions in conjunction with a hereditary chieftainship. As a result of recent constitutional reforms there are now an Executive Council and a Legislative Council. At the head of the administration is the Resident Commissioner, who works under the direction of the High Commissioner for Basutoland, the Bechuanaland Protectorate and Swaziland, and who is also the British Ambassador to the Republic of South Africa. For administrative purposes the territory is divided into nine districts each with a District Commissioner who works in close co-operation with the Principal and Ward Chiefs. The local authority in each district is the District Council which has certain local powers. Its members are elected from a single roll for Basotho and non-Basotho British subjects and British protected persons. As a result of constitutional reforms, which came into operation in March, 1960, the territory has an Executive Council, which is the main policy making body, and a Legislative Council known as the Basutoland National Council. The Executive Council consists of the Resident Commissioner, who acts as Chairman, the Government Secretary, Financial Secretary, Legal Secretary, three persons chosen by the Basutoland National Council from among their own number, and one person nominated by the Paramount Chief. The Basutoland National Council consists of 80 members, divided equally between elected and non-elected members. The former are elected by District Councils sitting as electoral colleges for that purpose. The non-elected element is made up of three of the official members of the Executive Council (excluding the Chairman), the Commissioner for Local Government, the 22 Principal and Ward Chiefs, and 14 persons nominated by the Paramount Chief. The Basutoland National Council has power to legislate for all persons in Basutoland in respect of all matters, save the following, which are the High Commissioner's matters: External Affairs and Defence, Internal Security, Currency, Public Loans, Customs and Excise, Copyright, Posts and Telegraphs and the recruitment, etc., of officers to the Public Service. The Basutoland courts of law consist of: (a) The Court of Appeal, (b) The High Court, (c) the Subordinate Courts, including the Courts of Judicial Commissioners and (d) Basotho Courts. Appeals lie to the Privy Council by leave of the Chief Justice of the High Commission Territories who is also President of the Court of Appeal, and has jurisdiction in all cases, both civil and criminal, which arise in the Territory

BECHUANALAND PROTECTORATE

The Bechuanaland Protectorate is bounded on the south and east by the Cape and Transvaal Provinces of the Union, on the north and north-east by Southern Rhodesia, the Zambesi and Cbobe (Linyanti) Rivers, and on the west by South-West Africa. It is about 500 miles long and 550 miles broad, with a total area of about 222,000 square miles. The population at the census of May, 1946, was 293,964, of whom 2,325 were whites and the remainder Africans with a few Indians and coloured.

The climate is healthy during part of the year. Malarial fever is prevalent in some districts during February, March, and April, but with ordinary precautions is not seriously detrimental to health. The country is essentially pastoral, although sorghum, maize, beans, pumpkins and melons are sown. Cattle thrive, and numbered 1,271,838 on Dec. 31, 1960. The population is almost entirely a native one, the principal tribes being those of Linchwe (Bakgafala), of Kgalir Sechele, O.B.E. (Bakwena), of Batboen, C.B.E. (Bangwaketse), of Mokgosi (Bamalete), of Elizabeth Pulane Moremi, Regent during the minority of Letsholathebe Moremi (Batawana), of Kgosi Matala (Batlokwa) and of Kebelepile (Barolong). The chieftainship of the largest tribe, the Bamangwato, is at present in abeyance.

Schemes for improvements in agriculture, medical services, education and communications, and schemes for combating soil erosion, investigating mineral resources, improving water supplies, irrigation dams, tribal granaries and roads and for improving living conditions are being carried out.

In 1960, there were 9 European and 206 African schools with enrolments of 411 and 36,848. Estimated expenditure on education in 1960 was £138,520.

The railway from Kimberley to Vryburg and Mafeking traverses the Protectorate on its way to the Rhodesias. There is a telegraph line from Cape Province through from Mafeking, via Gaberones and Francistown to Bulawayo and Salisbury. The chief European centres are Lobatsi, Gaberones, Francistown, and Serowe.

SWAZILAND

(The Swaziland Protectorate)

Swaziland is the smallest of the three High Commission Territories in Southern Africa. Geographically and climatically, it is divisible into four physiographic provinces; the broken mountainous Highveld of the west, adjacent to the Drakensburg, with altitudes averaging over 4,000 ft., the Middleveld which is mostly mixed farming country, about 2,000 ft. lower, and the Lowveld, a hot woodland region, bounded on the east by the Lubombo mountains, with an average altitude of 1,500 ft. The Lubombo mountains form the fourth physiographic province. Four rivers, the Komati, Usutu, Umbuluzi and Ingwavuma, flow from west to east, cutting their way through the Lubombo mountains to the Indian Ocean. The exploitation of these rivers is particularly important to the agricultural development of the middle and bush veld, where irrigation projects are giving the scenery a different aspect. The total area is 6,705 sq. miles and the estimated population figure in 1961 was 269,500 (260,000 Swazis, 7,500 Europeans and 2,000 Eurafricans).

Cotton, tobacco, citrus, sugar and rice are the main exported agricultural products. Two mills in the lowveld were constructed in 1959 and are capable of crushing 80,000 tons of raw sugar a year. The Usutu Pulp Company with an initial capital of £5,000,000 was formed in 1959 and a mill to exploit Usutu forests was completed in 1961. There are rich asbestos and iron deposits in the west and asbestos is still the most valuable export of the territory.

In 1961 there were 341 African schools (181 Government-maintained) with a total enrolment of 39,660 pupils; 12 European schools, 11 of which were Government-aided and one private, with 1,552 pupils; and 5 Eurafrican Government-aided schools had 672 pupils.

A contract for the construction of Swaziland's first railway has been signed. Work began in mid-1962. The railway, which is scheduled to be completed by the end of 1964, will be about 140 miles long, starting at Ngwenya, 13 miles north-west of Mbabane, and connecting at the Mozambique frontier with an extension to the existing line between Lourenço Marques and Goba. Principal export traffic on the railway will be the iron ore mined at Bomvu Ridge, near Ngwenya, by the Swaziland Iron Ore Development Company. Mining is likely to begin in 1963.

There is a daily South African Railway motor omnibus service between Breyten and Mbabane (89 miles); Mbabane and Manzini (27 miles); Manzini and Stegl (43 miles); Manzini and Balegane (42 miles); Manzini and Piet Retief (72 miles); Piet Retief and Hlatikulu (50 miles); Goedgegun and Hluti (33 miles) and Hluti and Gollie (26 miles). There are post offices and telegraph and telephone offices at all the chief centres.

Mbabane (European population, 1,092), the headquarters of the Administration, is situated on the hills at an altitude of 4,000 feet. There are townships in the districts at Manzini, formerly Bremersdorp (European population, 652), Hlatikulu, Stegi, Goedgegun, Emlembe, Pigg's Peak, Mankaiana and Mhlambamati.

BERMUDA

The Bermudas, or Somers Islands, are a cluster of about 100 small islands (about 20 only of which are inhabited) situated in the west of the Atlantic Ocean, in 32° 15' N. lat. and 64° 51' W. long., the nearest point of the mainland being Cape Hatteras in North Carolina, about 570 miles distant. The total area is now approximately 20.59 sq. miles which includes 2.3 sq. miles leased to, or reclaimed by, the U.S. authorities between 1941 and 1957 under the terms of the 99 year lease. The civil population (1961) was 45,491 (16,566 white and 28,925 coloured and others). The colony derives its name from Juan Bermudez, a Spaniard, who sighted it before 1515, but no settlement was made until 1609 when Sir George Somers, who was shipwrecked here on his way to Virginia, colonized the islands.

Vegetation is prolific, the principal trees being the Bermuda cedar (juniper), formerly of great importance for shipbuilding, but since 1943 almost entirely destroyed by blight. At one time the islands enjoyed a flourishing export in onions, potatoes, and green vegetables, but the imposition of tariffs in U.S.A. made further growing for export unprofitable. The lily bud trade with Canada and U.S.A. and locally manufactured concentrates and pharmaceuticals are now the Colony's leading exports. Little food is produced except vegetables and fish, other foodstuffs being imported.

The Colony's economic structure is based on its importance as a tourist resort and as an air and naval base and from these sources most of its revenue is derived. It is now within less than two hours' air travel from New York, and in 1961 about 3,917 arriving and departing aircraft carried a combined total of 337,724 passengers. The island landing ground is used by B.O.A.C., Pan-American Airways, Trans-Canada, Eastern, Cunard Eagle Airways and 5 other scheduled air lines.

Education cost £604,186 in 1961. Free elementary education was introduced in May, 1949. In secondary schools, fees may reach £70 per annum, excluding books and stationery.

There is a broadcasting and television service, and overseas telephone and telegraph services are maintained. The use of motor cars was banned in the island from 1908 until 1946.

BRITISH BORNEO

Borneo is a large island in the Eastern Archipelago, extending from lat. 7° 4' N. to 4° 10' S. and from long. 108° 50' to 119° 20' E. It is about 850 miles in length and 600 in breadth, and contains an area of 284,000 square miles, divided by the equatorial line into two nearly equal portions. The population is probably about 2,750,000. It is thought that the island was discovered by the Portuguese in 1521. About 202,000 sq. miles are included within Indonesia. Of the remainder of the island (the North Coast) approximately 50,000 sq. miles form the Colony of Sarawak and 30,000 sq. miles the Colony of North Borneo (including Labuan), all British.

NORTH BORNEO

The former State of North Borneo was governed by the British North Borneo (Chartered) Company, the last Chartered Company to administer an area of the British Empire, from 1882 to 1942, and became part of the new Crown Colony of North Borneo on July 15, 1946.

The Colony of North Borneo occupies the northern part of the island of Borneo, and has an area of 29,388 square miles with a coast-line of approximately 900 miles. The interior is mountainous. Mt. Kinabalu, sacred to the Dusuns, is the highest mountain in the East Indies, rising to 13,455 feet. Most of the Colony is densely timbered. On the west coast there is a narrow coastal plain which supports the main agricultural and rubber production of the Colony.

The seventh census of the population was held on August 10, 1960. Since 1951, the year in which the last census was held, the total population of the Colony had increased by 36 per cent. from 334,121 to 454,421 and the native population by 26.1 per cent. from 243,009 to 306,498. The Chinese population has increased by 40.6 per cent. from 74,374 to 104,542. The number of Europeans, including Eurasians, has increased from 1,213 to 1,866. The native population comprises Dusuns (mainly agricultural), Bajaus and Brunels (fishing and agricultural), Muruts and Suluks and several smaller tribes. The main towns of the Colony are Sandakan (29,291) and Jesselton (21,497).

Climate.—North Borneo is favoured by a relatively cool climate for a place situated so near the Equator. The average mean temperature varies between a maximum of 88° and a minimum of 66° F. The annual rainfall varies from 60 to 180 inches according to locality.

Communications.—The only railway is a metre gauge line running from Jesselton on the coast through Beaufort (57 miles) to Melalap in the interior, a distance of 96 miles, with a branch line from Beaufort to Weston (20 miles). There are 238 miles of bituminous surfaced roads and 112 miles of gravel surfaced roads. Work is proceeding on the construction of a road system to connect the main centres of population. The internal air services of North Borneo, Brunel and Sarawak are operated by Borneo Airways Ltd. using Twin Pioneer aircraft. Aerodromes are established at Jesselton, Labuan, Kudat, Keningau, Ranau, Sandakan, Lahad Datu and Tawau. Jesselton has a daily service in each direction with Singapore, Sarawak and Brunel, provided by Viscount and DC3 aircraft of Malayan Airways Ltd.; and a weekly service in each direction with Hong Kong by DC6B aircraft of Cathay Pacific Airways Ltd.

Production.—The main industries of the Colony are timber extraction and the cultivation of rubber (estimated at 187,500 acres), rice (88,800 acres), coconuts (78,800 acres), tobacco (1,800 acres) and Manila hemp (4,400 acres). The cultivation of cocoa and oil palms is increasing. Fishing gives employment to a large number of local natives and Chinese. About four-fifths of the territory is still heavily timbered with many valuable species of hardwoods and soft hardwoods, of which the more important are scraya (Borneo cedar) and camphor.

Trade.—North Borneo is primarily a producer of raw materials, the principal exports of which, during 1961, were: timber, valued at $102,791,579; rubber, valued at $41,208,287; and copra, valued at $27,084,378, with exports of tobacco leaf, hemp and cutch being of lesser importance. Imports consist mainly of tobacco manufactures, petroleum products, foodstuffs (of which the largest single commodity is rice), clothing, machinery, metal manufactures and building materials.

GOVERNMENT

The constitution is regulated by Letters Patent under which a Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony is appointed. Under this instrument all sovereign rights were assumed over the former State of North Borneo and the Settlement of Labuan following the respective North Borneo and Labuan Cession Orders in Council of 1946. Legislative and Executive Councils, in place of the Advisory Council which had existed hitherto, were provided for in 1950 by amending Letters Patent. This Legislative Council was established by Order in Council in 1950 and its constitution was varied by amending Orders in Council in 1960 and 1961. The Legislative Council now consists of the Governor as President, four ex officio members, three official members and eighteen nominated members. The Constitution of the Executive Council, which is fixed by Royal Instructions, is now four ex officio members, two official and six nominated members.

BRUNEI

Sultan, H. H. Sir Omar Ali Saifuddin Wasa'dul Khairi Waddin, K.C.M.G., created 1950.
High Commissioner, Sir Dennis White, K.B.E., C.M.G.

Brunei is a British Protected State on the north-west coast of the island of Borneo, total area about 2,226 sq. miles, population (1960 census figure) 83,877 of whom 59,203 were of Malay or other indigenous race and 21,795 Chinese. The chief town, Brunei, with its rural area, has a population of about 37,000. The country has a humid tropical climate.

On September 29, 1959, His Highness the Sultan of Brunei promulgated the first written constitution. The Constitution provides for a Privy Council, an Executive Council, and a Legislative Council. The post of British Resident has been abolished, and there is instead a Mentri Besar (Chief Minister) appointed by the Sultan and responsible to him for the exercise of executive authority. The Sultan presides over the Privy Council and the Executive Council, and the Chief Minister over the Legislative Council. Under a new agreement concluded between Her Majesty The Queen and His Highness the Sultan, the United Kingdom Government continues to be responsible for defence and external affairs. The agreement provides for a High Commissioner to advise the Sultan on such matters.

BRITISH GUIANA

Area and Population.—British Guiana, which includes the Counties of Demerara, Essequibo, and Berbice, is situated on the north-east coast of South America and has a total area of 83,000 square miles with a seaboard of more than 500 miles. The population at December 31, 1961, was estimated at 590,140. There are about 23,600 aboriginal Indians. The colony is bounded on the south by Brazil, on the east by Surinam, on the west by Venezuela, and on the north and N.E. by the Atlantic. The coastland is very like the Netherlands, below the level of the sea, and intersected with canals constructed by its former Dutch owners. At the junction of the British Guiana-Venezuela-Brazil boundaries is Mt. Roraima, a flat topped mountain 9,000 feet above sea-level. There are many beautiful waterfalls in British Guiana: on the Potaro River (a tributary of the Essequibo) is the Kaitetu Fall, with a clear drop of 741 feet and a total fall of 822 feet, and on the Essequibo, the Horse Shoe Falls (discovered in 1934); a fall, with a drop of some 500 feet, discovered in 1934 on the Ipobe River, a tributary of the Kuribrong, has been named the Marina Fall, and other falls were discovered in 1938 on the Kamarang River, 80 miles north-east of Mt. Roraima. The seasons are divided into dry and wet, the two dry seasons lasting from the middle of February to the end of April, and from the middle of August to the end of November. The climate on the coast, for the greater part of the year, is pleasant and healthy. In the Aug.-Oct. period it is hot. The mean temperature is 80.3°, its extremes during 86 years ranging between 68° and 96°, but these are very rare, the usual extremes being 70° and 90° in the interior the mean temperature is higher—82.6°, its extremes ranging from 66° to 103°. The yearly rainfall is subject to marked variation, its mean on the coast lands averaging about 90 inches with an average of 58 inches on the savannahs. The daily average sunshine is a little over 6 hours and, except when rain is falling, dull and cloudy weather is rarely experienced.

Production, etc.—Much of the country is forest. The cultivated portion (about 280,000 acres, of 10 which 86,700 are under sugar-cane and 179,200 (in rice) is largely confined to the narrow coastal alluvial belt. There are extensive deposits of gold, diamonds, manganese, bauxite and mica.

Communications.—There were 9,066 telephones in use in 1961; 275 sub-exchanges, call offices and private branch exchanges are in operation. 36 land-line telegraph stations are maintained at coastal post offices and 4 wireless telegraph stations in the interior, providing communications with the coast. In Georgetown, a central radio station provides radio-telephone communication with 4 branch offices, 9 stations operated by other Government departments, 39 by private concerns, and 8 coastal ships and launches. Overseas radio and telephone services are provided by Cable and Wireless (W.I.) Ltd., in association with the Post Office telephone system. There are 137 post offices and postal agencies. There are two broadcasting stations, which are operated on a commercial basis by private enterprise. There are 95 miles of railway, and the British Guiana Airways (a government company) provides internal air-services.

Education.—On August 31, 1961, there were 337 Government-owned and Government-aided primary schools in the colony; 346 of these had an enrolment of 129,373 pupils. The 3 Government-owned and 12 of the 14 Government-aided secondary schools had an enrolment of 7,220 students, while there were about 30 private secondary schools with an estimated 3,500 students. At the Government Training College and the 3 vocational schools there were 150 and 588 full-time students respectively.

GOVERNMENT

The constitution of British Guiana, which came into effect on July 18, 1961, provides for a bicameral legislature—a Legislative Assembly of 35 members, elected by universal adult suffrage, and a nominated Senate of 13 members, eight appointed on the advice of the Premier, three after consultation with such persons as can speak for the differing political views of opposition groups in the Assembly, and two by the Governor in his discretion. The life of the Legislative Assembly is four years unless dissolved before this time. The Legislative Assembly is presided over by a Speaker, who may or may not be a member of the assembly. The senate is presided over by a President, chosen by members from amongst their own number. The Senate has delaying powers only. The executive body, called the Council of Ministers, consists of ten, presided over by the Premier, one of whom is the Attorney-General.

The Premier is the member of the Legislative Assembly who, in the judgment of the Governor, is best able to command the confidence of a majority of the members of that Chamber. At least one and not more than three members of the Council must be members of the Senate. The Council of Ministers is responsible to the Legislative Assembly.

The Governor must exercise all his powers in accordance with the advice of the Council of Ministers except where otherwise expressly stated (the notable exceptions are in respect of defence and external affairs).

BRITISH HONDURAS

British Honduras, in Central America, lies within 18° 29' 50" to 15° 53' 12" N. latitude and 89° 13' 28" to 88° 05' 11" W. longitude. Its extreme length and breadth are approximately 186 m. and 64 m. respectively; it is bounded on the north and north-west by Mexico (Quintana Roo Province, formerly Yucatan); on the west and south by Guatemala; and on the east by the Caribbean Sea. The total area (including offshore islands) is about 8,867 sq. miles, with a population (Census 1960) of 90,343 (44,586 males and 45,757 females). The climate generally is damp and hot, but not unhealthy. The temperature ranges from 59° to 92° F. The average lies between 75° and 80°, but this is considerably tempered by the prevailing sea-breezes.

The greater part of the country is covered by forest, of which 72 per cent. is high rain forest, 15.5 pine forest and dry savannah, 5.5 wet savannah and mangrove forest, the remaining 7 per cent. being existing or recently abandoned cultivation. The wire grass and sedges of the dry savannahs make very poor pasturage for cattle. The north of the territory and the southern coastal plain (8 to 20 miles wide) is nearly flat, and near the sea is low and swampy. The central mountain mass has a general altitude of 2,000 to 3,000 feet and 20 per cent. of the area of the territory is over 1,000 feet in elevation above mean sea-level.

The staple products are obtained from the forests, and include mahogany, cedar, and chicle (the basis of chewing-gum). Agricultural crops that grow readily include sugar cane, coconuts, citrus fruit, plantains, pineapples, mangoes, maize, rice, varieties of beans and peas. Bananas also grow well in certain localities but are subject to Panama Disease. All varieties of citrus fruits flourish, and in particular grape-fruit, of which a very high grade is exported.

In 1961 there were 126 Government and grant-aided and 31 private elementary schools in the country, the total enrolment being 22,768. There are also 13 secondary schools with a total enrolment of 1,864 students and a technical college with 60 full-time students.

There are 33 post offices, dealing in 1961 with 1,982,781 articles of mail. There is a radio-telegraph station for external communications at Belize. Air services are scheduled twice weekly to and from the capitals of Panama, Honduras, Mexico, Salvador, Guatemala, Nicaragua and Costa Rica. A weekly service exists from and to the capitals of the West Indian islands via Jamaica. There is a four times weekly service from and to New Orleans and a twice weekly service from and to Miami. A local scheduled air service links five of the six districts into which the country is divided.

CAPITAL, Ψ Belize. Population (1959) 32,000; other towns Ψ Corozal (2,800), El Cayo (1,548), Ψ Stann Creek (4,700), Orange Walk (2,300), Ψ Punta Gorda (1,400).

GOVERNMENT

The Constitution of 1960 provides for a Legislative Assembly of 25 members, 18 of whom are elected, 5 nominated and 2 ex officio members. The Assembly elects its Speaker and provision is made for the appointment of a First Minister. The life of the Assembly is 4 years, but the Governor has power to prorogue or dissolve it by proclamation. Certain other powers are reserved to the Governor. A full ministerial system has been introduced and portfolios allotted by the Governor, on the advice of the First Minister.
